Assessment reduction plan derailed

by KURT BAER

School officials Thursday derailed at least temporarily Cook County Assessor Thomas M. Tully's controversial proposal to reduce the assessment level on single-family homes from 22 per cent to 16 per cent of market value.

Representatives of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards appeared near the end of six hours of public hearings by the Cook County Board Finance Committee Thursday and said they were opposed to Tully's assessment plan, but did not have enough specific information on the current assessment levels within their districts to predict what a 16 per cent assessment would mean to their tax revenue.

Jerome Huppert, finance committee chairman, recessed the hearings indefinitely to give Tully's office time to supply the figures.

COOK COUNTY Board Pres. George Dunne also said the assessor's office needed to furnish more detailed information on present assessment levels, especially in light of evidence that assessments on homes already are below the legal 22 per cent level.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan, speaking in favor of Tully's proposal, said a survey of 160 homes sold in Arlington Heights between November 1975 and March 1976 showed an average equalized assessment of 12.3 per cent.

If during the current reassessment the level is put at 22 per cent, Ryan said, it would amount to nearly a 100 per cent increase for an average Arlington Heights homeowner.

"I certainly am not oblivious to the fact that many of the 600 taxing bodies in Cook County with fixed tax rates would be affected by a 16 per cent limit," Ryan said. "But I think these tax bodies, like you and I, have to spend according to what our income is gong to be."

SEVERAL SPEAKERS representing Northwest suburban school districts were at the meeting to testify against the proposal, but were not called. They were: David Kluxdal, board member Elk Grove Township Dist. 59; Robert Seger, board member Palatine Township Dist. 15; Marvin J. Carter: I owe it all to the people

by STEVE BROWN

Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, buoyed by the enthusiasm of tens of thousands of marchers, told a gathering of Illinois Democrats Thursday night that he "owes everything in his campaign to the people."

The former Georgia governor capped a 10-hour campaign swing through Illinois with a speech in Chicago praising Mayor Richard J. Daley and the legions of Democratic loyalists who crammed Medinah Temple and overflowed into the streets.

Daley had ordered a massive torchlight parade that was short of torches, but included a crowd of nearly 60,000, according to police, and dozens of bands and floats.

IN HIS SPEECH, Carter stuck to what has become the basic themes of his campaign. He called for a need to restore faith in government and to give the people control of the governmental processes.

"I don't owe any debts to any special interest groups. I owe everything to the people and I want to keep it that way," Carter said.

Carter praised Daley as the greatest mayor in America and called Chicago a great city, using the familiar slogan "the city that works."

Carter's speech was the first time during the long campaign day which began in Columbus, Ohio, that the Democrat was not forced to go on the defensive and respond to charges made by President Ford.

During a speech in Springfield, Carter took issue with Ford's criticism of his defense policies, and charged the President with trying to "cloud the issue about the controversy surrounding FBI Director Clarence Kelley."

THE CROWD INSIDE the Medinah Temple on Chicago's Near North Side was prepped for Carter's speech by the Democratic statewide ticket plus U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, Gov. Daniel Walker, and Daley.

All of the speakers praised Carter and spoke of major Democrat-

"Abortion kills. Choose life."

"If it's not alive, why do they have to KILL it? Fight abortion."

There also was another sign that read, "Leave abortion out of politics." And perhaps five dozen others.

The shouting began at least 10 minutes before presidential candidate Jimmy Carter trailed the full slate of Democratic Party state office candidates into an Evergreen Park shopping center political rally Thursday afternoon.

"Life yes, Carter no!" the women, their children and a very few men shouted.

"Life, yes, Carter no!" the pack continued to scream as the candidate rode down an escalator and walked up a short aisle to the waiting podium.

Today

ANTI-ABORTION supporters numbered perhaps 10 per cent of the estimated 2,500 persons who attended this political function.

And they were the main attraction until Carter's people shouted them down when Gov. Jimmy Carter finally made his appearance at 5:30 p.m., one-half hour late.

So this was a Jimmy Carter rally, another visit with the people. Carter always tells the people that he owes them everything, and that he would be nothing today without their bandwagon support.

They are his people. He would be their President.

Carter might have avoided the little pack whose members screamed "Life yes, Carter no!" But the candidate acknowledged them.

"People have very strong feelings about abortion. Last year our government financed 300,000 abortions," Carter said.

"ABORTION IS wrong. We need a national program for better sex education, family planning and better adoption procedures to hold down any need for abortion."

That would seem to settle the

by TONI GINNETTI

The future of Chinese-American relations in the wake of Mao Tse-tung's death likely will continue toward normalization, China experts in Chicago predicted Thursday.

But at least one local historian cautioned that if relations between China and the Soviet Union improve, the move could come at the expense of the United States.

Prof. Philip Kuhn, a Far Eatern affairs historian at the University of Chicago, Thursday said if the pro-Soviet wing of the Chinese Communist Party emeges to dominant leadership, efforts toward Chinese-American normalization likely will end.

"YOU CAN EXPECT so because the whole opening to the West was because of the threat felt from the Soviets," Kuhn said. "All of which suggests that we better move fast to normalize our relations with China."

Prof. James Sheridan, an Asian authority at Northwestern University, said he does not think a "quick change" will come about in Chinese foreign policy but added improved Sino-Soviet relations could hurt the United States.

"I'm incined to think it would be an either-or situation," he said.

Prof. Tang Tsou, an authority on Chinese politics with the University of Chicago, said he does not believe Sino-American relations will change unless the United Staes does not proceed toward normalizing relations.

"THE CHINESE policy is very clear," he said. "Every leader agrees. They want normalization of relations with the United States. But, to put it in colloquial terms, the ball is now in the Americans' court and it depends upon how the Americans play the game."

He said the Chinese have waited to see steps toward further normalization, which were delayed during the Watergate scandal and disruption of the Nixon Administration.

The experts said it is difficult to predict who will surface as the new political leader for the Asian nation of 800 million.

"We just don't understand the political workings there," Sheridan said. "There will be a power struggle. That is not to say that it will be of cataclysmic proportions. How long it will take for those decisions to be made, if it will be weeks or months, I can't say."

Carpin auto hit by BB gun: police

Wheeling police Thursday said a BB gun was used to shatter the window of a car driven by the key witness in a bribery and misconduct trial of a former village trustee. George Carpin, a Wheeling businessman who accused Gilbert Monoson, former village trustee, of soliciting a bribe in exchange for influence in a zoning matter, told police someone apparently fired a shotgun at him Aug. 29 as he was driving home from work at 4:30 a.m. Sgt. William Ralston said laboratory tests show that a "high powered pellet gun or BB rifle" was fired at Carpin's car window. Police said several incidents of BB gun shootings have been reported in the area where Carpin's factory is located at 42 Mercantile Ct., Wheeling. In one case, the description of an auto believed used by the BB gun shooters matches the description Carpin gave police of the car driven by the persons who shot at him.

Man, 22, charged in accident

Schaumburg police have arrested and charged a 22-year-old driver for the hit-and-run accident in Schaumburg Wednesday night in which a 17-year-old bicyclist suffered serious injuries. Charged with fleeing the scene of an accident is Vincent M. McFadden, 333 Hazel Ct., Schaumburg. Reported in serious condition Thursday in the intensive-care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, is Stacy Detwiler, 1027 Duxbury Ln., Schaumburg. Ms. Detwiler suffered multiple facial injuries when the bicycle she was riding was struck by McFadden's pickup truck at 9 p.m. Wednesday on Springinsguth Road north of Weathersfield Way. McFadden has been released on $500 cash bond. He is scheduled to appear Oct. 18 in the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Boy shot in robbery attempt

A 16-year-old Arlington Heights boy suffered a gunshot wound Thursday morning in a robbery attempt in Palatine. Police said the youth was in the parking lot of the Brunswick Northwest Bowl, 519 Consumers Ave., at 10 a.m. Thursday when he was approached by a man demanding money. Police said the youth refused and the robber shot him in the right hand. The robber then fled The boy was reported in good condition Thursday night following surgery to remove the bullet at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

In report to board

Committee backs Lahti's actions

Harper College Pres. Robert Lahti did not violate college policy during the past 18 months, according to a report issued by a special board of trustees committee formed to investigate alleged violation of policies by Lahti and members of the board.

The report, presented to the full board Thursday, stated the committee found, "no explicit or implicit violation or abuse," regarding Lahti's use of first-class air travel when college policy stipulates flying coach.

Lahti was present at the meeting.

In delivering his committee's report, chairman Robert Rausch criticized The Herald, for its coverage of alleged violations, and Robert Creek, president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education, for his comments to the special committee at one of its meetings.

THE COMMITTEE also admitted in its report that it did not know the nature of two meetings which The Herald reported were held in violation of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

Regarding Lahti twice in the last year using college safety vehicles and personnel for personal business, the committee found, "considering the time frames and the scope of usage, there is no pattern of abuse."

Regarding allegations the board violated the Illinois Open Meeting Act 24 times, the committee concluded, "Harper policy is to exceed legal minimums and announce all meetings. Any occasions which were not formally announced were not violations."

THE REPORT stated that 19 of the 24 unannounced meetings reported by The Herald dealt with faculty-negotiation matters and do not legally have to be announced.

Two of the other five meetings were lunches in Chicago which board members attended in conjunction with meetings of the Illinois Community College Board, the report states. Another was a dinner Harper hosted for the state board when it visited Harper, the committee stated.

"The documentation for the remaining two gatherings is too scant to properly affix their purpose, but they likely were concerned with post negotiation debriefing sessions of the board committee members and representative administrators," the report states.

Rausch said he hopes the report, "will put an end to the flurry of allegations that we have been subjected to.

"WE OWE NO APOLOGY to anyone, we owe only continued quality education to our citizens," Rausch said.

Rausch critized The Herald for printing 22 articles regarding alleged policy violations in 27 days.

Rausch said Creek, who addressed the special committee during its last meeting, was a "sleazy medler whose transparent motives were to catch a few lines of publicity."

A call for an investigation of Harper issued by a local representative of the Illinois Education Assn. to the Cook County State's Attorney was the result of "union rivalries," Rausch said.

German school registration today

Registration for the German Language School for Children of the Northwest Suburbs will be held today from 6 to 8 p.m. at St. James Catholic School, 831 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Classes begin at 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 17 and continue through the school year. Children 5 to 14 art eligible. Classes are taught by the German American National Congress. For more information call 358-5129 or 398-7476.

Missing girl's father asks for help

An appeal has been issued by the father of missing 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert of Mount Prospect asking that persons who attended an Aug. 21 rock concert in Huntley meet with authorities Tuesday to provide any information which may lead to the girl's location.

Robert Glueckert, Barbara's father, is asking that persons who attended the concert appear at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Elgin City Council Chambers, 150 Dexter Ct.

The gathering of concert goers is the first major attempt to find the girl since a Marine helicopter carrying a heat-sensitive device last week searched for a possible buried body on 500 acres of farmland where the concert was held.

"I don't txpect all of them to show up," Glueckert said. "I'm not even sure we would want all of them together. All we want to find out is if there is any piece of information someone has that would help us to get Barb back."

GLUECKERT SAID he expects about 250 of the 500 persons at the concert to show up Tuesday, but "would be satisfied if we only had 30, 40 or 50."

Several of the concert goers took pictures of the crowd and musicians, Glueckert said, something which may provide more information about whom Barbara was with.

"This is definitely a worthwhile shot," Glueckert said. "Even the current clues we've been working on have come from the people that were there (the concert)."

Mount Prospect police Sgt. Patrick Hallihan said Thursday that "there's nothing new" in the Glueckert investigation, although detectives continue to work around the clock for some clue as to Barbara's whereabouts.

MANPOWER ON the case has been cut back to allow detectives to work on some other pressing cases, Hallihan said, "and we just couldn't keep our men going more than 16 hours a day."

A $5,000 reward was issued by the family last week for any information leading to Barbara's location. Confidtntial information may be sent to Box 525, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Police are following leads in tracking down the girl and 24-year-old Thomas Urlacher of Algonquin Shores who gave Barbara a ride to the concert nearly three weeks ago.

The robber then fled The boy was reported in good condition Thursday night following surgery to remove the bullet at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

In report to board

Committee backs Lahti's actions

Harper College Pres. Robert Lahti did not violate college policy during the past 18 months, according to a report issued by a special board of trustees committee formed to investigate alleged violation of policies by Lahti and members of the board.

The report, presented to the full board Thursday, stated the committee found, "no explicit or implicit violation or abuse," regarding Lahti's use of first-class air travel when college policy stipulates flying coach.

Lahti was present at the meeting.

In delivering his committee's report, chairman Robert Rausch criticized The Herald, for its coverage of alleged violations, and Robert Creek, president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education, for his comments to the special committee at one of its meetings.

THE COMMITTEE also admitted in its report that it did not know the nature of two meetings which The Herald reported were held in violation of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

Regarding Lahti twice in the last year using college safety vehicles and personnel for personal business, the committee found, "considering the time frames and the scope of usage, there is no pattern of abuse."

Regarding allegations the board violated the Illinois Open Meeting Act 24 times, the committee concluded, "Harper policy is to exceed legal minimums and announce all meetings. Any occasions which were not formally announced were not violations."

THE REPORT stated that 19 of the 24 unannounced meetings reported by The Herald dealt with faculty-negotiation matters and do not legally have to be announced.

Two of the other five meetings were lunches in Chicago which board members attended in conjunction with meetings of the Illinois Community College Board, the report states. Another was a dinner Harper hosted for the state board when it visited Harper, the committee stated.

"The documentation for the remaining two gatherings is too scant to properly affix their purpose, but they likely were concerned with post negotiation debriefing sessions of the board committee members and representative administrators," the report states.

Rausch said he hopes the report, "will put an end to the flurry of allegations that we have been subjected to.

"WE OWE NO APOLOGY to anyone, we owe only continued quality education to our citizens," Rausch said.

Rausch critized The Herald for printing 22 articles regarding alleged policy violations in 27 days.

Rausch said Creek, who addressed the special committee during its last meeting, was a "sleazy medler whose transparent motives were to catch a few lines of publicity."

A call for an investigation of Harper issued by a local representative of the Illinois Education Assn. to the Cook County State's Attorney was the result of "union rivalries," Rausch said.

Missing girl's father asks for help

An appeal has been issued by the father of missing 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert of Mount Prospect asking that persons who attended an Aug. 21 rock concert in Huntley meet with authorities Tuesday to provide any information which may lead to the girl's location.

Robert Glueckert, Barbara's father, is asking that persons who attended the concert appear at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Elgin City Council Chambers, 150 Dexter Ct.

The gathering of concert goers is the first major attempt to find the girl since a Marine helicopter carrying a heat-sensitive device last week searched for a possible buried body on 500 acres of farmland where the concert was held.

"I don't txpect all of them to show up," Glueckert said. "I'm not even sure we would want all of them together. All we want to find out is if there is any piece of information someone has that would help us to get Barb back."

GLUECKERT SAID he expects about 250 of the 500 persons at the concert to show up Tuesday, but "would be satisfied if we only had 30, 40 or 50."

Several of the concert goers took pictures of the crowd and musicians, Glueckert said, something which may provide more information about whom Barbara was with.

"This is definitely a worthwhile shot," Glueckert said. "Even the current clues we've been working on have come from the people that were there (the concert)."

Mount Prospect police Sgt. Patrick Hallihan said Thursday that "there's nothing new" in the Glueckert investigation, although detectives continue to work around the clock for some clue as to Barbara's whereabouts.

MANPOWER ON the case has been cut back to allow detectives to work on some other pressing cases, Hallihan said, "and we just couldn't keep our men going more than 16 hours a day."

A $5,000 reward was issued by the family last week for any information leading to Barbara's location. Confidtntial information may be sent to Box 525, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Police are following leads in tracking down the girl and 24-year-old Thomas Urlacher of Algonquin Shores who gave Barbara a ride to the concert nearly three weeks ago.

Major tax reform bill clears committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators completed a major tax revision bill Thursday, continuing $17.3 billion in current tax cuts but making hundreds of changes that will result in a $1.6 billion tax increase next year for some industries and individuals.

One of the biggest tax breaks in the bill was included at the last minute — a reduction in estate and gift taxes which many farmers and others said were forcing heirs to sell family property to pay the tax bills.

The compromise measure, the product of three years of congressional effort, could go to both the House and Senate floor as early as Thursday or Friday of next week.

Although the tax changes were not exactly the same, the bill's revenue effect was almost exactly the same as the stronger House-passed bill. The Senate version, which was strongly criticized by tax "reformers," would have lost $300 million in its first years and greater amounts later.

The final compromise bill will gain less money in 1978 — $986 million — because estate and gift tax changes will then begin to go into effect. The revenue loss will remain essentially the same through 1981 when the bill is expected to gain $984 million.

Estate and gift tax changes were expected to be handled in a separate bill, but were tacked onto this larger measure when it became apparent the other legislation was in trouble.

The major estate tax change is to greatly increase the current $60,000 exemption — the amount of estate on which no tax must be paid. This would be changed to a tax credit that would be the equivalent of $120,666 in 1977, gradually increasing over five years to a permanent $175,625 in 1981 and later years.

Curbs also were put on "generation-skipping trusts"—used by the wealthy to avoid inheritance taxes for as long as a century.

The estate and gift tax changes, however, could be in trouble because the full House has not yet acted on the bill. In the House, those tax changes had been carried in separate legislation.

Estate tax relief would be phased in over a five-year period, after which the estimated 127,000 estates now subject to the tax would be pared down to 50,000 — an estimated 2 per cent of all estates.

Also among the final decisions were major cuts in sick-pay tax advantages and a limitation on tax shelter advantages in the real estate industry.

Until Thursday, House negotiators insisted on keeping the estate and gift tax issue separate because the full House had not had an opportunity to act on it, although the House Ways and Means Committee drafted a bill.

The Ways and Means bill is snagged in a dispute between liberal Democrats who feel it does not go far enough in cracking down on the wealthy, and conservative Democrats and Republicans who feel it goes too far in some areas.

Carter proposes to destroy America's alliances: Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Applauded by Jewish leaders who likened him to George Washington, President Ford Thursday started the foreign policy debate he is itching for and accused Jimmy Carter of proposing to destroy America's defensive alliances.

Claiming Carter goaded him into it, Ford ripped into the Democratic nominee in a speech that won standing ovations from the national convention of the B'nai B'rith Jewish organization.

"He has proposed troop withdrawals from Western Europe and from Korea," Ford said of remarks made by the Georgian on the campaign trail and in his own speech to the B'nai B'rith Wednesday.

"He has proposed defense budget cuts that would cripple our ability to supply or sustain our friends; bans on nuclear tests by our allies; a nuclear strategy of massive retaliation policies which would invite a major crisis with our allies, including Israel . . .

"If we did any of these, it would be impossible to defend our allies, including Israel."

He also pledged to fight for the right of Soviet Jews to emigrate freely, drawing another rousing response from an audience of about 2,000 and building to a 40 second standing ovation at the end.

The Jewish organization gave Ford its first American Freedom Series Award with an inscription quoting Washington's words to the Jewish community of Rhode Island: "To bigotry, no sanction. To persecution, no assistance."

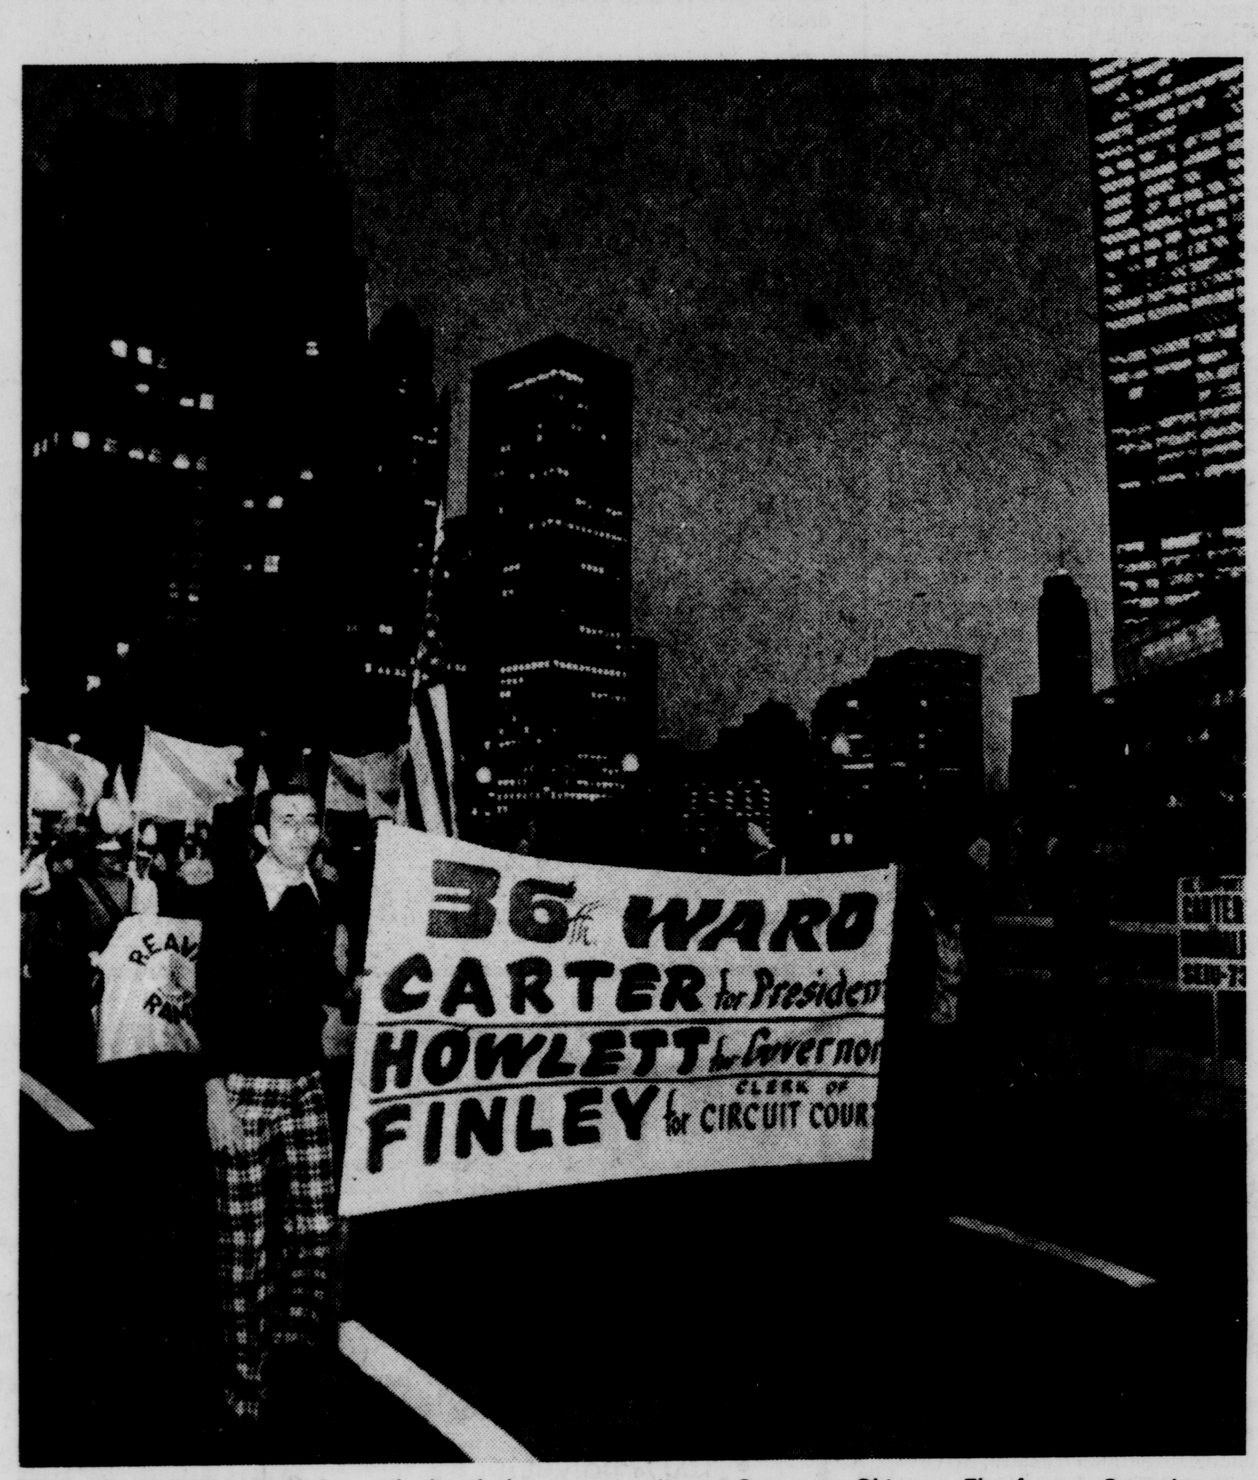
"You are an example of George Washington," said B'nai B'rith preident David Blumberg in presenting the award.

Much of his attack upon Carter represented impromptu departures from his prepared text, as though he were seizing the chance to grapple his opponent on the issue Ford considers his strong suit.

The President, who claims he is not campaigning this week, said he intended to make "a nonpartisan speech."

"But when I saw the morning newspapers I was disappointed to see that one of your speakers (Carter) yesterday kicked off our debates.

"Well," he said with a grin, "I got here as quickly as I could. Now it's my turn at bat." The audience laughed.



TENS OF THOUSANDS of people lined the streets of Chicago and marched up Michigan Avenue Thursday night to welcome presidential nominee Jimmy Carter to Chicago. The former Georgia governor later addressed legions of Democratic faithful in Medinah Temple on the Near North Side.

Police kill 22 coloreds in Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Police Thursday shot to death at least 22 colored persons, including an 8-year-old boy, in rioting that spread into the all-white suburban areas for the first time.

The new killings hiked the death toll in 12 weeks of racial riots to 327.

Police did not give details of all 22 killings that were announced after a day of violence that flared throughout several towns around Cape Town.

But the latest deaths included, 12 in the colored township of Manenberg which was hit by looting, one in the colored enclave of Grassy park, one in the colored township of Elsies River and another in Paarl, where whites and colored live in segregated neighborhoods.

Colored is the South African official designation for persons of mixed race.

In Southfield, near Cape Town, a white woman, Mrs. R. A. Wheeler, hid under a bed with her four children while a gang of some 300 colored youths threw stones at their home.

"I grabbed the children and we hid under the beds for safety," she said. The windows in the children's bedrooms were shattered but no one in the house was injured.

Police officials said an 8-year-old boy was shot to death in Manenberg and a youth died of wounds in a hospital. Authorities said the 8-year-old was not among the Manenberg looters, who were in their 20s.

Scattered stone-throwing and looting incidents were reported in Retreat, a suburb 15 miles east of Cape Town, where whites and coloreds reside in segregated sections.

"There was just complete chaos," said Hannah Petereiterse, a colored sales clerk at a dress shop. "There was shooting and teargas and there were rocks flying everywhere."

'Loyalty questions' off U.S. job forms

The government announced Thursday that federal job forms will no longer ask applicants if they are Communists or pose any of the "loyalty questions" that date from a 1953 internal security drive. The Civil Service Commission order scraps the entire series of loyalty queries ordered up by President Dwight Eisenhower and pronounced "pretty darned good" by the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy. The commission said that, despite government attempts to rephrase the questions, courts have held them to be "overbroad" and to "encroach on the rights of association . . . protected by the First Amendment."

MIG pilot Belenko arrives in U.S.

Secluded in the first class section of a jumbo jet out of sight of other passengers, Soviet fighter pilot Viktor Ivanovich Belenko arrived in the United States Thursday night to begin a new life "of my own free will." The Soviet pilot was granted asylum in the United States after he landed his top secret MiG25 in Japan Monday. The 29-year-old Belenko will remain in the Los Angeles area at least overnight, according to a spokeswoman for Los Angeles International Airport, and there were no immediate plans for him to leave the city.

Panama Limited derails in Mississippi

The southbound Panama Limited Amtrak passenger train derailed near Valden in central Mississippi early Thursday, tossing luggage about and slightly injuring at least 45 persons. It was the second time in recent months that the Panama Limited has jumped the tracks in central Mississippi. A railroad crewman was killed and 25 persons injured June 30 in a similar accident near Goodman, about 25 miles south of the site of Thursday's derailment. There were no fatalities in the latest accident.

House OKs $104.4 billion for defense

The House Thursday approved legislation appropriating $104.4 billion for the Defense Department for fiscal 1977, and limiting funds for the B1 bomber to $87 million per month through next Feb. 1. By a vote of 323 to 45, the House adopted a Senate-House conference committee's compromoise on differing versions of the money bill. On June 17 the House passed, 331 to 53, legislation appropriating $105.4 billion for the defense budget. The Senate voted 82 to 6 on Aug. 9 to appropriate $104 billion. The conference report still must be accepted by the Senate before it will be sent to President Ford. House Republican sources said the administration had no objections to the legislation despite the fact it is $3.6 billion below the administration's request.

Ford linked to N. Korean incident

North Korean Vice President Kim Dong Gyu accused President Ford of provoking the Aug. 18 incident that ltd to the slaying of two U.S. Army officers at Panmunjom to win votes in the November election, the government controlled news agency said Thursday. In a Natonal Day speech in the capitol of Pyongyang, Kim, one of four North Korean vice presidents, said Ford provoked the fight between American and North Korean troops at the truce village "to boost his sagging prestige . . . and remain in the presidency." Kim, 61, did not menton in his speech that the two officers were hacked to death by North Koreans in a dispute over trimming the branches of a tree. Nor did he mention the expression of regret sent to the United States by North Korean President Kim Il Sung or the negotiations after the killings that led to a new arrangement to separate soldiers of the two countries at Panmunjom.

ic victories in November. However, Daley showed some concern about the chances for victory when he told the partisan crowd to ignore public opinion polls.

"The one poll that is important will be taken in November and will show the results of your work in the precincts," Daley said.

The mayor's remarks apparently were caused by public reports of a private poll conducted by the Carter campaign in Illinois showing the Georgian and Ford neck and neck.

Carter aides described the contest as a dead heat and suggested one of the reasons for the closeness in the race might be the drag that Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett is having on the ticket.

CARTER'S POLL showed Howlett trailing his Republican challenger James R. Thompson by nearly 20 points in some parts of the state.

Two of the most heated speeches given during the evening came from state Treasurer Alan J. Dixon and Lt. Gov. L. Neil Hartigan.

Both men made stinging attacks on Thompson, noting that he was an appointee of former President Richard Nixon and that he has no experience in state government.

"We know he has no experience and I know you don't want to give him on-the-job training at your expense," Dixon said. Dixon also was critical of Ford's pardon of Nixon.

When Carter concluded his speech, Secret Service agents rushed him out a side door to avoid a confrontation with an anti-abortion group picketing outside the building.

The Illinois Right-To-Life Committee had picketed Carter, who is opposed to a constitutional amendment banning abortion, during several stops in Illinois today.

Mr. Carter, please repeat that?

issue. Jimmy Carter does not favor abortions. He thinks they are wrong. Did not he say as much? Good, it's over with.

But wait, what's this?

Now Jimmy Carter is telling the crowd that he does not favor any constitutional amendment that would prohibit abortions nationwide.

And here comes his straddle-the-fence summary: "I don't have any intention of changing my mind just to get votes in an election year," Carter said.

Excuse, me, but just what did he say?

Not very much of any significance happens at a Jimmy Carter political rally these days. The candidate is ahead in all polls. No mistakes should keep him ahead.

Oh sure, people clap thtir hands and others boo or cheer. They wave signs and scream for good old Gov. Jimmy. Yes sir, he's their man, or they would have stayed home.

These days, Carter's people are buying a candidate who, with just eight weeks remaining before the election, still speaks in platitudes rather than particulars during his rallies.

But that must be all right, too, because the people do not seem very interested in issues. Just smiles.

Governor Jimmy told his audience that between 25 and 50 per cent of all Medicaid funds are either wasted or stolen, according to the U.S. Senate investigations.

But how were the people to know? What U.S. Senate investigation? Under whose committee? In what year? And initiated by whom for what purpose? And isn't there a wide discrepancy between 25 cents on the dollar and 50 cents?

He said "democrats, who sometimes make mistakes, who sometimes fumble, still know where our future lies, and that's with you, the people." You win votes talking like that.

THIS MAN CARTER is good. He knows that peole love statistics, so he told them that Democratic presidents always have recorded the lowest inflation rates and the least amount of unemployment while White House residents.

Carter dwelled on good old Harry Truman, "the common man who became an uncommon President." Seven years of Harry Truman left the U.S.A. with a financial surplus.

Eight years of Nixon and Ford, Carter said, have produced a $24 billion annual deficit, according to his figures.

But President Carter could change that, he said. There would be no deficits in his administration, a nice but semi-realistic thought.

It brought cheers, of course. It always does when Carter speaks about solvency and honesty. They are good ways to campaign. But they don't say too much.

Panama Limited derails in Mississippi

The southbound Panama Limited Amtrak passenger train derailed near Valden in central Mississippi early Thursday, tossing luggage about and slightly injuring at least 45 persons. It was the second time in recent months that the Panama Limited has jumped the tracks in central Mississippi. A railroad crewman was killed and 25 persons injured June 30 in a similar accident near Goodman, about 25 miles south of the site of Thursday's derailment. There were no fatalities in the latest accident.

House OKs $104.4 billion for defense

The House Thursday approved legislation appropriating $104.4 billion for the Defense Department for fiscal 1977, and limiting funds for the B1 bomber to $87 million per month through next Feb. 1. By a vote of 323 to 45, the House adopted a Senate-House conference committee's compromoise on differing versions of the money bill. On June 17 the House passed, 331 to 53, legislation appropriating $105.4 billion for the defense budget. The Senate voted 82 to 6 on Aug. 9 to appropriate $104 billion. The conference report still must be accepted by the Senate before it will be sent to President Ford. House Republican sources said the administration had no objections to the legislation despite the fact it is $3.6 billion below the administration's request.

Ford linked to N. Korean incident

North Korean Vice President Kim Dong Gyu accused President Ford of provoking the Aug. 18 incident that ltd to the slaying of two U.S. Army officers at Panmunjom to win votes in the November election, the government controlled news agency said Thursday. In a Natonal Day speech in the capitol of Pyongyang, Kim, one of four North Korean vice presidents, said Ford provoked the fight between American and North Korean troops at the truce village "to boost his sagging prestige . . . and remain in the presidency." Kim, 61, did not menton in his speech that the two officers were hacked to death by North Koreans in a dispute over trimming the branches of a tree. Nor did he mention the expression of regret sent to the United States by North Korean President Kim Il Sung or the negotiations after the killings that led to a new arrangement to separate soldiers of the two countries at Panmunjom.

ic victories in November. However, Daley showed some concern about the chances for victory when he told the partisan crowd to ignore public opinion polls.

"The one poll that is important will be taken in November and will show the results of your work in the precincts," Daley said.

The mayor's remarks apparently were caused by public reports of a private poll conducted by the Carter campaign in Illinois showing the Georgian and Ford neck and neck.

Carter aides described the contest as a dead heat and suggested one of the reasons for the closeness in the race might be the drag that Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett is having on the ticket.

CARTER'S POLL showed Howlett trailing his Republican challenger James R. Thompson by nearly 20 points in some parts of the state.

Two of the most heated speeches given during the evening came from state Treasurer Alan J. Dixon and Lt. Gov. L. Neil Hartigan.

Both men made stinging attacks on Thompson, noting that he was an appointee of former President Richard Nixon and that he has no experience in state government.

"We know he has no experience and I know you don't want to give him on-the-job training at your expense," Dixon said. Dixon also was critical of Ford's pardon of Nixon.

When Carter concluded his speech, Secret Service agents rushed him out a side door to avoid a confrontation with an anti-abortion group picketing outside the building.

The Illinois Right-To-Life Committee had picketed Carter, who is opposed to a constitutional amendment banning abortion, during several stops in Illinois today.

Mr. Carter, please repeat that?

issue. Jimmy Carter does not favor abortions. He thinks they are wrong. Did not he say as much? Good, it's over with.

But wait, what's this?

Now Jimmy Carter is telling the crowd that he does not favor any constitutional amendment that would prohibit abortions nationwide.

And here comes his straddle-the-fence summary: "I don't have any intention of changing my mind just to get votes in an election year," Carter said.

Excuse, me, but just what did he say?

Not very much of any significance happens at a Jimmy Carter political rally these days. The candidate is ahead in all polls. No mistakes should keep him ahead.

Oh sure, people clap thtir hands and others boo or cheer. They wave signs and scream for good old Gov. Jimmy. Yes sir, he's their man, or they would have stayed home.

These days, Carter's people are buying a candidate who, with just eight weeks remaining before the election, still speaks in platitudes rather than particulars during his rallies.

But that must be all right, too, because the people do not seem very interested in issues. Just smiles.

Governor Jimmy told his audience that between 25 and 50 per cent of all Medicaid funds are either wasted or stolen, according to the U.S. Senate investigations.

But how were the people to know? What U.S. Senate investigation? Under whose committee? In what year? And initiated by whom for what purpose? And isn't there a wide discrepancy between 25 cents on the dollar and 50 cents?

He said "democrats, who sometimes make mistakes, who sometimes fumble, still know where our future lies, and that's with you, the people." You win votes talking like that.

THIS MAN CARTER is good. He knows that peole love statistics, so he told them that Democratic presidents always have recorded the lowest inflation rates and the least amount of unemployment while White House residents.

Carter dwelled on good old Harry Truman, "the common man who became an uncommon President." Seven years of Harry Truman left the U.S.A. with a financial surplus.

Eight years of Nixon and Ford, Carter said, have produced a $24 billion annual deficit, according to his figures.

But President Carter could change that, he said. There would be no deficits in his administration, a nice but semi-realistic thought.

It brought cheers, of course. It always does when Carter speaks about solvency and honesty. They are good ways to campaign. But they don't say too much.

Contempt charge against Walker

A petition filed in Cook County Circuit Court Thursday charged Gov. Daniel Walker, Atty. Gen. William Scott and a dozen state employes with possible contempt of court during an Illinois Revenue Dept. trial last year. Attorney Kenneth Ditkowsky filed the petition with Judge Donald J. O'Brien, who heard the trial, and charged Walker, Scott and 12 others with conspiring to withhold evidence. The charges stemmed from an affidavit signed by former revenue department agent William Benson who said his superiors assured him Walker would pardon any department of revenue employes found in contempt of court during the trial.

The trial resulted from a 1974 injunction which O'Brien issued forbidding revenue agents from harassing Illinois citizens who drove to neighboring states, particularly to Indiana, to buy cigarets. Last December, O'Brien found Benson, department director Robert Allphin and several other department officials guilty of contempt for ignoring his order. Thursday's petition charged that all 14 persons conspired to "obstruct the judicial process" and altered or destroyed documents that were "damaging and embarrassing" to the revenue department.

Berwyn police end 'blue flu'

Police in suburban Berwyn ended a three-day-old "blue flu" work stoppage Thursday and agreed to terms of a new two-year contract calling for a $1,125-a-year hike in base pay. The pay increase will bring the police department's base pay to $15,575 a year, the same level as that of Berwyn firemen, said Berwyn Ald. Raymond G. Cox.

The contract also provides for increased fringe benefits and includes a "no strike, no lockout, no job action" clause, Cox said. The "blue flu" outbreak began Monday when contract talks broke off between the Combined Counties Police Assn. and the Berwyn City Council. Since then, a majority of Berwyn policemen stayed away from work and Cook County Sheriff's police had to be called in for patrol duties.

Howlett not cleared: Thompson

Republican James Thompson said Thursday his Democratic opponent for governor, Michael Howlett, still has to explain his part-time job with the Sun Steel Corp. "He's not been cleared on that," Thompson said when asked at a news conference about Cook County Circuit Court Judge Raymond K. Berg's ruling Wednesday that Howlett did not have a conflict of interest.

Saying he has not used the Sun Steel job as a campaign issue, Thompson said, "all you have is the conflicting opinion of two judges. Judge Berg says there was no conflict of interest. (Former State Supreme Court) Justice (Marvin) Burt says there was the appearance, a possibility of a conflict." Atty. Gen. William J. Scott has said he will take the matter to the Illinois Supreme Court for resolution.

"But that's all lawyers talk. That's not what's important," Thompson said. "What is important is that the voters of Illinois had no fair opportunity to know Mr. Howlett's association with Sun Steel while they were voting for him in previous elections and even more important to the voters of Illinois today they still don't know why he got $15,000 a year from Sun steel . . ."

Crane, Totten back Ford

Ronald Reagan will campaign for President Ford in Illinois and the leaders of Reagan's state campaign, U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, and state Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, have joined Ford's Illinois steering committee, GOP leaders said Thursday. Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, Ford's campaign chairman for Illinois, told a news conference Thursday Crane and Totten were among the "15 or 16 prominent Republican leaders" who have agreed to serve on the steering committee.

Ogilvie said he talked to Totten "at considerable length and we are going to have his cooperation and also (that of) Congressman Crane." Ogilvie said Totten would cooperate "by providing us with names and lists of people that were active in Reagan efforts." Crane, he said, is available for speaking engagements in Illinois and elsewhere. He said Crane told him a week ago "we can expect Gov. Reagan to campaign in Illinois in behalf of Ford and in behalf of some of the congressional candidates." Ford is expected to visit Illinois "one or two times," Ogilvie said.

MSD offering free sludge

Fertilizer in Chicago is free for the taking. The Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District renewed its long-standing offer Thursday of high quality fertilizer for lawns and gardens. A spokesman said some 200,000 tons have been given away annually since 1974. District officials call their product nu-earth but most people call it sludge — treated sewage. Earl Knight, assistant chief engineer for the district, said the city has 12 stockpiles of aged sludge. He estimated the supplies will run out in two years. "I use it on my grass and it's terrific," he said.

Tax, school bills near Senate vote

The Illinois Senate Thursday moved Gov. Daniel Walker's package of tax and school-aid bills to the passage stage. No votes were taken on the measures which can still be changed before a final vote. The Senate meets again at noon today. Most discussion at the hearing, technically a committee meeting of the entire Senate, centered on Republican charges the special session Walker called to meet what he called "developing financial crises" in schools is really a political stunt.

Several GOP senators asked Walker's budget bureau director, Leonard Schaeffer, why action on the $95 million speedup plan, which Walker says must pass before schools get more money, can't wait until the Nov. 17 veto session. Schaeffer said immediate action would simplify school budgeting. State school superintendent Joseph Cronin also testified in support of the package. He was attacked for allowing Chicago to pay its $53 million early closing penalty over three years instead of all at once. Republicans and Democrats said this hurts all other districts.

Blue Island strike continues

About 350 teachers in the Chicago suburb of Blue Island were the only Illinois teachers on strike Thursday, but classes were canceled in Downstate Herrin after a walkout by 20 custodians and bus drivers. Striking teachers in Downers Grove reached an agreement with their local school board early Thursday, and teachers in Oak Park decided to obey a court order and return to their jobs beginning today. That left only Blue Island District 218 on strike, a walkout that has kept 7,600 students out of class since Aug. 31. Contract talks were held Thursday and a session with a federal mediator was scheduled for today. In Herrin, 20 custodians and bus drivers went on strike in a disagreement over salaries and bargaining rights and the school district said no classes for the area's 3,060 students would be held until further notice.

Harper nursery school signup open

Parents may enroll children to 5-years-old in the nursery school operated as part of the child development program at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Two sessions are offered: Monday, Wednesday and Friday and Tuesday and Thursday. Both programs meet from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Babysitting services are available before and after the program for parents' convenience.

The nursery school program stresses learning activities and creativity with emphasis placed on individual attention. A teacher and two child development program students are assigned to each group of 14 children.

Restaurant to give boost to United Fund drive

Charity organizations serving Arlington Heights will be the victors Tuesday when McDonald's restaurant at Rand and Arlington Heights roads, kicks off the village's 1976 United Fund drive by contributing 50 per cent of the day's sales.

The generosity of the restaurant is expected to give the fall campaign a big boost towards this year's goal of $76,000.

The goal is unchanged from last year when $71,000 was collected.

"People Helping People" is the campaign theme for this year's drive, which will provide funds for 15 organizations offering homemaker services, community nursing, youth services, aid to the handicapped, disaster relief, care of children with special needs, mental health care, control of drug abuse, Scouting and several forms of counseling.

DONALD F. MORTON, general chairman for this year's campaign, said he is optimistic the $76,000 goal will be reached.

Agencies supported by the Arlington Heights United Fund need more money this year because of inflation, he said. The United Fund also has taken on a number of new agencies and programs to meet growing community needs, Morton said.

Residents are urged to bring "hearty appetites" to McDonald's Tuesday and respond generously to the mailing they will receive later this month because there will not be a door-to-door campaign.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, is chairman of the United Fund's residential drive.

Other campaign leaders are Alan M. Hollett, Donald Ring, Douglas McArthur and James Schroer.

Hersey band invited to Orange Bowl

The Hersey High School band has been invited to march in the Orange Bowl parade in Miami, Fla., on New Year's Eve and also will perform Sunday at the Chicago Bears' season opener against the Detroit Lions.

The Arlington Heights high school band took a first-place trophy for the sixth consecutive year in the Chicago Lakefront Water Festival parade in August, competing against 26 bands.

Earlier this year, the band was selected as the State of Illinois Bicentennial Band and performed in Washington D.C. The band also marched in the Tournament of Roses parade this year and represented Illinois in the Cotton Bowl parade in Dallas, Tex., in 1973.

The band is directed by Donald Caneva and his assistant Jim Rich.

Fight special assessment in court

Group to protest streetlight tax

Several Arlington Heights property owners plan to file objections against being included in a special assessment tax district created to pay for streetlights on Northwest Highway between Highland Avenue and Wilke Road.

Thomas Duda, 830 N. Harvard Ave., Monday on behalf of seven residential property owners.

Duda said Thursday that official objections will be filed in Cook County Circuit Court in advance of the Sept. 20 deadline.

ABOUT 50 PROPERTY owners, including about 12 residential properties, are included in the special assessment district for the $186,000 lighting project, said Kenneth Stonesifer, attorney for the village's board of local improvements.

At least one commercial property owner, Sylvia Hamm, also has filed an objection to the special assessment district.

The lighting project calls for the installation of 48 poles with sodium-vapor lights. They will be placed on the south side of Northwest Highway on railroad-owned property, said William Bachem of the village's engineering department.

The residential property owners are being backed by the Ridge Park Homeowners' Assn.

"WHAT WE'RE trying to do is to get the assessments reduced," said Thomas Gillis, president of the homeowners' group. The average assessment for each is about $200, he said.

Commercial property owners were assessed about five times as much as residential property owners, Stonesifer said. For example, the assessment for Mrs. Hamm's three parcels totals $2,280.

But residential property owners should not be included at all, Duda said.

"We feel that because Northwest Highway is a state highway, the sodium-vapor lights will be an improvement that will benefit people using the highway. The predominant benefit will be accrued by the public at-large," Duda said.

DUDA SAID that the sodium-vapor lights will reduce the property values for the residential owners.

"We think that we can establish in court that we should not be included in the assessment district and, instead, that we should be compensated because, if anything, the residential property is being damaged," he said.

Duda said he will ask the village board Monday why no special assessment district was created to pay for new streetlights in the Scarsdale subdivision. The board agreed last month to ask the Illinois Dept. of Transportation for permission to use motor fuel tax funds for the Scarsdale project.

"Why does Arlington Heights favor Scarsdale over Ridge Park? If they can give it to them free, they can give it to us free," Duda said.

Stonesifer said Duda's arguments sounded like "standard objections" heard when residential properties are included in special assessment districts.

Three to observe traffic at 'Cove'

Three members of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will visit the Frenchmen's Cove subdivision in Arlington Heights next week to determine if traffic in the area creates a hazard for children walking to school.

Board Pres. Susan Rose and members Linda Sprechman and Barbara Farr offered to observe the traffic situation Monday morning after residents from Frenchmen's Cove Thursday night asked the board to reconsider its decision to eliminate school bus service from that area to Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove.

Dist. 21 offered free busing to the school for the past two years to about 10 students on Carriageway Drive and Frenchman's Cove because sidewalks in the area were not completed.

THE BOARD decided last month, however, to discontinue the bus service because sidewalks connecting the subdivision to the students' main route to school have been finished and it is no longer considered dangerous.

Stuart Weinstein, president of the Frenchmen's Cove Homeowners' Assn., said Thursday several parents in the subdivision believe the children's route to school still is hazardous because of the "high amount of automobile traffic and construction in the area."

Weinstein said the high density of traffic from condominiums and homes create a dangerous situation for children crossing the streets and parking lots to reach sidewalks leading to the school.

More than 250 automobiles move in and out of the area during peak traffic periods, Weinstein said.

"WE'RE A SMALL development, and we're talking about 24 children. But what we lack in numbers we apparently makeup in automobiles," Weinstein said.

Mrs. Rose presented a traffic study of the Frenchmen's Cove area conducted by the Village of Arlington Heights between 7:30 and 9 a.m. Sept. 2 and 3.

Arlington Heights police Sgt. Jack Weber, who headed the traffic study, reported that 64 vehicles traveled on Carriageway Drive between Dundee Road and Daniels Court, and 16 school-age children walked through the residential area in that time period.

Weber's report said "vehicular traffic created no hazard to any pedestrian during the survey period."

Dist. 59 teachers' contract approved by board at 8.2%

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers contract, which calls for an 8.2 per cent salary increase for the 1976-77 school year, has been approved by the board of education in a 4 to 2 vote.

The board approved the contract this week. The 8.2 per cent salary increase includes a 4 per cent hike for each additional year of teaching experience in Dist. 59.

Board members Avis Wold and Judith Zanca voted against the contract saying the salary settlement was "excessive." Paul Kucharski, Charles Canupp, Emil Bahnmaier and Barbara Somogyi voted for the contract.

MRS. WOLD SAID her vote "is not a vote against the teachers. We have a very hard cold fact of reality — a financial crisis. It's a matter of how we're willing to deal with it."

She said settlements like the one passed "eventually could mean we will all lose the war" of the financial problems.

Mrs. Zanca said the settlement, which sets a base pay of $9,900 is "higher than the surrounding districts. I would have liked to see a more reasonable settlement so we will not have to increase class size. We are going to have to live with these figures for every year from now on."

Canupp said the contract is a "reasonable agreement on both sides" while Kucharski said it is a "just settlement."

BASE PAY FOR a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience increased from $9,500 to $9,900, with the district's top pay at $20,858.

The contract also includes an early retirement plan, an improved maternity leave policy and a revised eduction-in-force clause for releasing tenured teachers because of declining enrollment and financial problems.

District teachers approved the contract Aug. 30 at a meeting of teachers' unions from the North and Northwest suburbs.

Flea market planned by high school band

Arlington High School's marching band will hold a flea market from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, in the school parking lot, Walnut and Euclid avenues, Arlington Heights.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to finance the band's trip to a Bicentennial parade in St. Louis, Mo. later this month.

IT LOOKS LIKE George got his message across to Sally without having to rent this billboard, located on Hicks Road in Palatine.

Instead of paying the average $100-per-month fee to use the billboard, George found it cheaper to use a can of spray paint.

The police would like George to come back and write his last name on the sign, just so Sally won't wonder which George it is.

Restaurant to give boost to United Fund drive

Charity organizations serving Arlington Heights will be the victors Tuesday when McDonald's restaurant at Rand and Arlington Heights roads, kicks off the village's 1976 United Fund drive by contributing 50 per cent of the day's sales.

The generosity of the restaurant is expected to give the fall campaign a big boost towards this year's goal of $76,000.

The goal is unchanged from last year when $71,000 was collected.

"People Helping People" is the campaign theme for this year's drive, which will provide funds for 15 organizations offering homemaker services, community nursing, youth services, aid to the handicapped, disaster relief, care of children with special needs, mental health care, control of drug abuse, Scouting and several forms of counseling.

DONALD F. MORTON, general chairman for this year's campaign, said he is optimistic the $76,000 goal will be reached.

Agencies supported by the Arlington Heights United Fund need more money this year because of inflation, he said. The United Fund also has taken on a number of new agencies and programs to meet growing community needs, Morton said.

Residents are urged to bring "hearty appetites" to McDonald's Tuesday and respond generously to the mailing they will receive later this month because there will not be a door-to-door campaign.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, is chairman of the United Fund's residential drive.

Other campaign leaders are Alan M. Hollett, Donald Ring, Douglas McArthur and James Schroer.

Hersey band invited to Orange Bowl

The Hersey High School band has been invited to march in the Orange Bowl parade in Miami, Fla., on New Year's Eve and also will perform Sunday at the Chicago Bears' season opener against the Detroit Lions.

The Arlington Heights high school band took a first-place trophy for the sixth consecutive year in the Chicago Lakefront Water Festival parade in August, competing against 26 bands.

Earlier this year, the band was selected as the State of Illinois Bicentennial Band and performed in Washington D.C. The band also marched in the Tournament of Roses parade this year and represented Illinois in the Cotton Bowl parade in Dallas, Tex., in 1973.

The band is directed by Donald Caneva and his assistant Jim Rich.

Fight special assessment in court

Group to protest streetlight tax

Several Arlington Heights property owners plan to file objections against being included in a special assessment tax district created to pay for streetlights on Northwest Highway between Highland Avenue and Wilke Road.

Thomas Duda, 830 N. Harvard Ave., Monday on behalf of seven residential property owners.

Duda said Thursday that official objections will be filed in Cook County Circuit Court in advance of the Sept. 20 deadline.

ABOUT 50 PROPERTY owners, including about 12 residential properties, are included in the special assessment district for the $186,000 lighting project, said Kenneth Stonesifer, attorney for the village's board of local improvements.

At least one commercial property owner, Sylvia Hamm, also has filed an objection to the special assessment district.

The lighting project calls for the installation of 48 poles with sodium-vapor lights. They will be placed on the south side of Northwest Highway on railroad-owned property, said William Bachem of the village's engineering department.

The residential property owners are being backed by the Ridge Park Homeowners' Assn.

"WHAT WE'RE trying to do is to get the assessments reduced," said Thomas Gillis, president of the homeowners' group. The average assessment for each is about $200, he said.

Commercial property owners were assessed about five times as much as residential property owners, Stonesifer said. For example, the assessment for Mrs. Hamm's three parcels totals $2,280.

But residential property owners should not be included at all, Duda said.

"We feel that because Northwest Highway is a state highway, the sodium-vapor lights will be an improvement that will benefit people using the highway. The predominant benefit will be accrued by the public at-large," Duda said.

DUDA SAID that the sodium-vapor lights will reduce the property values for the residential owners.

"We think that we can establish in court that we should not be included in the assessment district and, instead, that we should be compensated because, if anything, the residential property is being damaged," he said.

Duda said he will ask the village board Monday why no special assessment district was created to pay for new streetlights in the Scarsdale subdivision. The board agreed last month to ask the Illinois Dept. of Transportation for permission to use motor fuel tax funds for the Scarsdale project.

"Why does Arlington Heights favor Scarsdale over Ridge Park? If they can give it to them free, they can give it to us free," Duda said.

Stonesifer said Duda's arguments sounded like "standard objections" heard when residential properties are included in special assessment districts.

Three to observe traffic at 'Cove'

Three members of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will visit the Frenchmen's Cove subdivision in Arlington Heights next week to determine if traffic in the area creates a hazard for children walking to school.

Board Pres. Susan Rose and members Linda Sprechman and Barbara Farr offered to observe the traffic situation Monday morning after residents from Frenchmen's Cove Thursday night asked the board to reconsider its decision to eliminate school bus service from that area to Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove.

Dist. 21 offered free busing to the school for the past two years to about 10 students on Carriageway Drive and Frenchman's Cove because sidewalks in the area were not completed.

THE BOARD decided last month, however, to discontinue the bus service because sidewalks connecting the subdivision to the students' main route to school have been finished and it is no longer considered dangerous.

Stuart Weinstein, president of the Frenchmen's Cove Homeowners' Assn., said Thursday several parents in the subdivision believe the children's route to school still is hazardous because of the "high amount of automobile traffic and construction in the area."

Weber's report said "vehicular traffic created no hazard to any pedestrian during the survey period."

Dist. 59 teachers' contract approved by board at 8.2%

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers contract, which calls for an 8.2 per cent salary increase for the 1976-77 school year, has been approved by the board of education in a 4 to 2 vote.

The board approved the contract this week. The 8.2 per cent salary increase includes a 4 per cent hike for each additional year of teaching experience in Dist. 59.

Easy, clean living secret to long life

by NANCY GUTLER

The guest of honor had the loudest and strongest voice in the group. Only the writing on the cake revealed that the singing was to celebrate Albert (Poppa) Wehrs' 100th birthday.

The 15-year resident of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton, began his second century Sunday with as much enthusiasm and humor as he became known for during his first 100 yeas.

About 15 members of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church of Glenview, where Wehrs' father, W. H., was a minister, held a cake and ice cream party for him Wednesday night.

His room is filled with plants and posters he received as gifts.

"I'VE LIVED A pretty easy, clean life," the bachelor said when asked for the key to his longevity, "but I can't figure out why I've lived so long."

He was nicknamed Poppa by the staff at the Lutheran home so long ago that no one can remember exactly why. But his wit and independence have made him a favorite among employees.

Wehrs, a Lake County native, said he remembers riding the streetcar from Glenview to his job as a construction pipe salesman in Chicago. But, he added, over the years he sold "just about everything."

He said longevity was common in his family and that his father and some of his brothers lived past 90.

"But," he added with obvious pride "I beat 'em all."

A birthday celebration sing-a-long.

Aren't we through partying yet?

A surprise from dear friends.

superintendent for instruction, Palatine Township Dist. 15.

Tully defended the proposed 16 per cent assessment level Thursday as a means of avoiding large increases in home owner's assessments and taxes brought about by an 8 to 12 per cent annual inflation rate in home prices.

Tully said the proposal to reduce the assessment level came about when his office began the 1976 quadrennial reassessment of three city townships and seven suburban townships, including Wheeling, Palatine and Niles.

Tully said he found inflation of homes ranging from 8 to 12 per cent per year, causing dramatic increases in assessed valuation and resulting property tax bills.

TULLY ALSO HAS proposed lowering assessments on commercial property in blighted areas from the standard 33 or 40 per cent of market value to 16 per cent for a five-year period as an incentive for industrial redevelopments in depressed sections of the county.

Many school and park districts already are at their legal maximum tax rates and are opposed to anything that will reduce the total assessed valuation in their district.

Stephen L. Doty, associate executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards, said that Chicago and suburban schools are "under the greatest stress and strain of any time of their life."

Wesley Gibbs, superintendent of Niles Township High School Dist. 219, said school officials have three main objections to Tully's plan.

FIRST, IT IS the assessor's job to fix the fair value of real estate without fear or favoritism and Tully's plan favors single-family homeowners, he said.

Second, the proposal would put the county board between the state and local school districts as a new arbitor of school finances.

And third, the proposal, which would apply countywide but be implemented as areas are reassessed over the next four years, violates the Illinois Constitution, which requires that assessments be uniform throughout the county.

Eugene Berghoff, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of Park Districts said that if the county board lowers the level of assessments it will leave many park districts "facing financial chaos." He predicted parks staff and program cuts if the proposal is adopted.

Attorney Julian D'Esposito, representing the Illinois Assn. of School Boards, accused Tully of "forsaking his statutory oath to assess without fear or favor and proclaiming himself by press release as the guardian of certain voting taxpayers."

D'Esposito said the proposal was of doubtful legality and would certainly lead to lawsuits that would threaten the revenue of every governmental unit in Cook County.

Village man injured in two-car wreck

A two-car crash in Arlington Heights Thursday morning resulted in minor injuries to a 19-year-old village man, police reported.

Christopher Knaack, 202 W. Euclid St., suffered head cuts and scrapes at 7:54 a.m. Thursday when a car he was riding in, driven by Bradley A. Fuchs, 19. of 823 N. Highland St., Arlington Heights, collided with a car driven by a 16-year-old Arlington Heights boy.

Police ticketed the 16-year-old for failure to yield right-of-way after he allegedly turned into the path of Fuchs' oncoming auto at Northwest Highway and Vail Street.

Arlington Heights firefighters rushed Knaack to Northwest Community Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Easy, clean living secret to long life

by NANCY GUTLER

The guest of honor had the loudest and strongest voice in the group. Only the writing on the cake revealed that the singing was to celebrate Albert (Poppa) Wehrs' 100th birthday.

The 15-year resident of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton, began his second century Sunday with as much enthusiasm and humor as he became known for during his first 100 yeas.

About 15 members of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church of Glenview, where Wehrs' father, W. H., was a minister, held a cake and ice cream party for him Wednesday night.

His room is filled with plants and posters he received as gifts.

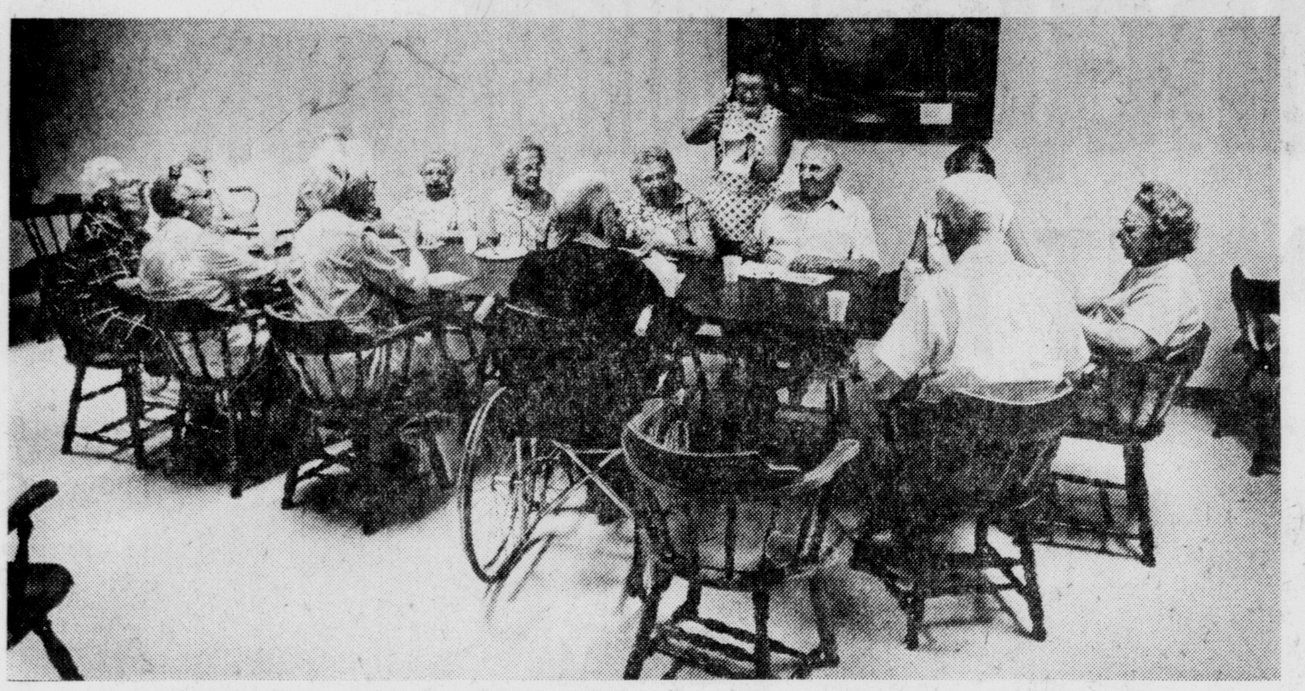
"I'VE LIVED A pretty easy, clean life," the bachelor said when asked for the key to his longevity, "but I can't figure out why I've lived so long."

He was nicknamed Poppa by the staff at the Lutheran home so long ago that no one can remember exactly why. But his wit and independence have made him a favorite among employees.

Wehrs, a Lake County native, said he remembers riding the streetcar from Glenview to his job as a construction pipe salesman in Chicago. But, he added, over the years he sold "just about everything."

He said longevity was common in his family and that his father and some of his brothers lived past 90.

"But," he added with obvious pride "I beat 'em all."



A birthday celebration sing-a-long.

Aren't we through partying yet?

A surprise from dear friends.

superintendent for instruction, Palatine Township Dist. 15.

Tully defended the proposed 16 per cent assessment level Thursday as a means of avoiding large increases in home owner's assessments and taxes brought about by an 8 to 12 per cent annual inflation rate in home prices.

Tully said the proposal to reduce the assessment level came about when his office began the 1976 quadrennial reassessment of three city townships and seven suburban townships, including Wheeling, Palatine and Niles.

Tully said he found inflation of homes ranging from 8 to 12 per cent per year, causing dramatic increases in assessed valuation and resulting property tax bills.

TULLY ALSO HAS proposed lowering assessments on commercial property in blighted areas from the standard 33 or 40 per cent of market value to 16 per cent for a five-year period as an incentive for industrial redevelopments in depressed sections of the county.

Many school and park districts already are at their legal maximum tax rates and are opposed to anything that will reduce the total assessed valuation in their district.

Stephen L. Doty, associate executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards, said that Chicago and suburban schools are "under the greatest stress and strain of any time of their life."

The way we see it

Kissinger's shuttle plan daring

U. S. Sec. of State Henry Kissinger is mapping plans for a new round of shuttle diplomacy. This time his route will be through the inflamed nations of southern Africa.

The new Kissinger effort might be the most daring of his diplomatic blitzes, and he deserves some praise for courage in involving himself in the imbroglio.

The desperate situation in Rhodesia, South Africa and neighboring countries needs the full diplomatic attention of the world's super powers before a full scale war develops.

We hope Kissinger's new initiative is not a high risk effort to add prestige to the diplomatically lackluster Ford Administration.

The secretary is working to foster majority rule in Rhodesia and to have South Africa grant independence to Namibia (South-West Africa).

The concept of majority rule, which gives the black population control over the long dominant white minority, might be a stumbling block unless Kissinger also finds a way to preserve minority rights. A reversal of African racism will not let the people of these nations develop in a positive manner.

Civil rights also must be secured for the 2.4 million so-called coloreds of South Africa. These racially mixed people are less secure than either the black majority or white minority in South Africa.

Juggling the demands of all of the parties involved will be no easy task. However, the secretary has used his personal style of diplomacy with success in the past, and there is some hope that this new initiative will result in a diplomatic rather than military settlement of the problem. The resources of these developing nations should be directed toward improving the lot of all citizens and not toward a bloodbath.

Nation's No. 2 team is still No. 1 at home

In the last century the local baseball team provided the rallying point for people in thousands of communities as friends and foes alike forgot their differences and joined in to cheer their men in knickers and caps.

The phenomenon is still alive in Arlington Heights.

Local residents were caught up in the amazing story of coach Lloyd Meyer's Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team, an assortment of teenage ballplayers who overcame incredible odds to reach the national finals of the American Legion tournament. Fans all over town were asking, "How did we do today? Have you heard?"

Other baseball enthusiasts made the trip to Manchester, N.H. and still others tuned in to the games on the radio. Loyal fans followed the saga from state tournament to regional tourney to World Series.

It was a long but rewarding journey for Meyer and his dedicated young men. At times, it was also a bit unbelievable. Sponsored now by Des Plaines Post 36, and bankrolled by Bill Cook Buick, the Arlington Heights team had nearly come to a disastrous end two years ago when the local post pulled their support.

But through it all, Meyer's team survived — surmounting even the disappointment of defeat by a single run in the final game. For that, they can be proud.

And Arlington Heights can be proud, too.

Park district needs reevaluation

As a resident of the Village of Buffalo Grove, I would like to reply to the editorial in The Herald on Friday, Sept. 3. It is about time that the inefficiency of the park board is recognized by the voting public. The park board has double-talked the residents for long enough. It is time to question the park board and receive some answers. Why do they not respond to offers of volunteer time and materials from residents? Why do they not answer correspondence from citizen groups and civic organizations? Why do they not accept resident help to improve present facilities?

The park site in Strathmore Grove was refused by the park board. Now that the village has requested and received improvements on the site from Levitt, the park board will "reconsider" the site. Twin Grove School is another example of inefficiency. After three years of promises, it finally was allowed to become a "health problem" before the park board cleaned the site. Now it remains a "dirt pile." Raupp Memorial, supposedly a historical museum, has been open a year without the acceptance of resident help to furnish and decorate the building. Longfellow and Cooper school sites also have never been quite finished, although residents have offered equipment and manpower to the park board. For four years, residents tried to put in a passive park by Willow Stream Park, only to be refused by the park board.

Buffalo Grove is a rapidly growing northwestern suburb. If the park board continues to be allowed to operate in its present manner, the village will grow in every area but parks and recreation.

Park district programs provide not only for relaxation but places and programs for our children to grow and learn. It is a shame that slowly, but surely, the park board is failing to meet these needs.

Police called to move Wheeling band; residents ask for band's forgiveness

On the evening of Aug. 31, 1976, the Wheeling High School Marching Band was practicing street marching, much to the delight of the residents in our four-block subdivision. Whenever the band chose to use our subdivision for street practice in the past, the sidewalks were filled with enthusiastic supporters of all ages. This event was always something to look forward to and enjoy on a warm, balmy summer night.

On this particular evening, the band stopped for instructions on Twilight Lane when one resident took it upon himself to be the spokesman for the whole neighborhood. This resident then proceeded to call the police to have the band dispersed because he couldn't wait 5 seconds to pull his car into his driveway.

As parents, we encourage our young people to make wise use of their time, to be involved in worthwhile activities and to contribute constructively to their community.

We want those students who are in the Wheeling Marching Band to know that only one person was responsible for the dispersement. We, as residents of this area also, support the Wheeling High School Band and welcome you back next summer.

New war threatens subcontinent

Bangladesh, India near conflict?

by NEA/London Economist News Service

DACCA — (LENS) — The fumblings towards yet another conflict on the Indian subcontinent have begun. The nine-month-old military government of Bangladesh seems to be shaping up for a confrontation with its giant neighbor, India.

For the past few months Bangladesh's military leader, Major General Ziaur Rahman, who seized power last November, has been attempting to deal with the causes of the quarrel by discreet diplomacy. But it is now being said in Bangladesh's capital, Dacca, that these approaches have proved fruitless, and the Bangladeshis have decided to go for broke by confronting India publicly and even preparing for the possibility of a real conflict.

Last weekend General Ziaur Rahman told a widely cheering gathering in Dacca of Mukti Bahini "freedom fighters" — the men who fought against Pakistan in 1971 — that they "might soon have to fight again to protect the independence of Bangladesh." He announced that the Mukti Bahini would get new military training, so that they could reinforce the 65,000 men of the Bangladeshi army.

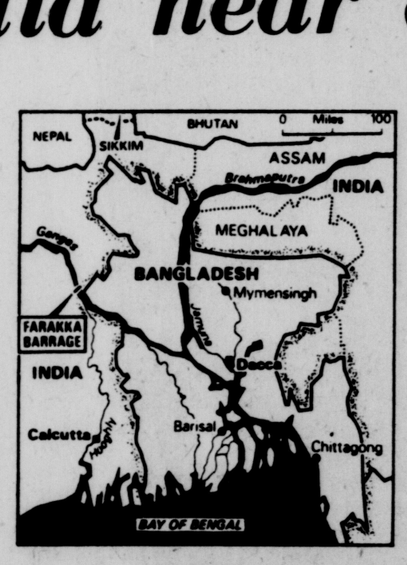
The warning came three days after General Ziaur Rahman launched a strong attack on India at the Colombo non-aligned summit. During the conference Bangladeshi delegates lobbied for support against India and called it "neo-colonialist" and "expansionist."

In the past month there has been a resurgence of strident anti-Indian propaganda in the Bangladeshi press, with editorial writers talking of a "man-made tragedy which could engulf the whole subcontinent."

The dispute with India involves two issues.

First, Bangladesh alleges that India has broken an agreement drawn up when the $300 million Farakka barrage was completed 11 miles inside Indian territory. The barrage complex, with a 20-mile feeder canal, is designed to divert water from the Ganges to the Hooghly river in an attempt to clear away the dangerous silting of the waterways around India's port of Calcutta. According to Bangladeshi officials, the two countries agreed to conduct a brief test diversion of water in May, 1975, but India continued syphoning after the test ended.

The diversion has had a marked effect on Bangladesh's agriculture. According to B. M. Abbas, the presidential adviser on irrigation and water control, during the dry season from mid-March to mid-May more than 70,000 acres of paddy were lost to drought; nearly two thirds of the tube-wells could not be used; and serious sanitation problems developed in the south of Bangladesh as salt water began seeping up canals and rivers. The cost this year alone has been more than $2 million, and this will grow.



General Ziaur's second accusation is that India is training and arming guerrilla groups which since January have been making sabotage raids into the province of Mymensingh from base camps just inside the Indian border in the Meghalaya area.

The guerrillas are mainly those supporters of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman who fled Bangladesh after the overthrow and murder of the sheikh a year ago. They are led by a flamboyant hero of the 1971 war against Pakistan, Kader Siddique, and have blown up bridges and government buildings and murdered local officials in the north.

The martial law authorities in Dacca assert that they are trained by India's Border Security Force, and claim to have captured documents and weapons proving the Indian connection.

No doubt Bangladesh, at least in public, is exaggerating both issues. But they have now become the focus of intense anti-Indian feelings, the depth of which surprises even Western diplomats. Pehaps part of the government's aim is to use this as a means of uniting Bangladesh, no small attraction in a country which has gone through three coups d'etat in 12 months and is facing a new round of instability as next February's election approaches.

India's motives are more obscure. Admiral M. H. Khan, the Bangladesh navy's chief of staff hazards the guess that India wants to "destabilize" his country in the hope of imposing a more pro-Indian administration in Dacca.

Given Indai's high-handed policies in the past towards its smaller neighbors, Sikkim and Nepal, other senior officials claim that it is just another manifestation of Indian "arrogance."

The prospect of overt Indian military action against Bangladesh might seem remote. What Indian government, after all, would want to take over 70 million poverty-stricken and hostile Moslems?

But the fear in Dacca is that, if Mrs. Gandhi stumbles on the road to her New Democracy in India, she might exploit the quarrel with Bangladesh to create a wave of jingoist popularity to keep her in power.

A shopping trip for money: You need a few thousand dollars for, say, 90 days. A business deal. Earnest money on a property until you've closed the deal on your old house. To cover certain current expenses in anticipation of future income.

Banks A. B and C all quote different interest rates to you. Close, but different. You think it over for a week and inquire again. They all quote still different rates, having changed slightly from their previous levels. The best deal from last week is now the least desirable, and vice versa.

Yes, the cost of money, as with any commodity — apples, bread, land, professional services and so on — can fluctuate from day to day, from lender to lender and in some cases from customer to customer. You may prefer to do your borrowing where you do your banking, and indeed that might be the best route, but it could pay to shop around from time to time.

Understanding why the cost of renting someone else's money can vary will help you to be a better money shopper and money manager. Interest rates can be affected by a number of factors, major ones being these:

• Competition among bansk for both deposits and good loan customers. It might be difficult to determine which of two or three banks offers the best deal all around. While a specific loan rate may be identical at all three, there may be distinct differences in the costs of other services you may want to use. Compare, for example, the service charges for checking accounts, safety deposit boxes, stop payment orders, traveler's checks and so forth.

• The money supply. If good Pippin apples are scarce this fall, their price will rise. If they're plentiful, they'll be cheaper. It's the same with money.

As far back as the mid-'60s, the ebbs and flows of the national money supply were barely visible ripples, thus affecting the cost of money relatively slightly. But the economic upheavals of recent years have caused more frequent and more violent ups and downs in the cost of money. The bigger the borrower, the more the effect is felt. But it does filter down to the smaller borrower as well.

Don't feel bad. Banks themselves are often heavy borrowers and they, too, feel the ups and downs in money costs. Some of it they pass along to borrowers. Some of it affects their own earnings.

• Internal functions within a given bank. They can range from occasional changes in the loan operations manual (the so-called "book" that loan officers go by), to the personality and moods of individual loan officers. Loans are made not just on the basis of customer loyalty. Credit worthiness is also an important factor in both the granting and pricing of a given loan. And different lenders can interpret a given credit history differently. The resulting loan may be priced accordingly.

One ploy that would-be borrowers sometimes try is to tell a loan officer that they can get the loan cheaper at a bank across the street. They'll probably be told to go and do so. And, if you can, you probably should.

Rents in Hong Kong out of sight

HONG KONG (UPI) — American companies, outraged by newly soaring rents in this already expensive Asian commercial center, are threatening to bypass Hong Kong in favor of countries with more reasonable accommodations for their executives.

Multinational corporations and foreign consulates generally lease living quarters for their employes to assure adequate housing in the overcrowded colony. A rent-free, luxury apartment is one of the perquisites to attract top talent to the post. At the least, corporations pay living allowances but even so it is not uncommon for an employe to pay half his earnings toward rent.

Edwin H. Burrell, president of the American Chamber of Commerce here, said many U.S. firms are taking a militant attitude tward local landlords following recent removal of rent controls on company and government-held leases. Privately held leases remain controlled, with increases limited to 21 per cent.

Local landlords have demanded rent increases of 30 to 60 per cent and an occasional one has tried for 80 to 100 per cent or more. Americans and others who lease call these increases exorbitant, inflationary and plain blackmail. The landlords view the hikes as compensation for the years of controls since 1970.

The Rating and Valuation Dept., taking into account the landlords' arguments that rent control forced property owners to subsidize business operations, said rents on company or government-held apartments which were under control should be increased by about 50 per cent to bring them to a fair market value.

It estimated most company employes could expect to pay from $1,000 to $1,300 a month rent.

1977 U.S. budget House, Senate OK

The House and Senate Thursday approved slightly different versions of a 1977 federal budget which supporters said will create more than a million new jobs and critics said might reignite inflation and set back economic recovery. The votes were 55 to 23 in the Senate and 227 to 151 in the House. The versions now go to a House-Senate conference to iron out differences. The Senate version calls for $412.8 billion in spending during the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1; the House, $413.2 billion. Both are some $19 billion more than President Ford proposed last January and would produce a deficit of over $50 billion

'Time short for UAW-Ford pact'

The United Auto Workers' chief bargainer at Ford Motor Co. warned Thursday the company's delay in making a second contract offer may not leave negotiators enough time to avoid an economy-wrenching strike by 170,000 workers Tuesday. "It's getting awfully, awfully close," said Ken Bannon, UAW vice president who heads the negotiating team at the No. 2 auto company. With the strike deadline less than six days away, bargainers failed to meet Thursday for the second straight day, and Bannon left Ford World Headquarters in the Detroit suburb of Dearborn at noon. Bannon said he hoped company negotiators were using the time constructively to completely revise their initial wage offer which the union quickly rejected.

CBers carry out? 10-4

A fast foods restaurant in Elgin has installed equipment, including an antenna, that will enable it to take orders via Citizens Band radio. Jerry Bear, the manager, said he got the idea listening to CB radio and then determined there were no objections to the service. He said hamburger lovers within 15 miles of Elgin can call in their orders on Channel 1 and collect them from a special window. The restaurant's "handle" is "Radio Mac."

Insurance firms invest assets

More than two thirds of assets of U.S. insurance companies are invested in corporate securities and mortgages. The Institute of Life Insurance says about 10 per cent is invested in stocks, with the remainder given over to government securities, real estate and policy loans.

Arlington firm gets U.S. pact

The U.S. Small Business Administration has announced a new government contract for Frederick Quinn Construction Co. in Arlington Heights.

Under a federal program, which sets aside a portion of government procurement for small businesses, Omaha Corps of Engineer Procurement Office awarded a contract in the amount of $427,571 to the company for communications electronics maintenance for facilities and base engineering at Chicago O'Hare.

"This set-aside program is part of SBA's continuing effort to assure a fair share of federal contracts to small businesses to enable these small firms to develop and grow," John L. Smith, Illinois District representative of the state's small business administration said.

S&L unit to meet in Florida

The annual convention of the Illinois Savings and Loan League will convene Sept. 19-22 at Marco Island, Fla.

Convention highlights will include discussion of the future of mortgage instruments by Henry Cassidy of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board; a report on the Commission for Change which is proposing financial institutional reform to Congress; Rep. John Leon of Chicago will look at the legislative process on the eve of his retirement from the Illinois General Assembly and as chairman of the Banks and S&L Associations Committee; a speech on future directions for the business by John A. Hardin president-elect of the U.S. League of Savings Associations; Robert Bartell of the FHLB of Chicago and Tim Griffin Illinois S&L Commissioners will give regulators' viewpoints; and George Howley, U.S. League and George Dalton, Midland National Bank, Milwaukee, will review the future implications for EFTS.

Stocks fall; Dow drops 6.07

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell Thursday for the second consecutive session because of profit taking in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange amid speculation oil prices might rise to create more economic uncertainty.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 6.07 points to 986.87. It dropped 3.65 points Wednesday after approaching the 1,000 level. Investors have been disappointed by the Dow's failure on numerous occasions this year to hold above that level.

The NYSE common stock index lost 0.29 to 55.72 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 18 cents. Declines topped advances, 867 to 510, among the 1,868 issues crossing the tape.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 0.54 to 104.40.

Volume totaled 16,540,000 shares, down from the 19,750,000 traded Wednesday, the busiest day in a month on the Big Board.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased two cents, compared with 1,810,000 traded Wednesday.

Group seeks $200,000 in grants

Northwest Municipal Conference officials are seeking nearly $200,000 in grants from state and federal agencies.

William Muhlenfeld, the conference's executive director, said the conference has recently received a $10,000 grant from the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs.

He said other grants being sought include $141,488 to establish a temporary shelter home for boys, $22,500 from the Illinois Dept. of Personnel $22,984 from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to hire a transportation planner.

MUHLENFELD SAID he is confident the grants for personnel and the transportation planner will be approved, but indicated the request for the shelter home might have to be scaled down.

"There is $225,000 available for these projects and there are already two other grant requests from Chicago for $80,000 pending."

He said the transportation planner would help local officials work with the state and other agencies on problems and be available to review new state and federal programs.

Muhlenfeld outlined the status of the grant requests for local officials at the conference's monthly meeting in Hanover Park.

HE ALSO ISSUED two position papers that will be presented today to the Illinois Municipal Problems Commission, an advisory group for the Illinois General Assembly.

Conference officials voted to ask the commission to consider the creation of a state agency to manage water resources.

The request is the latest step by local municipal officials to deal with the dwindling water supply in the area. The proposal will be presented today.

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter was the only member of the conference present at Wednesday's meeting to object to the proposal.

"THIS IS A whole new agency, I would have to discuss it with my board before we could vote in favor of it," she said.

Area officials hope the state will create a water resources management authority to take control of a wide range of water related matters.

A top priority of the group is to secure an allocation of Lake Michigan water.

Muhlenfeld also reported U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has attached a rider to the Rivers and Harbors Act which would create a 10-year study on the effects of tripling the amount of water taken from Lake Michigan.

THE CONFERENCE also intends to present the municipal problems commission with a report on maintenance of traffic signals.

A number of officials raised complaints about a revised Illinois Dept. of Transportation regulation shifting most of the cost of maintaining signals to local communities.

"This is just another example of the bureaucrats making legislation," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones.

The group also is planning to prepare a report regarding a uniform ordinance for local communities requiring service stations to post the price of gasoline on signs outside the station. No final recommendation was developed by the group.

HAYTER ALSO told the group about a suggestion she has raised with the Hoffman Estates Village Board to require vandals to repay the cost of their destruction by working on public improvement projects.

She said ths type of program is better than requiring parents to be liable for the damages caused by their children.

Mrs. Hayter's proposal drew no reaction from any of the members of the group.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish also suggested that the newly created Village of Prospect Heights be invited to join the conference. He indicated that the membership fee levied for all member communities be waived because Prospect Heights has not yet received any tax revenues.

HOWEVER, Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert indicated he opposed the idea of waiving the membership fee.

"I don't want to sound like a bad neighbor, but I don't think my village board would go along with underwriting the cost of the membership," he said.

The conference was plagued for many years with disagreement with local officials over paying for a full-time staff for the organization.

The group agreed to hold further discussion with Prospect Heights officials before coming to any decision regarding waiving the membership fees.

The conference currently assesses member communities 5 cents per person. Muhlenfeld said the group receives about $26,000 annually through the assessment.

Group seeks $200,000 in grants

Northwest Municipal Conference officials are seeking nearly $200,000 in grants from state and federal agencies.

William Muhlenfeld, the conference's executive director, said the conference has recently received a $10,000 grant from the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs.

He said other grants being sought include $141,488 to establish a temporary shelter home for boys, $22,500 from the Illinois Dept. of Personnel $22,984 from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to hire a transportation planner.

MUHLENFELD SAID he is confident the grants for personnel and the transportation planner will be approved, but indicated the request for the shelter home might have to be scaled down.

"There is $225,000 available for these projects and there are already two other grant requests from Chicago for $80,000 pending."

He said the transportation planner would help local officials work with the state and other agencies on problems and be available to review new state and federal programs.

Muhlenfeld outlined the status of the grant requests for local officials at the conference's monthly meeting in Hanover Park.

HE ALSO ISSUED two position papers that will be presented today to the Illinois Municipal Problems Commission, an advisory group for the Illinois General Assembly.

Conference officials voted to ask the commission to consider the creation of a state agency to manage water resources.

The request is the latest step by local municipal officials to deal with the dwindling water supply in the area. The proposal will be presented today.

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter was the only member of the conference present at Wednesday's meeting to object to the proposal.

"THIS IS A whole new agency, I would have to discuss it with my board before we could vote in favor of it," she said.

Area officials hope the state will create a water resources management authority to take control of a wide range of water related matters.

A top priority of the group is to secure an allocation of Lake Michigan water.

Muhlenfeld also reported U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has attached a rider to the Rivers and Harbors Act which would create a 10-year study on the effects of tripling the amount of water taken from Lake Michigan.

THE CONFERENCE also intends to present the municipal problems commission with a report on maintenance of traffic signals.

A number of officials raised complaints about a revised Illinois Dept. of Transportation regulation shifting most of the cost of maintaining signals to local communities.

"This is just another example of the bureaucrats making legislation," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones.

The group also is planning to prepare a report regarding a uniform ordinance for local communities requiring service stations to post the price of gasoline on signs outside the station. No final recommendation was developed by the group.

HAYTER ALSO told the group about a suggestion she has raised with the Hoffman Estates Village Board to require vandals to repay the cost of their destruction by working on public improvement projects.

She said ths type of program is better than requiring parents to be liable for the damages caused by their children.

Mrs. Hayter's proposal drew no reaction from any of the members of the group.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Edward Fabish also suggested that the newly created Village of Prospect Heights be invited to join the conference. He indicated that the membership fee levied for all member communities be waived because Prospect Heights has not yet received any tax revenues.

HOWEVER, Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert indicated he opposed the idea of waiving the membership fee.

"I don't want to sound like a bad neighbor, but I don't think my village board would go along with underwriting the cost of the membership," he said.

The conference was plagued for many years with disagreement with local officials over paying for a full-time staff for the organization.

The group agreed to hold further discussion with Prospect Heights officials before coming to any decision regarding waiving the membership fees.

The conference currently assesses member communities 5 cents per person. Muhlenfeld said the group receives about $26,000 annually through the assessment.

THE PEOPLE of Vilcabamba live in simple huts made of mud and sticks with thatched roofs. Women, such as Senora Defilia Toledo de Carpio, 84, upper left, often keep their dark hair as long as they live. Micaela Quezada, center, is 104 years old.

The Vilcabambans of Ecuador

They live to be 100 and more

by GENIE CAMPBELL

For most of 1974 Grace Halsell lived in the small, isolated village of Vilcabamba in the Andean Mountains of southern Ecuador.

Practically removed from the mainstream of civilization, life there, at least by American standards, is very tough and unyielding.

There is no plumbing or electricity in the village. Walking is the chief, sometimes only, mode of transportation. A few viejos are affluent enough to own donkeys on which they can ride into town.

But Gabriel Sanchez, 113, climbs the steep El Chaupi Mountain to work six days a week, cultivating his small plot of corn with a crude hoe. Manuel Ramon, 110, does the same. And Gabriel Erazo, 132, still flirts and claims to have a romantic interest in women.

THE VILCABAMBANS are the oldest living people in the Western Hemisphere. Out of 800 persons residing in the remote village, a dozen are over 100. None of the centenarians wear glasses or hearing aids. Few even need the aid of a cane or crutch. Neither, tests showed, have they ever suffered a broken bone.

Grace Halsell lived as one of the Vilcabambans, sharing their huts, food and daily routines. She has written about her experiences and impressions in "Los Viejos," published this month by Rodale Press, $6.95.

Much has already been written about the Hunzas in Pakistan and the Abkhasians in Russia though no one "from the outside has ever lived among them," said Ms. Halsell while visiting Chicago last week.

"I had lived in Peru for three years and spoke Spanish fluently. I felt at home. I knew I would be welcome," she continued.

Grace Halsell had no trouble fitting in. Switching cultures is not really new to her.

Through medication and sun-tanning the author turned her skin black and went to live in Mississippi and Harlem. She then told about her experiences in "Soul Sister." Later she lived on the reservation with a Navajo Indian family for "Bessie Yellowhair."

"I USED TO think discrimination was strongest against blacks, then the Indians . . . now I know it's age.

"All of a sudden we're recognizing the aging problem in this country. Every day 4,000 people turn 65. To classify them as old is terrible, because, unfortunately, we tend to become as others perceive us," said Ms. Halsell.

"I didn't used to tell my age. I'm 52. But in Vilcabamba I was called young, little one."

Yet, though the petite author was at least 50 years younger than many of the local residents, she had trouble keeping up with them on their hikes and accompanying them in their daily physical labor.

The viejos are amused that outsiders are even interested in studying them. They are shocked to learn that one out of every two Americans is overweight. They can't understand why.

"What we do is very natural — eat, sleep and work," they told Ms. Halsell. The viejos get up with the sun and retire at dark. They eat very little meat, relying on beans for protein. Much of what they consume is raw. There is no eating between meals. And by American standards their portions are minimal.

"IT ISN'T HOW old you live to be. It's living well as long as you live," said Ms. Halsell, whose visit to the valley has since greatly influenced her own lifestyle and diet.

She avoids meat all together and also white sugar and white flour. She tries to buy only natural foods, without additives or preservatives. "It isn't always easy to do," she admits.

Most of all Ms. Halsell has tried to eat less and exercise more. Walking miles a day is one of the biggest, most important factors in keeping the centenarians of Vilcabamba fit and active, as confirmed by doctors sent into the valley.

"Americans' preoccupation with eating is compensation for loneliness," continued Ms. Halsell, who describes in her book how the viejos live in very close-knit families.

"They thought I was poor because I was a woman alone. They adopted me. There is a great deal of loving, touching and supporting one another. Talking is their main form of recreation, an art that was lost in this country 100 years ago," continued the native Texan.

"THEY TALK ABOUT such things as the meaning of life and whether there is life after death. Spirituality is very much a part of their lives," she said.

"The old people have taught me more than anyone else. They are the greatest example of courage and beauty. Ramon's meaning of live is learning how to die. That makes sense — the acceptance of death — living with death. We deny it because we are afraid of it. The viejos think every day is a bonus," said Ms. Halsell.

Extremely disciplined people, the viejos rarely smoke and never drink. Occasionally they will accept a cigaret as a gift. One villager, 91 years old, is considered a chain smoker, though he claims he doesn't inhale.

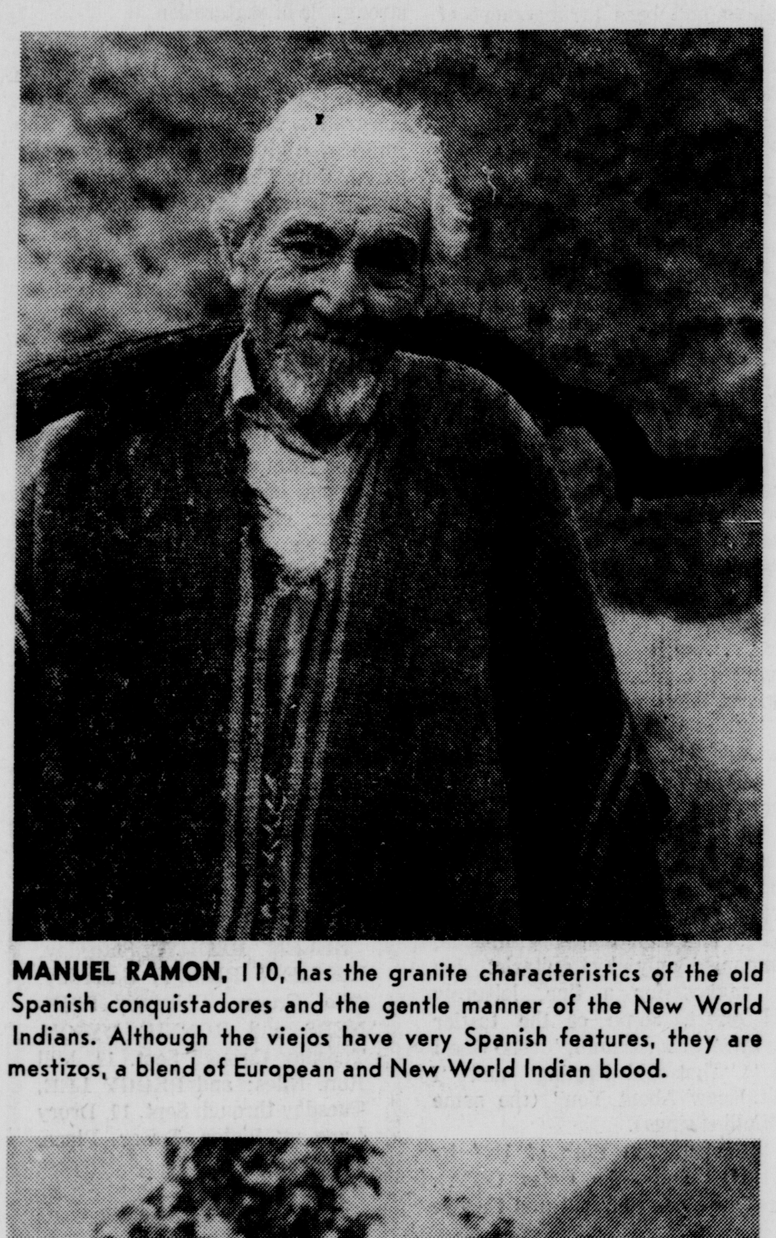
Like heart disease and cancer, depression for the viejos is also nonexistent.

"It isn't stress that is the villain but how one deals with it," said Ms. Halsell, who tries to keep her own life in Washington, D.C., as simple as possible. "The viejos don't worry about what they can't change. They accept their limitations.

"ONE MAN WHOSE house burned down for the third time said, when he learned what depressed meant, 'Yes, I'm a little depressed.' "

But future generations of Vilcabambas are not expected to live as long as the viejos. New highways being built are bringing sugar and soft drinks to the children. They have discovered candy and ice cream.

Added Ms. Halsell, "There is something about sweets that is almost addictive."



MANUEL RAMON, 110, has the granite characteristics of the old Spanish conquistadores and the gentle manner of the New World Indians. Although the viejos have very Spanish features, they are mestizos, a blend of European and New World Indian blood.

THE FIRST TIME Grace Halsell, center, went to visit Gabriel Erazo at his mountain hut, his daughter Defilia, 80, was there. Though his wife has been dead 30 years, Erazo at 132 thinks he will again experience a great love.

Entertainer's happy living here

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Paul New's tune about the antics of a Palatine cop may poke fun at Chicago and its suburbs, but it's still evident that the Schaumburg singer and showman likes it here — and his audience responds.

The 32-year-old entertainer has played supper clubs from Lake Tahoe to Clear Lake, Iowa, but he's established Chicago as a home base because "next to Nevada, there's more entertainment here than any other city in the country," he says.

New's brand of entertainment ranges from his own "Ballad of Roberto Clemente," a song about the late Pittsburgh Pirates player which may be used as the theme for a new TV movie, to a hip-swiveling parody of Elvis Presley.

BUT WHETHER HE'S on stage or busy writing, New takes a lot of chances — "you may get a standing ovation one night and sour looks the next, but you've got to experiment or you're through," he says firmly.

New's act includes plenty of variety. In addition to belting out tunes as different as Don Ho's "I'll Remember You" and Jerry Lee Lewis' "Shake It Baby Shake It," he plays several different instruments and takes time out for salty humor as well.

He's helped out by six versatile band members, all in their twenties who "keep me on my toes . . . their tastes rub off on me and keep me in touch with what's going on," New says with a laugh.

WHILE MOST OF his repertoire is borrowed from other composers, New keeps several of his own tunes in the act. His more than 150 songs include several about the Windy City. "Maryville" is dedicated to Father Smyth and the children at the Des Plaines academy. And although he has no plans for giving up his variety act, New admits a fascination for the writing life.

"I guess I'm always looking ahead," he says, "and I would like to be known as a writer someday. It would give me a kick to see other singers record my work."

New came by his interest in music naturally. His father operated several hotels and night clubs, and he grew up watching performers like Eddie Fischer and Harry Belafonte, a family friend. But despite his early initiation, New put in time on a psychology major and a fledgling sports career as a college halfback and a minor league baseball player before settling down to music.

NEW'S CURRENT schedule includes a grueling ratio of six or seven months on the road, the remainder of his time being spent with his wife and young son in Schaumburg.

"There are times when I wonder about it," says New of his 4 a.m. bedtimes, "but I've been doing it for so long that I don't think I could give it up. At least there's no danger of getting in a rut!"

New and his Third Edition will be appearing at the Pickwick House in Palatine through Sept. 18, with two shows on weeknights and three on Friday and Saturday.

Judy Collins' lyrics pure as ever on newest album

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

When one thinks of Judy Collins, the word that most readily comes to mind is chanteuse — more than just a mere singer, someone with all the lyricism and purity of tone the French word implies.

Collins is a much-loved artist. With her roots in folk music, she has reached a much wider pop audience in recent years — winning a Grammy with the Broadway song "Send in the Clowns" — yet never has the quality of her work suffered.

Her newest album, "Bread & Roses" (Elektra), is typically beautiful and impeccable, even though the song selection is not her strongest.

THE TITLE SONG, a James Oppenheim poem put to music by Mimi Farina, is the album's best, building from an a cappella Collins with chorus to a sturdy marching-type song of the women's rights movement. The only song in the album that Collins wrote herself, "Out Of Control," is a gentle love song with orchestra accompaniment. The arrangement is one of several strong ones on the album.

There is a trio of old songs from 1923, 1937 and 1944, the best an effective piano and bass arrangement of Duke Ellington's "I Didn't Know About You." Other songwriters tapped include friend Leonard Cohen, Andrew Gold and Elton John ("Come Down In Time").

Jane Olivor, too, has a clear, strong voice as demonstrated on her debut album, "First Night" (Columbia). But Olivor fills her singing with emotion. She is earthiness to Collins' purity.

IN MANY WAYS, Olivor reminds me of the early Barbra Streisand, but it's not because both are from Brooklyn. Both have the same ability, soul if you will, to take well-known songs and reinterpret them by digging new emotions out of the lyrics. The Olivor treatment of "Some Enchanted Evening" is a case in point You've never heard it sung this way before. Olivor, like Streisand, also seems to favor French lyric and other things French.

Among the album's many strong songs are "Morning, Noon and Nighttime," "Better Days" and "My First Night Alone Without You." It is the start of what promises to be a very remarkable career.

Other noteworthy new releases include:

• "Fitzgerald & Pass . . . Again" (Pablo). Fourteen songs with Ella, accompanied only by guitarist Joe Pass, makes for a fine, leisurely paced effort. Some of the tastier songs are " 'Tis Autumn," "The One I Love," "That Old Feeling" and "I Didn't Know About You" (the same song Collins sings).

• "Bigger Than Both of Us" by Daryl Hall and John Oates (RCA). It's called blue-eyed soul and they've got it with enough rock thrown in to make you want to dance. "Sarah Smile" was their breakthrough hit from the last album. I nominate "Back Together Again" for this album's rock hit and "Crazy Eyes" as the hot ballad. I6's a strong combination getting stronger.

• "Streetheart" by Dion (Warner Bros.). Dion proves he is no triple has-been (with the Belmonts, solo rocker and solo folkie) with this solid, well-crafted album.

"Lover Boy Supreme" with its good syncopation and rock feel should prove a winning single. Both the title song and "More To You" have a slight Latin feel, and Phil Everly's harmonies make "Queen of '59" a strong tale of maturation.

• "Music, Music" by Helen Reddy (Capitol). In all ways this is a disaster — poor song selection, over orchestration and ho-hum singing. The impression given is that nobody really cared. Only "Music Is My Life" has any spark and it is too little, too late.

Judy Collins' lyrics pure as ever on newest album

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

When one thinks of Judy Collins, the word that most readily comes to mind is chanteuse — more than just a mere singer, someone with all the lyricism and purity of tone the French word implies.

Collins is a much-loved artist. With her roots in folk music, she has reached a much wider pop audience in recent years — winning a Grammy with the Broadway song "Send in the Clowns" — yet never has the quality of her work suffered.

Her newest album, "Bread & Roses" (Elektra), is typically beautiful and impeccable, even though the song selection is not her strongest.

THE TITLE SONG, a James Oppenheim poem put to music by Mimi Farina, is the album's best, building from an a cappella Collins with chorus to a sturdy marching-type song of the women's rights movement. The only song in the album that Collins wrote herself, "Out Of Control," is a gentle love song with orchestra accompaniment. The arrangement is one of several strong ones on the album.

There is a trio of old songs from 1923, 1937 and 1944, the best an effective piano and bass arrangement of Duke Ellington's "I Didn't Know About You." Other songwriters tapped include friend Leonard Cohen, Andrew Gold and Elton John ("Come Down In Time").

Jane Olivor, too, has a clear, strong voice as demonstrated on her debut album, "First Night" (Columbia). But Olivor fills her singing with emotion. She is earthiness to Collins' purity.

IN MANY WAYS, Olivor reminds me of the early Barbra Streisand, but it's not because both are from Brooklyn. Both have the same ability, soul if you will, to take well-known songs and reinterpret them by digging new emotions out of the lyrics. The Olivor treatment of "Some Enchanted Evening" is a case in point You've never heard it sung this way before. Olivor, like Streisand, also seems to favor French lyric and other things French.

Among the album's many strong songs are "Morning, Noon and Nighttime," "Better Days" and "My First Night Alone Without You." It is the start of what promises to be a very remarkable career.

Other noteworthy new releases include:

• "Fitzgerald & Pass . . . Again" (Pablo). Fourteen songs with Ella, accompanied only by guitarist Joe Pass, makes for a fine, leisurely paced effort. Some of the tastier songs are " 'Tis Autumn," "The One I Love," "That Old Feeling" and "I Didn't Know About You" (the same song Collins sings).

• "Bigger Than Both of Us" by Daryl Hall and John Oates (RCA). It's called blue-eyed soul and they've got it with enough rock thrown in to make you want to dance. "Sarah Smile" was their breakthrough hit from the last album. I nominate "Back Together Again" for this album's rock hit and "Crazy Eyes" as the hot ballad. I6's a strong combination getting stronger.

• "Streetheart" by Dion (Warner Bros.). Dion proves he is no triple has-been (with the Belmonts, solo rocker and solo folkie) with this solid, well-crafted album.

"Lover Boy Supreme" with its good syncopation and rock feel should prove a winning single. Both the title song and "More To You" have a slight Latin feel, and Phil Everly's harmonies make "Queen of '59" a strong tale of maturation.

• "Music, Music" by Helen Reddy (Capitol). In all ways this is a disaster — poor song selection, over orchestration and ho-hum singing. The impression given is that nobody really cared. Only "Music Is My Life" has any spark and it is too little, too late.

'Survive!' tale of Andes plane crash

Review

When on Friday, Oct. 13, 1972, a planeful of Uruguayan soccer players crashed in the Andes Mountains, a survival story that weeks later shocked the South American nation and the world began to unfold.

Forty-five passengers boarded the plane for the excursion to Chile. Ten weeks later only 16 lived to tell a stagging tale of man's ultimate instict to live.

"Survive!" now playing in neighborhood theaters and drive-ins, attempts to tell that story but winds up a shallow, underdeveloped and sensationalized film.

Written and directed by Rene Cardona, "Survive!" is based on a nondescript book by Clay Blair Jr. and was apparently created more as a grab at potential box office receipts than a true report of what went on in the Andes.

FOR THOSE WHO read the outstanding best-seller "Alive" by Piers Paul Read, "Survive!" is a double disappointment. Where Read captured the agony of the ordeal and gave the reader an insight into the personalities and fears of the 16 survivors, the moviemakers made the 10 weeks look all too easy and characters blurred together, most nameless, some of the more important ignored completely.

In Read's book, an expedition from the crash site to the plane's shorn-off tail section in search of food and a battery was a monumental struggle. The three who went nearly froze to death, were wracked with fatigue in their undernourished state and experienced an explosion of feelings when they reached their objective.

In the movie, the three set off into the obviously artificial snow and, lo and behold, found the tail section while tramping blithely all the way.

THE BOOK ALSO details the horror and rationalization that accompanied the survivors' decision to eat the flesh of their dead in order to continue living. Promotional material on the movie would lead one to believe that "cannibalism" is what it's all about. There is little excuse for the filmmaker's prolonged scene of a survivor gritting his teeth, pulling away the skin and cutting strips of flesh.

Where the book dealt with this shocking reality with empathy, the movie gives little understanding of the trauma this act evoked, both when it happened and later when the world was told. In "Survive!" the decision to eat the dead was made in moments, and the act itself was nothing more than shots of anonymous grim-faced men taking the first taste.

THE FINAL LETDOWN of the movie is the rescue of the 16, preceded by a 10-day trek b two survivors into the unknown peaks of the mountains. From the moment the real-life decision was made for the team to go in search of civilization, the men were trained, given extra rations and catered to by others at the wreckage. The physical pain, the mental disappointment and almost overwhelming odds the two faced were explicit in the book.

The movie glossed over the rescue, oversimplifying the superhuman effort involved. Presto, they sight a man on a horse. Presto, the helicopters land to pick up the remaining 14. Presto, they are reunited with loved ones. And presto, the movie is, thankfully, over.

Seeing "Survive!" will only give the viewer the opportunity to say he has seen it. It would be better to wait until a better writer, director, producer and cast can be found to give the subject the treatment it deserves.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Obsession" — A romantic suspense drama themed to a guilt-ridden New Orleans businessman who meets up with an exact double of his late wife 16 years after she and his daughter perished during a kidnap caper after he botched their ransom. Stars Cilff Robertson and Genevieve Bujold (PG).

"The Missouri Breaks" — Marlon Brando has a grand time chewing the Montana scenery as a wigged-out 'reulator' hired to eliminate a gang of raucous horse thieves led by Jack Nicholson. Yet overall the tongue-in-cheek humor, graphic violence and existential ponderings do not cut it. (PG).

"Seven Beauties" — Italian writer-director Lina Wertmuller's masterful examination of human ideals compromised by ruthless self-preservation, stars Giancarlo Giannini as a World War II deserter whose Neapolitan machismo is so ingrained in his instinct for survival that he ends up "seducing" the sadistic female commandant of Nazi concentration camp in vain hope of saving his neck. Her richest film to date. (R).

"The Omen" — Satan is at it again, this time channeling his monstrous powers through the innocent-looking five-year-old son of politico Gregory Peck and Lee Remick. (R).

"Harry and Walter Go To New York" — James Caan and Elliott Gould play a pair of broadly bumbling vaudevillians who finally make the grade as safecrackers at the turn-of-the-century. An abashedly silly, but rather likeable farce for easy summer laughter. (PG).

"Silent Movie" — Mum's the word from Mel Brooks in this big-budget contemporary silent movie that unleashes a cascade of sight gags, pratfalls and broadly comic set pieces, linked to the connecting story of a minor studio's last-ditch efforts to avoid bankruptcy. Stars Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom Deluise. (PG).

"Harry and Walter Go to New York" — James Caan and Elliott Gould play a pair of broadly bumpling vaudevillians who finally make the grade as safecrackers at the turn-of-the-centry. An unabashedly silly, but rather likeable farce for easy summer laugher. (PG).

Symphony fund drive underway

The 23rd annual fund-raising campaign is under way for the DuPage Symphony, whose members play without pay under direction of Dr. Russell Harvey.

This year, in addition to its five subscription concerts, the full orchestra will accompany the Illinois Academy of Ballet in a performance of "The Nutcracker Suite." Ensembles such as the Chamber Orchestra and the Women's String Group also play frequently for civic, church and school functions.

The Symphony Guild is sponsoring the fund drive. Anyone wising to contribute may contact Fred Lundgren, 469-6226, or write The Symphony, P.O. Box 488, Glen Ellyn, Ill., 60137.

Humorist to autograph her new book at Field's

Erma Bombeck, humorist, columnist and author, is making a guest appearance at Marshall Field & Co. stores in the Chicagoland area today and Saturday to autograph copies of her new book, "The Grass Is Always Greener over the Septic Tank."

She will greet customers in the book section of the State Street store today from 2 to 3 p.m. and tonight from 7:30 to 9 in the Old Orchard store. Miss Bombeck will also speak at a luncheon today for Friends of the Chicago Public Library in the Wedgwood Room of Field's State Street store.

Her other appearances are Saturday from noon to 1:30 p.m. in the Oakbrook store and 2:30 to 4 p.m. at Woodfield.

"The Grass Is Always Greener over the Septic Tank" is a chronicle, in Miss Bombeck's humorous style, of the exodus of thousands of city dwellers to the suburbs during the 1940s and an account of the new, and often amusing, lifestyle they developed.

'Survive!' tale of Andes plane crash

Review

When on Friday, Oct. 13, 1972, a planeful of Uruguayan soccer players crashed in the Andes Mountains, a survival story that weeks later shocked the South American nation and the world began to unfold.

Forty-five passengers boarded the plane for the excursion to Chile. Ten weeks later only 16 lived to tell a stagging tale of man's ultimate instict to live.

"Survive!" now playing in neighborhood theaters and drive-ins, attempts to tell that story but winds up a shallow, underdeveloped and sensationalized film.

Written and directed by Rene Cardona, "Survive!" is based on a nondescript book by Clay Blair Jr. and was apparently created more as a grab at potential box office receipts than a true report of what went on in the Andes.

FOR THOSE WHO read the outstanding best-seller "Alive" by Piers Paul Read, "Survive!" is a double disappointment. Where Read captured the agony of the ordeal and gave the reader an insight into the personalities and fears of the 16 survivors, the moviemakers made the 10 weeks look all too easy and characters blurred together, most nameless, some of the more important ignored completely.

In Read's book, an expedition from the crash site to the plane's shorn-off tail section in search of food and a battery was a monumental struggle. The three who went nearly froze to death, were wracked with fatigue in their undernourished state and experienced an explosion of feelings when they reached their objective.

In the movie, the three set off into the obviously artificial snow and, lo and behold, found the tail section while tramping blithely all the way.

THE BOOK ALSO details the horror and rationalization that accompanied the survivors' decision to eat the flesh of their dead in order to continue living. Promotional material on the movie would lead one to believe that "cannibalism" is what it's all about. There is little excuse for the filmmaker's prolonged scene of a survivor gritting his teeth, pulling away the skin and cutting strips of flesh.

Where the book dealt with this shocking reality with empathy, the movie gives little understanding of the trauma this act evoked, both when it happened and later when the world was told. In "Survive!" the decision to eat the dead was made in moments, and the act itself was nothing more than shots of anonymous grim-faced men taking the first taste.

THE FINAL LETDOWN of the movie is the rescue of the 16, preceded by a 10-day trek b two survivors into the unknown peaks of the mountains. From the moment the real-life decision was made for the team to go in search of civilization, the men were trained, given extra rations and catered to by others at the wreckage. The physical pain, the mental disappointment and almost overwhelming odds the two faced were explicit in the book.

The movie glossed over the rescue, oversimplifying the superhuman effort involved. Presto, they sight a man on a horse. Presto, the helicopters land to pick up the remaining 14. Presto, they are reunited with loved ones. And presto, the movie is, thankfully, over.

SWEET TALK IS only a coverup for "Dirty Work at the Crossroads; or Tempted, Tried and True," a Gay '90s melodrama on stage at Limelight Theatre, Schaumburg, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 26. Wina Leone, Ken Parker, Lonnie Gill and Jodie Mitchell are among the cast of the Pentangle Productions offering. Due to unforeseen circumstances the play opens tonight instead of last Friday as planned. See Billboard for ticket details.

Oriental setting exotic as menu

Don Moy is almost as proud of the exotic, Oriental, temple-like facade of his family-operated restaurant as he is of its imaginative tropical drinks and its excellent Cantonese food.

Driving down Algonquin Road just east of Route 53, one can hardly miss the bright blue and yellow, one-story building with its red columns and yawning black entrance.

Working with Moy, architect Bob Drews took half a year to decide on the design, and evidently the time was well spent for it won an award from the Illinois Association of Architects.

When you have sipped to the bottom of a Pango Pango, $2.15, a Mai Tai, $2.35, an Oriental Bing Bing, $2.15, or one of 10 other tropical nectars, each topped with a tiny paper parasol, you may carry the glass or ceramic container off with you for $3. And many customers do.

Featuring:

Don Moy

ON TO THE CANTONESE dishes. Forget the American dishes — you can get those anywhere. Set off the mood of your dinner as we did with a flaming appetizer tray, consisting of gee-gee beef, barbecued ribs, fried shrimps, egg rolls and fried won ton ($5.95 for two, but in view of the main portions to follow, I swear it's enough for four.)

IF THAT'S A LITTLE steep, any of the components may be ordered individually at considerably lower price.

We enjoyed sizzling our own little slices of beef on their slender wood skewers over the miniature hibachi. As they sizzle, they sound like a whispered "gee . . . gee," explained Anita Moy, our host's daughter, as she placed the sweet-sour and hot sauces on our table.

WE SKIPPED SUCH delicacies as Sea Weed Soup, $1.25, or Bird's Nest Soup, $2, to get on with dinner, each of the four of us ordering a different entree.

Our friend ordered Sweet-Sour Hawaiian Chicken, $4.95, consisting of thick chicken pieces cooked with pineapple and Cantonese sweet fruits and served in the fresh pineapple half-shell. She found it delicious and more than ample.

Her husband ordered butterfly shrimp from the seafood list, $5.20 for 8, and though they were crisp and good he decided the bacon taste was a mite too strong.

My husband accidentally chose one of the finest dishes of the house — Don Moy's Pa Pa Chicken, sliced chicken breasts with Chinese ham rolled in batter, dipped in sesame seed, and fried and blended with vegetables, $5.55. Delicious!

MY OWN SELECTION was Crystal Sizzling Flower which is not a flower at all but a steaming covered dish of crab meat, shrimp, scallops and chicken combined with Chinese vegetables, $4.95. A delectable dish, almost more than I could eat.

There are 11 other Cantonese entrees including hong kong steak, $8.75, and War Sue Op, or pressed duck, $4.95. With the exception of two lobster dishes, most are in the $4.75 to $5.95 price range.

Don Moy also offers a large selection of a la carte dishes in such categories as sweet-sour, seafood, curry, hong sue, poultry and beef/pork — in the same price range.

THERE ARE DESSERTS too — light ones at that — but we just couldn't make it. For those who can, Don Moy's Special Boat, $1.50, means ice cream and cookies, and chilled lichee, $1.25, is a delicious sweet Chinese fruit. A pair of almond or fortune cookies is a mere 30 cents; ice cream or sherbet, 60 cents.

Don Moy came to the U. S. from Canton, near Hong Kong, some 15 years ago. He advanced from a successful carry-out business in a Rolling Meadows shopping center four years ago to this fine Cantonese restaurant at 3201 Algonquin Rd. where the carry-outs continue but at a side door. Sometime when you are out for a drive, stop and pick up a take-out menu.

But save a special time to enjoy a reasonably priced business lunch or a leisurely paced dinner of Cantonese dishes in a quiet Oriental atmosphere.

Requests for individually made-to-order, fancy dishes may be made three weeks in advance. Also with advance notice, groups of 20 to 30 people may be served family style. The restaurant accommodates 200 people.

SWEET TALK IS only a coverup for "Dirty Work at the Crossroads; or Tempted, Tried and True," a Gay '90s melodrama on stage at Limelight Theatre, Schaumburg, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 26. Wina Leone, Ken Parker, Lonnie Gill and Jodie Mitchell are among the cast of the Pentangle Productions offering. Due to unforeseen circumstances the play opens tonight instead of last Friday as planned. See Billboard for ticket details.

Oriental setting exotic as menu

Don Moy is almost as proud of the exotic, Oriental, temple-like facade of his family-operated restaurant as he is of its imaginative tropical drinks and its excellent Cantonese food.

Driving down Algonquin Road just east of Route 53, one can hardly miss the bright blue and yellow, one-story building with its red columns and yawning black entrance.

Working with Moy, architect Bob Drews took half a year to decide on the design, and evidently the time was well spent for it won an award from the Illinois Association of Architects.

When you have sipped to the bottom of a Pango Pango, $2.15, a Mai Tai, $2.35, an Oriental Bing Bing, $2.15, or one of 10 other tropical nectars, each topped with a tiny paper parasol, you may carry the glass or ceramic container off with you for $3. And many customers do.

Featuring:
Don Moy

ON TO THE CANTONESE dishes. Forget the American dishes — you can get those anywhere. Set off the mood of your dinner as we did with a flaming appetizer tray, consisting of gee-gee beef, barbecued ribs, fried shrimps, egg rolls and fried won ton ($5.95 for two, but in view of the main portions to follow, I swear it's enough for four.)

IF THAT'S A LITTLE steep, any of the components may be ordered individually at considerably lower price.

We enjoyed sizzling our own little slices of beef on their slender wood skewers over the miniature hibachi. As they sizzle, they sound like a whispered "gee . . . gee," explained Anita Moy, our host's daughter, as she placed the sweet-sour and hot sauces on our table.

WE SKIPPED SUCH delicacies as Sea Weed Soup, $1.25, or Bird's Nest Soup, $2, to get on with dinner, each of the four of us ordering a different entree.

Our friend ordered Sweet-Sour Hawaiian Chicken, $4.95, consisting of thick chicken pieces cooked with pineapple and Cantonese sweet fruits and served in the fresh pineapple half-shell. She found it delicious and more than ample.

Her husband ordered butterfly shrimp from the seafood list, $5.20 for 8, and though they were crisp and good he decided the bacon taste was a mite too strong.

My husband accidentally chose one of the finest dishes of the house — Don Moy's Pa Pa Chicken, sliced chicken breasts with Chinese ham rolled in batter, dipped in sesame seed, and fried and blended with vegetables, $5.55. Delicious!

MY OWN SELECTION was Crystal Sizzling Flower which is not a flower at all but a steaming covered dish of crab meat, shrimp, scallops and chicken combined with Chinese vegetables, $4.95. A delectable dish, almost more than I could eat.

There are 11 other Cantonese entrees including hong kong steak, $8.75, and War Sue Op, or pressed duck, $4.95. With the exception of two lobster dishes, most are in the $4.75 to $5.95 price range.

Don Moy also offers a large selection of a la carte dishes in such categories as sweet-sour, seafood, curry, hong sue, poultry and beef/pork — in the same price range.

THERE ARE DESSERTS too — light ones at that — but we just couldn't make it. For those who can, Don Moy's Special Boat, $1.50, means ice cream and cookies, and chilled lichee, $1.25, is a delicious sweet Chinese fruit. A pair of almond or fortune cookies is a mere 30 cents; ice cream or sherbet, 60 cents.

Don Moy came to the U. S. from Canton, near Hong Kong, some 15 years ago. He advanced from a successful carry-out business in a Rolling Meadows shopping center four years ago to this fine Cantonese restaurant at 3201 Algonquin Rd. where the carry-outs continue but at a side door. Sometime when you are out for a drive, stop and pick up a take-out menu.

But save a special time to enjoy a reasonably priced business lunch or a leisurely paced dinner of Cantonese dishes in a quiet Oriental atmosphere.

Requests for individually made-to-order, fancy dishes may be made three weeks in advance. Also with advance notice, groups of 20 to 30 people may be served family style. The restaurant accommodates 200 people.

A potpourri of nightlife

Ivanhoe reopens with Steinberg

by BILL HILL

The Ivanhoe always has looked somewhat conspicuous in the less-than-sparkling neighborhood around 3000 N. Clark St. It stands out even more now, as final improvements are made to Chicago's newest nightclub.

It's not actually the Ivanhoe that's new — but its character. The building has been renovated and is being advertised as an in-town Las Vegas-type nightclub.

Actually, the 56-year-old landmark that closed down as a live theater and supperclub in April 1975 because of financial duress, is not yet ready to compete on such a swank level.

AT THE Ivanhoe's grand reopening celebration Wednesday, there were carpenters still working amidst the gala atmosphere that naturally accompanies such restaurant-theater openings.

The Ivanhoe (when finished) is to be a potpourri of nightclubs, restaurants and lounges with the Ivanhoe Theatre featuring top-flight contemporary entertainment. Comedian David Steinberg is the initial drawing card.

David Steinberg

He will perform through Sunday.

Upcoming acts include Ramsey Lewis and Mort Sahl.

The Ivanhoe is being reopened by Robert Briggs of Ratso's, who says Bobalar Productions Ltd. intends to make the Ivanhoe one of the three premiere showcase rooms in America, along with the Bottom Line in New York and Roxy in Los Angeles.

The rooms of the Ivanhoe stress the natural colors of brown and green. Trees and plants are everywhere.

Next to the theater, the Darwin gets top billing at the Ivanhoe. The attractively decorated restaurant seats 250 persons and features a menu with about 20 items. Specialties include a flaming Portuguese fish stew, duck, lamb and pheasant.

PRICES RANGE from $4 for lasagna to $9.75 for lobster.

The most unique area is the Junque Food Junkie — the "fun" restaurant in the Ivanhoe complex. Its main feature is the "Cram-It" bar. Anything from a snack to a full meal can be ordered. One highlight is the make-your-own sundae bar.

There are two lounges: The Magic Bar and the Garden Bar. The Magic Bar is the one holdover from the original Ivanhoe. The Garden Bar features a maze of plants and small aquariums. An outdoor area is under construction.

Briggs' plans call for costumed characters to roam the complex, including an Italian pretzel vendor and a Puerto Rican ice cream man. The catacombs area also is to be developed into a "fun" area.

There is not a bad seat in the 600-seat Ivanhoe theatre where cocktail waitresses in basketball uniforms double as usherettes.

STEINBERG disappointed no one in his 40-minute monologue. His performance was culminated by a sermon on Moses but included some of his favorite targets: Richard Nixon — "what interests me is his brother, Donald . . . and his nephews, Huey, Dewey and Looie"; Wayne Hays — "what did it cost us, a penny per person to make an old man happy"; and John Connally — "who resembles a rat swimming toward a sinking ship." Also coming under fire were Hubert Humphrey, Gerald Ford, Edward Kennedy and most ethnic groups.

"Let's see, who haven't we offended tonight," Steinberg remarked midway through the performance.

DAVID ROTH of Hoffman Estates will disply a selection of graphics at the Old Orchard Art Festival Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 6 p.m., on the mall in Skokie. This is a juried show.

'Ice' to premiere in Los Angeles

The Mark Taper Forum in Los Angeles, Calif., will present the world premier of Michael Cristofer's "Ice" beginning next Thursday through Oct. 16. The play is billed as "a brutal, startling and humorous love story for mature audiences."

Last season the Forum gave the world premiere of another Cristofer play, "The Shadow Box." (UPI)

Two in cast of 'Show Boat' make DPTG debut tonight

Kathleen Lubinski of Palatine appears in the role of Magnolia in Des Plaines Theatre Guild's production of "Show Boat" opening tonight at Guild Playhouse, Des Plaines.

Ron Nicholas of Arlington Heights and Venus Miller, Prospect Heights, play her parents, Captain Andy and his wife, Parthy, in the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II musical comedy about the Hawkes family of the Cotton Blossom floating theater.

KATHY IS A graduate of Palatine High School where she played in several theater productions. Her leading role in "Show Boat" marks her debut with DPTG.

Ron Nicholas is also making his first appearance with DPTG but has a background of directing and acting experience with Chicagoland groups. Venus Miller also has previous acting credits with area groups.

"Show Boat" performances are Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 26. See Billboard for further information.

M&S rehearsing for 'Barefoot'

Rehearsals are in full swing for Masque and Staff's first play of the 18th season, "Barefoot in the Park." In the cast are Jan Hurley, Roy Nottoli and Bob Johnson of Elk Grove Village; Donald McNamara, Hanover Park; Charles Golliher, Elgin, and Veronica Zogman, Des Plaines.

The play will be performed at Elk Grove High School Sept. 24 and 25 and Oct. 1 and 2. Admission at the door is $3.

However, there is still time to purchase a season ticket to all three M&S plays for $7, a $2 savings over the general admisson price. Senior citizens and students pay only $3.50 for season tickets.

The winter play will be "Dr. Cook's Garden'' and the spring dinner/theatre combination "Play It Again, Sam."

Season tickets can be ordered by writing to Masque and Staff, 523 Ridgewood, Elk Grove Village, or calling 437-0679.

Why we put ten people at tables designed for twelve.

A knowledgeable caterer knows that little details can make a big difference in the success of a meeting, banquet or party.
And that's why we consider a table's eating space. Not just seating space. And why, for certain meetings, provide shaved ice in the water pitchers, instead of ice cubes. To cut down on distracting noise.
It's a certain kind of thoughtfulness that makes a big difference.
And we offer it right along with the availability of gourmet foods. Indoor, out-of-the-weather parking for up to 1,100 cars. A variety of meeting rooms for groups as small as 10, as large as 1,850. Besides the prestige, location, and luxurious accommodations of the Hyatt Regency.
So instead of trying to remember hundreds of details for your next affair, just remember one. Our phone number. (312) 565-1000.

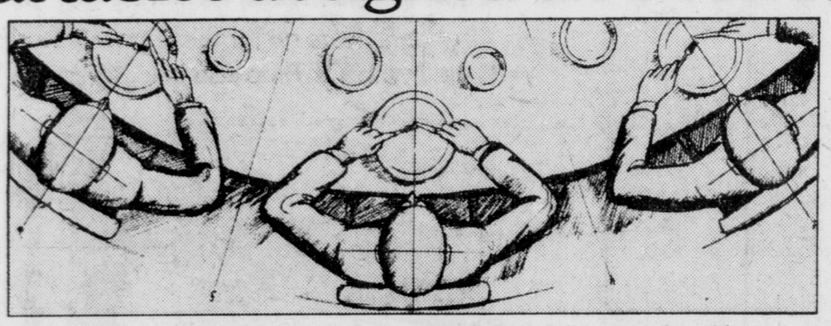
Why we put ten people at tables designed for twelve.


A knowledgeable caterer knows that little details can make a big difference in the success of a meeting, banquet or party.
And that's why we consider a table's eating space. Not just seating space. And why, for certain meetings, provide shaved ice in the water pitchers, instead of ice cubes. To cut down on distracting noise.
It's a certain kind of thoughtfulness that makes a big difference.
And we offer it right along with the availability of gourmet foods. Indoor, out-of-the-weather parking for up to 1,100 cars. A variety of meeting rooms for groups as small as 10, as large as 1,850. Besides the prestige, location, and luxurious accommodations of the Hyatt Regency.
So instead of trying to remember hundreds of details for your next affair, just remember one. Our phone number. (312) 565-1000.

Take your pick of live theater

Take your pick of live theater in the next week. The new fall season goes into high gear with comedy out in front.

Country Club Comedy Theatre in Mount Prospect begins its 1976-77 season with a farce, "TAKE A NUMBER DARLING" by Elk Grove playwright Jack Sharkey.

DAVID McCALLUM, KATHARINE HOUGHTON and KURT KASZNAR will star in Agatha Christie's time-honored mystery, "THE MOUSETRAP," which is opening next Friday at Arlington Park Theatre.

Still the longest running play in London's theatrical history, "The Mousetrsap" has been on stage in that city's St. Martin's Theatre for 24 years. It will only be staged in Arlington, however, through Sunday, Oct. 17, when it will be followed by a musical, "RODGERS AND HART: A MUSICAL CELEBRATION," Oct. 22.

Also opening next Friday are DINA MERRILL and ANTHONY GEORGE in the Muriel Resnick comedy, "ANY WEDNESDAY," at Drury Lane East in McCormick Place. Previews will be held Wednesday and Thursday. George Keathley is directing the production.

ZERO MOSTEL, the original star in "FIDDLER ON THE ROOF," will again play the role of Tevye for three weeks at Arie Crown Theatre of McCormick Place beginning Tuesday through Oct. 3.

Featured with Mostel are Thelma Lee, Ruth Jaroslow and Paul Lipson.

Bernard Slade's two-character comedy, "SAME TIME, NEXT YEAR," opens Wednesday at the Blackstone Theatre downtown. The play stars BARBARA RUSH.

The St. Nicholas Theater Company, 2851 N. Halsted, is kicking off its new season Tuesday with "THE COLLECTED WORKS OF BILLY THE KID" by Michael Ondaatje. Victory Gardens Theater, 3730 N. Clark, begins its fall season Sepp. 23 with Ben Jonson's "VOLPONE."

On the nightclub scene, TRINI LOPEZ opens tonight in the Blue Max of the Hyatt Regency O'Hare.

It's nice to see new faces on the local nightclub circuit. BHQ is fairly new to the Chicago area but the group has paid its musical dues elsewhere. It shows in the current engagement at ALLGAUER'S FIRESIDE.

The young quintet who met while students at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Pa., offers a repertoire to please almost everyone's taste.

CATHY MASON, lead female vocalist, opens the show with a Streisand number, "Don't Rain On My Parade," though her real chance to shine is during a Helen Reddy medley.

Unlike other combos who vie to see how many instruments they can fit on stage, BHQ shows off just enough — to give off a strong, complete sound from Motown to jazz to big band favorites from the '30s. It's not often one brings back Jimmy Dorsey's tunes. And on the other end, a Beatle medley is a highlight of the show.

But for some reason, BHQ must think the audience is trying to snooze because it becomes progressively louder as the show continues until the keyboard, in particular, is deafening. Also, I missed the warm, gentle ballads that tend to break up the monotony of too much beat.

Still, it's great to catch a new group and, in case you're curious, BHQ stands for Bill Harms Quartet which is what it was called until it grew to five members. BILL HARMS plays horn. On keyboard is RICK PURCELL, on bass is GLENN REASNER, and C. J. PUHALA is the drummer.

"SPACE FRAGMENTATION" is typical of watercolor work by artist Win Jones, who will give a lecture demonstration for Arlington Heights Art Guild at 8 p.m. Thursday at Our Saviour Lutheran Church. He will do wet-into-wet painting which consists of soaking a piece of paper and then doing the entire painting before the paper dries.

Sound may be distorted on records

An expert on recorded sound says that what is heard on many stereophonic records today is a distortion of performances which never actually took place.

"Stereo is an illusion," says Syracuse University Prof. Walter L. Welch. "There is no need for it to be a misleading one. We are giving the public a quality of sound which is often more glorious than could be obtained in a live performance but which has been put together by the genius of tape editors who make one performance out of many."

Welch questions whether the recording industry has reached a point of absurdity in its pressing for quadraphonic listening equipment.

"QUADRAPHONICS is merely a reductio ad absurdium," he said. "We're trying to have more of it and make it a bigger 'thrill.'

"If you're going to go multiphonic," he said, "the way is 3-5-7, not 2-4-6. If you're honestly attempting to recreate a performance, where the featured vocalist is at the center of the stage, the recorded sound of that voice or instrument should reach you from the center speaker, not from two or more sides."

Welch noted that most country and rock bands carry their own amplification equipment with them on tour. Thus the student accepts this as the norm when he listens to a record, often turning the volume up to the artificial level, risking danger to his hearing.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

A look at flu 50 years ago

There's so much talk about the flu. I am over 70 and had it real bad when it was here before. I got it being in the big parade, Nov. 11, when World War I ended. I was living with my grandparents. They said it was a punishment for all of us. We should have been on our knees, not out enjoying ourselves when other people had such heartache.

Well I sure did have a bad time of it. No doctor came to houses. Hospitals wouldn't take any more patients. Relatives and friends didn't go near each other. We didn't have pain pills in those days. It was castor oil, baking soda, electric oil, camphorated oil, even coal oil.

I am told I was out of my head. One of my uncles left a bottle of dark rum, heavy kind, on the step. My grandfather had to look after me and grandma, who had caught the flu from me. Pa was afraid because grandfather couldn't even make a cup of tea. Being from the old country he sure cured both of us, Grandma in three days and weeks later for me.

Here's the cure. Laugh if you like but it did the trick. He put camphorated oil in goose grease, heated it and rubbed our chest. Then he mixed up mustard and put the oil and goose grease in it between two sheets of red flannel. My chest was red for awhile; it sure was hot. Here's what he gave us for medicine. He took heavy old-fashioned molasses and put the rum in it. He put some in a cup of hot water and it really made me sweat.

Today all these old-fashioned remedies are laughed at, but it worked. I'm still around. My grandparents died when they were over 70. The old boy knew his onions, even though he couldn't boil water. What I'd like to know is what was in the dark molasses and dark heavy rum? Was it a case of get better or die? It sure was hard to take after you got on the mend.

Thanks for giving us a colorful picture of the flu more than 50 years ago. From the volume of letters I have received from people who lived through the first worldwide flu epidemic it seems the treatment you described was pretty standard, with emphasis on rum and whiskey.

Alcohol is still used in the treatment of colds and flu by many people as a home remedy. It may be a sedative and help people to feel better in that sense, but it does nothing to combat the virus infection causing the illness.

The only way to treat the flu properly is to prevent it and we can do this today even though that was impossible with the epidemic you survived. That is why vaccinations are so important.

Some of the other medicines may help shrink the nasal lining and make breathing easier. Supportive care in terms of adequate fluids and nourishment is the best that can be offered. The rest of the treatment is for complications. Bacterial complications, such as some pneumonias, can be treated and that will help a lot if there is a worldwide epidemic.

For more information about flu and related cold-like illness readers can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 3-2, Colds and Flu Group, Prevention and Treatment. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Today's pewter safe for food and drinks

Dear Dorothy: I'm curious about the safety of pewter for food and drink. Seems to me that if it contains lead, it might well be unsafe for hot foods, and so forth. I also wonder about salt and pepper shakers made of pewter. — Mrs. Robert Magill

This got triple-checking. Antique pewter did contain lead, but we have no records on what, if any, health problems it caused. Pewter today is a tin-antimony alloy with a little bit of copper. There is no problem in using any of this pewter for food or drinks.

Dear Dorothy: Dislike throwing anything usable away and so act like the packrats you describe so admiringly. I put plastic coffee can lids between glass pans to decrease the noise level and buffer them against breaking. They're also useful between stacked glass mixing bowls and better dishes. — Helen Pellerite

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip that may be useful to many. I was complaining to neighbors about the lint on the children's corduroy and my blue jeans. She suggested adding half a cup of white vinegar to the rinse water. Works beautifully. — Kay Petty

Dear Dorothy: What's the best way to keep fresh garlic? — Marcia Friedman

Finally concluded it keeps best in the box it comes in — right on the kitchen shelf.

Dear Dorothy: If you want fried chicken crisp and tasty, do not cover it tightly. The steam from the hot chicken in a closed package will make it soft and greasy. — Jennie Culbertson

Mr. and Mrs. Tod M. Rasmussen

Jan Greenwood– Tod Rasmussen

Newlyweds Tod and Jan Rasmussen are making their first home in Charleston, Ill., while the bridegroom attends Eastern Illinois University. They were married Aug. 14 in the bride's home town of Effingham, Ill., and honeymooned in Las Vegas before leaving for Charleston.

Jan, daughter of the Leonard Greenwoods of Effingham, graduated from Eastern Illinois in June. Tod is the son of the David Rasmussens of Arlington Heights and is a graduate of Arlington High class of '71. He spent two years in the army before going to Eastern Illinois.

A rainbow setting filled Willow Street Church of Christ for the 7 p.m. candlelight ceremony. The maid of honor wore a peach crepe halter gown with a cape of flowered chiffon and carried peach carnations, baby's breath and daisies. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns in shades of blue, lavender, yellow, green and pink.

MRS. GARY HOOVER, Springfield, was matron of honor; the couple's sisters, Lynn Greenwood and Karen Rasmussen, Teri Buenker of Springfield and Mrs. John Lange and Beth Holmes of Effingham were bridesmaids. There was also an 8-year-old flower girl, the bride's sister Tracy, who wore peach.

Tod's best man was Dean Moran of Effingham. Groomsmen included his brother, Paul Rasmussen; Craig Thoele and Tom West, Effingham; Steve Carncross, Arlington Heights; and Dan Huber, Springfield. Eric Klay, 8, of Effingham, was ring bearer.

A reception at Park Hills Country Club followed the ceremony.

A look at flu 50 years ago

There's so much talk about the flu. I am over 70 and had it real bad when it was here before. I got it being in the big parade, Nov. 11, when World War I ended. I was living with my grandparents. They said it was a punishment for all of us. We should have been on our knees, not out enjoying ourselves when other people had such heartache.

Well I sure did have a bad time of it. No doctor came to houses. Hospitals wouldn't take any more patients. Relatives and friends didn't go near each other. We didn't have pain pills in those days. It was castor oil, baking soda, electric oil, camphorated oil, even coal oil.

I am told I was out of my head. One of my uncles left a bottle of dark rum, heavy kind, on the step. My grandfather had to look after me and grandma, who had caught the flu from me. Pa was afraid because grandfather couldn't even make a cup of tea. Being from the old country he sure cured both of us, Grandma in three days and weeks later for me.

Here's the cure. Laugh if you like but it did the trick. He put camphorated oil in goose grease, heated it and rubbed our chest. Then he mixed up mustard and put the oil and goose grease in it between two sheets of red flannel. My chest was red for awhile; it sure was hot. Here's what he gave us for medicine. He took heavy old-fashioned molasses and put the rum in it. He put some in a cup of hot water and it really made me sweat.

Today all these old-fashioned remedies are laughed at, but it worked. I'm still around. My grandparents died when they were over 70. The old boy knew his onions, even though he couldn't boil water. What I'd like to know is what was in the dark molasses and dark heavy rum? Was it a case of get better or die? It sure was hard to take after you got on the mend.

Thanks for giving us a colorful picture of the flu more than 50 years ago. From the volume of letters I have received from people who lived through the first worldwide flu epidemic it seems the treatment you described was pretty standard, with emphasis on rum and whiskey.

Alcohol is still used in the treatment of colds and flu by many people as a home remedy. It may be a sedative and help people to feel better in that sense, but it does nothing to combat the virus infection causing the illness.

The only way to treat the flu properly is to prevent it and we can do this today even though that was impossible with the epidemic you survived. That is why vaccinations are so important.

Some of the other medicines may help shrink the nasal lining and make breathing easier. Supportive care in terms of adequate fluids and nourishment is the best that can be offered. The rest of the treatment is for complications. Bacterial complications, such as some pneumonias, can be treated and that will help a lot if there is a worldwide epidemic.

Today's pewter safe for food and drinks

Dear Dorothy: I'm curious about the safety of pewter for food and drink. Seems to me that if it contains lead, it might well be unsafe for hot foods, and so forth. I also wonder about salt and pepper shakers made of pewter. — Mrs. Robert Magill

This got triple-checking. Antique pewter did contain lead, but we have no records on what, if any, health problems it caused. Pewter today is a tin-antimony alloy with a little bit of copper. There is no problem in using any of this pewter for food or drinks.

Dear Dorothy: Dislike throwing anything usable away and so act like the packrats you describe so admiringly. I put plastic coffee can lids between glass pans to decrease the noise level and buffer them against breaking. They're also useful between stacked glass mixing bowls and better dishes. — Helen Pellerite

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip that may be useful to many. I was complaining to neighbors about the lint on the children's corduroy and my blue jeans. She suggested adding half a cup of white vinegar to the rinse water. Works beautifully. — Kay Petty

Dear Dorothy: What's the best way to keep fresh garlic? — Marcia Friedman

Finally concluded it keeps best in the box it comes in — right on the kitchen shelf.

Dear Dorothy: If you want fried chicken crisp and tasty, do not cover it tightly. The steam from the hot chicken in a closed package will make it soft and greasy. — Jennie Culbertson

Mr. and Mrs. Tod M. Rasmussen

Jan Greenwood– Tod Rasmussen

Newlyweds Tod and Jan Rasmussen are making their first home in Charleston, Ill., while the bridegroom attends Eastern Illinois University. They were married Aug. 14 in the bride's home town of Effingham, Ill., and honeymooned in Las Vegas before leaving for Charleston.

Jan, daughter of the Leonard Greenwoods of Effingham, graduated from Eastern Illinois in June. Tod is the son of the David Rasmussens of Arlington Heights and is a graduate of Arlington High class of '71. He spent two years in the army before going to Eastern Illinois.

A rainbow setting filled Willow Street Church of Christ for the 7 p.m. candlelight ceremony. The maid of honor wore a peach crepe halter gown with a cape of flowered chiffon and carried peach carnations, baby's breath and daisies. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns in shades of blue, lavender, yellow, green and pink.

MRS. GARY HOOVER, Springfield, was matron of honor; the couple's sisters, Lynn Greenwood and Karen Rasmussen, Teri Buenker of Springfield and Mrs. John Lange and Beth Holmes of Effingham were bridesmaids. There was also an 8-year-old flower girl, the bride's sister Tracy, who wore peach.

Tod's best man was Dean Moran of Effingham. Groomsmen included his brother, Paul Rasmussen; Craig Thoele and Tom West, Effingham; Steve Carncross, Arlington Heights; and Dan Huber, Springfield. Eric Klay, 8, of Effingham, was ring bearer.

A reception at Park Hills Country Club followed the ceremony.

Encyclopedia: cover-to-cover fact

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Lori Robin Brown, 11, of Florence, S.C., for her question:
WHO INVENTED THE ENCYCLOPEDIA?

An encyclopedia is one or more books with factual information about people, places, events and all sorts of general and specific categories. Some encyclopedias are general, dealing with topics in every significant field of knowledge. Others limit their coverage to specialized areas, such as animals, plants or birds.

The idea of compiling a large body of knowledge into one or more volumes goes clear back to ancient Greece. The famous philosopher Aristotle, who lived between 384 and 322 B.C., is sometimes considered the father of the encyclopedia. He collected research materials and historical records for scholars to use as sources for their study. About 300 years later the Roman scholar Marcus Terentius Varro wrote a nine-volume work on arts and sciences called "Disciplinarium."

Another Roman scholar, Pliny the Elder, wrote a 37-volume encyclopedia of natural sciences. Although some material in Pliny's volumes was fictional, his work was popular for centuries.

In the 15th century the largest encyclopedia ever developed resulted from the work of 2,169 scholars in China. Called the "Yung La Ta Tien," this monumental collection of Chinese literature comprised 11,000 volumes.

The first encyclopedia in the English language arranged in alphabetical order is credited to John Harris (1667-1719), whose work focused on the physical sciences and mathematics. And a 35-volume work, "Encyclopedie," was completed in France in 1780. This work, edited by Denis Diderot, contained many ideas from political and religious leaders who were anxious to spread their theories.

The "Encyclopedia Americana" was the first general encyclopedia published in the United States. The first of 13 volumes appeared in 1829 and the last in 1833. Since then, many different kinds of encyclopedias have been published, some especially written for children in school.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Stephen Rothenburger, 10, of Louisville, Ky, for his question:
WHAT SORT OF ANIMAL IS THE MUNTJAC?

If the name muntjac doesn't roll off your tongue easily, there are a number of other names you can call this plucky fellow. Barking deer, jungle sheep, red hog-deer and rib-faced deer ar a few. If you have guessed that he is a member of the deer clan, right you are. He is a small deer found in southern Asia. His average shoulder height is usually less than two feet, and he tips the scales at about 40 pounds.

The muntjac's general color varies from a handsome chestnut to tawny or mahogany red. Atop his head he wears short two-pronged antlers that are five or six inches long and grow from column-like bases that are covered with hair. Unlike most deer, the muntjac has tusk-like upper canine teeth which he uses to fight off dogs and other natural enemies. When he feels like it, he can utter a sharp dog-like bark which is quite loud for an animal his size.

Today is Saturday, Sept. 11, the 255th day of 1976 with 111 to follow.

The moon is moving from full to its last quarter.

The morning stars are Saturn and Jupiter.

The evening star is Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American short story writer O. Henry was born Sept. 11, 1862.

On this day in history:

- In 1777, troops of Gen. George Washington were badly defeated by the British in the Battle of Brandywine.
- In 1841, all members of President John Tyler's Cabinet resigned except Secretary of State Daniel Webster. They were protesting the veto of a banking bill.
- In 1963, all 81 persons aboard an Indian Airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.
- In 1973, the regime of Salvador Allende, first freely elected Marxist president in the Western Hemisphere, was toppled in a military coup in which he died, reportedly by his own hand.

New British TV drama series set

by ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Her name was not Louisa Layton, but that's what the character she inspired is called in a new BBC-TV drama series that will be shown in the United States on the PBS network next spring when "The Duchess of Duke Street" appears in 13 one-hour segments.

Her real name was Rosa Lewis, and she rose to hold court over Edwardian London from her celebrated Cavendish Hotel on Jermyn Street.

Before the turn of the century, when she was presented to the prince who was to become King Edward VII, some murmured a line from an old nursery rhyme.

FOR A COCKNEY girl she was, indeed, "a dainty dish to set before the king."

Edward, however, except for one brief encounter, was just a good friend who kept a benevolent eye on her and was amused by her curious standards.

She preferred titled men and rich Americans as guests. They could not bring along a girl of easy morals. But it was quite all right to seduce a girl of the same social station.

"I am," she said, "a terrible snob."

JOHN HAWKESWORTH, producer of the international television success, "Upstairs, Downstairs," was a young officer in the elite Guards when he went to Jermyn Street to see the legendary lady, then in her 80s, in person. The memory stuck and he set it down as a future project.

Recently he completed a costume series, a BBC-Time-Life coproduction, on the career of Rosa — lightly veiled as Louisa Layton. British actress Gemma Jones plays the role of the humbly born girl who saw that the way to the hearts of Edwardian notables was through their ample stomachs and determined to make herself the best cook in the world.

Hawkesworth says the series is not "based" on the life of Rosa Lewis though it was "inspired" by her career. Considering her start as a cook he said he found it extraordinary that there was no dining room in the Cavendish.

East-South in tug-of-war

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

East's two-diamond overcall on a four-card suit is rather unusual, but he just hated to pass with his fine hand.

South rebid to two spades and played the hand there. East cashed three diamonds and then played ace and deuce of hearts.

The hand looked like a cinch for the rest of the tricks, but South got a rude shock when West showed out on the lead of the ace of sapdes. Now South had to try to find a way to collect eight tricks. He entered dummy with a club and led a spade. East's nine forced South's king.

Back to dummy with another club. Lo and behold East, who had dropped the jack on the first club, played the queen this time and South was in business.

He led the good 10 of clubs. East made his best play by ruffing with the 10 of trumps and South carefully underruffed. This left East on lead with the last diamond and the jack-six of spades. South held the queen of hearts and queen-eight of spades while North held a spade, heart and club.

If East led a trump, South would just take the last three tricks. If he led the last diamond, South would discard his high heart, ruff in dummy and claim.

New British TV drama series set

by ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Her name was not Louisa Layton, but that's what the character she inspired is called in a new BBC-TV drama series that will be shown in the United States on the PBS network next spring when "The Duchess of Duke Street" appears in 13 one-hour segments.

Her real name was Rosa Lewis, and she rose to hold court over Edwardian London from her celebrated Cavendish Hotel on Jermyn Street.

Before the turn of the century, when she was presented to the prince who was to become King Edward VII, some murmured a line from an old nursery rhyme.

FOR A COCKNEY girl she was, indeed, "a dainty dish to set before the king."

Edward, however, except for one brief encounter, was just a good friend who kept a benevolent eye on her and was amused by her curious standards.

She preferred titled men and rich Americans as guests. They could not bring along a girl of easy morals. But it was quite all right to seduce a girl of the same social station.

"I am," she said, "a terrible snob."

JOHN HAWKESWORTH, producer of the international television success, "Upstairs, Downstairs," was a young officer in the elite Guards when he went to Jermyn Street to see the legendary lady, then in her 80s, in person. The memory stuck and he set it down as a future project.

Recently he completed a costume series, a BBC-Time-Life coproduction, on the career of Rosa — lightly veiled as Louisa Layton. British actress Gemma Jones plays the role of the humbly born girl who saw that the way to the hearts of Edwardian notables was through their ample stomachs and determined to make herself the best cook in the world.

Hawkesworth says the series is not "based" on the life of Rosa Lewis though it was "inspired" by her career. Considering her start as a cook he said he found it extraordinary that there was no dining room in the Cavendish.

East-South in tug-of-war

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

East's two-diamond overcall on a four-card suit is rather unusual, but he just hated to pass with his fine hand.

South rebid to two spades and played the hand there. East cashed three diamonds and then played ace and deuce of hearts.

The hand looked like a cinch for the rest of the tricks, but South got a rude shock when West showed out on the lead of the ace of sapdes. Now South had to try to find a way to collect eight tricks. He entered dummy with a club and led a spade. East's nine forced South's king.

Back to dummy with another club. Lo and behold East, who had dropped the jack on the first club, played the queen this time and South was in business.

He led the good 10 of clubs. East made his best play by ruffing with the 10 of trumps and South carefully underruffed. This left East on lead with the last diamond and the jack-six of spades. South held the queen of hearts and queen-eight of spades while North held a spade, heart and club.

If East led a trump, South would just take the last three tricks. If he led the last diamond, South would discard his high heart, ruff in dummy and claim.

by TONY FULMER
of Klehm Nursery

A 'Raspberry Sundae' sounds delicious any time of year, but did you know it's also a beautiful Klehm's Estate Hyrid Peony? This huge double with a soft vanilla-white background overflows with luscious raspberry-pink petals.

Peonies, planted bare-root now, add a truly distinctive note to your perennial border with vivid shades of red, white and pink during May and June. Peonies should be planted in well-drained soil where they receive at least six hours of full sun each day. In addition to their glossy foliage, they are a useful summer hedge or a nice backdrop for shorter annuals. Planted about three feet apart on centers, they provide years and years of pleasure with minimal fuss as the plants get larger and heavier every year. In fact, peonies, unlike many perennials, actually prefer to remain in one spot rather than be lifted and separated periodically, and they need no winter mulch after the first year. What could be easier?

Iris, like peonies, are best transplanted bare-root in August and September. Not surprisingly, the two are a natural combination when planted together at the back of the perennial border. Iris are most effective when planted in masses of three to five plants of the same variety. One of the most exciting developments in Iris is the hybrid 'Juneau.' It is exceptional because of its extremely large size and the width and ruffling of the snow-white petals. The flower possesses a thickness and plasticity that makes it strongly resistant to weather and rain. This is an important consideration as 'Juneau' may grow as tall as 32 inches! The color range in bearded iris runs from deep violet-blue to soft pink and apricot as well as yellows and browns.

AN IDEAL SITE for iris would be in full sun and in a loamy soil that is well-drained. Iris should be placed in a fairly large hole and the soil settled in around the roots such that the top of the rhizome is slightly exposed. When planting in clumps, individual rhizomes should be spaced 12 to 15 inches apart.

In the fall, all gardeners have the spring-flowering bulbs on their minds. Crocus, daffodils, hyacinths, tulips, alliums and a host of other spring delights are so diverse in color, form, shape and texture, that there is one for almost any gardening site.

As rock garden subjects, used in masses around evergreens, in flower beds among perennials or in the garden where they can be overplanted with annuals as soon as the bulb foliage turns brown, they are unsurpassable.

Spring bulbs are most effective when planted in masses rather than used indivudually or placed in straight rows like 'soldiers'. Use them in groups of 5 or 10, or more in large circular clumps. For those who really prefer informality, crocus and daffodils are excellent subjects for naturalizing. Naturalizing is the process of taking a number of bulbs and gently dropping them on the grass. Then they are planted under the grass where they fall! They can be left in place for years and years to create a "woodland" setting. Bear in mind that these areas should not be mowed in the spring until the foliage has turned yellow-brown. All spring bulbs must retain their foliage as long as they are green, as they are storing food to produce the following year's flowers.

SPRING FLOWERING bulbs should be in well-drained soil where they get at least five to 6 hours of sunlight every day. Bonemeal or a complete fertilizer that is high in phosphorous (such as 5-10-5) can be incorporated in the soil at the time of planting.

Planting depth varies. Tulips and daffodils should be six inches deep and six inches apart, hyacinths six inches deep and five inches apart, and crocus three inches deep and three inches apart. For oher spring flowering bulbs, a good rule of thumb is to plant four times as deep as the diameter of the bulb. Water thoroughly at the time of planting and periodically thereafter if rainfall is scarce. In heavy clay soils, it is advisable to set somewhat higher than recommended depths.

By planting an assortment of spring bulbs, this fall, you can have flowers in March (species Crocus) through June (Lllium Giganteum) and months of color in between with the time-honored favorites like daffodils, hyacinths and tulips. So buy your bulbs, get our your trowel and assure yourself of a brignt spring-

"PINK LEMONADE" and other "delicious" perennial peony roots can be planted now for spring viewing pleasure. Ease of care and years of splendid blooms make these a great planting investment.

Plant a tree for posterity

Those little seed helicopters from the maple tree have a purpose other than to delight children and cover your sidewalk. They can start a new tree. So can acorns and that stuff that looks like snow from the elm trees. In fact, planting a tree to add to the beauty and pleasure of your yard is not difficult at all.

To learn how to grow trees from seeds, seedlings, saplings, or from your table scraps, get a copy of "Let's Plant a Tree," the new Johnny Horizon booklet from the U.S. Department of the Interior. Single copies are free from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 15, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

If you find an acorn that is brown, doesn't have any cracks or holes, and doesn't appear to be squashy, you should consider planting it. The acorns of the white oak can be planted immediately. Those from the black oak have to be fooled into thinking they have been through winter. To do that, you put the acorns in a plastic bag of damp sand or peat moss and put them in the refrigerator for about three months.

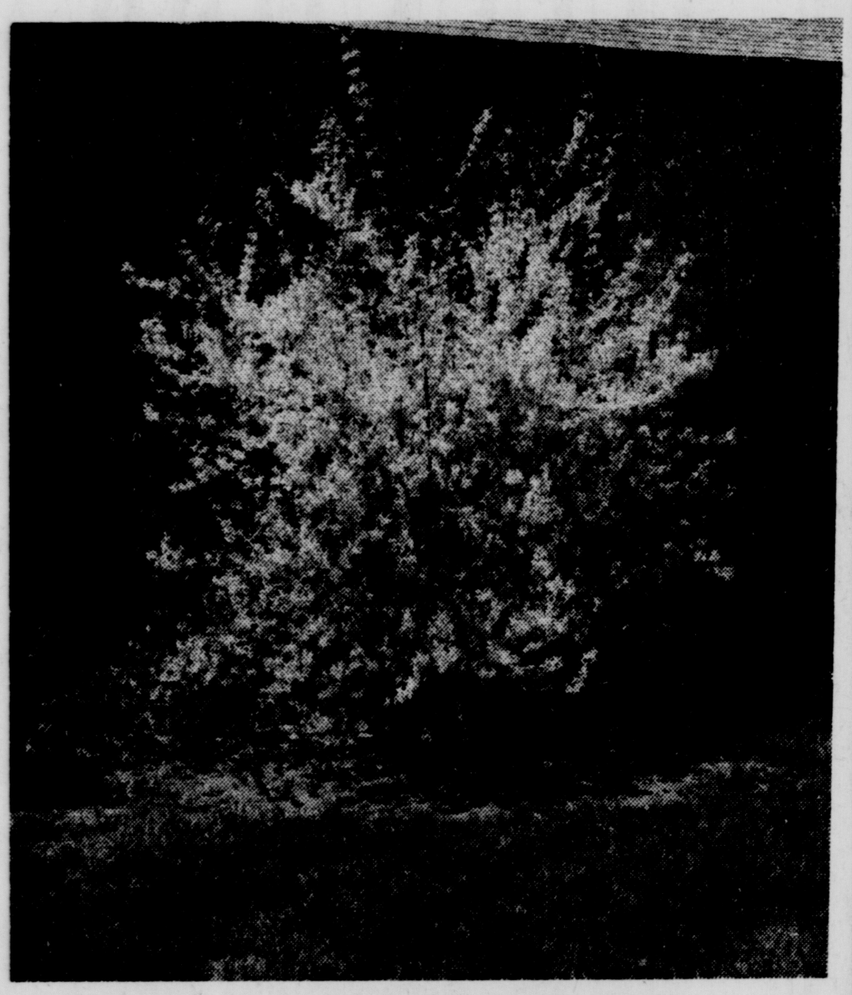
Then use a flower pot or a cut-down milk carton with holes poked in the bottom. Cover the bottom with gravel or small stones and a little charcoal. Fill the container with potting soil, and moisten it thoroughly.

Plant the acorns about a quarter inch deep. Then stretch plastic wrap over the container leaving it loose on the sides. Punch some holes in the plastic to let the seeds breath.

Place the container near a window where it will get lots of light. Water the soil when it is dry — about every four or five days.

When the first seedlings appear, remove the wrap and keep careful watch so the soil doesn't dry out. About ten days after the seedlings appear, cut back at the base all but the healthiest seedling in each pot. This will let that seedling have access to all the nutrients in the pot.

Re-pot the seedling if necessary, and plant it outdoors when all chance of frost is past.



FORSYTHIA MEANS easy care and hardy growth. Bright yellow blooms each spring begin the growing season. Now's the time to plant shrubs for beauty next spring.

Know how to judge quality of apples

Apples picked too early may be off-flavored, sour, poorly colored and small says James E. Schuster, Horticulture Extension Adviser at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service.

On the other hand, overripe apples may develop water core while still on the tree or after picking and they may become mealy or flat in flavor.

Apples increase in size in the final stages of maturity. From this standpoint, Schuster says that it is desirable to leave the fruit on the trees. The gardener can make some tests that will help him decide when to pick.

One way is to sample for flavor and aroma. If the starches have changed to sugar and the flavor and aroma characteristic for the variety has developed, the apple should be mature and thus ready for picking. Flesh color inside should be creamy white to pale yellowish-green.

Another way to test maturity involves observation of the under color or ground color of the fruit for the first signs of changing from green (a characteristic color before the fruit is mature) to a yellow or greenish-yellow. This is easy to observe in yellow or gold varieties. In red varieties, the under color becomes masked as the red color develops. Areas around the core or stem cavities usually retain the under color.

A general guide is to know the average number of days from full bloom to harvest for the particular variety. The average time from bloom to mature fruit is 130-135 days for Jonathans, 135-145 days for Red Delicious, 140-150 for Golden Delicious and 160 to 170 days for Winesap. Ripening will occur about 10 days after maturity.

If the home gardener will consider as many of these guides as possible to supplement his own experience, they should be able to pick apple when they are at the "peak of quality" concludes Schuster.

by TONY FULMER
of Klehm Nursery

A 'Raspberry Sundae' sounds delicious any time of year, but did you know it's also a beautiful Klehm's Estate Hyrid Peony? This huge double with a soft vanilla-white background overflows with luscious raspberry-pink petals.

Peonies, planted bare-root now, add a truly distinctive note to your perennial border with vivid shades of red, white and pink during May and June. Peonies should be planted in well-drained soil where they receive at least six hours of full sun each day. In addition to their glossy foliage, they are a useful summer hedge or a nice backdrop for shorter annuals. Planted about three feet apart on centers, they provide years and years of pleasure with minimal fuss as the plants get larger and heavier every year. In fact, peonies, unlike many perennials, actually prefer to remain in one spot rather than be lifted and separated periodically, and they need no winter mulch after the first year. What could be easier?

Iris, like peonies, are best transplanted bare-root in August and September. Not surprisingly, the two are a natural combination when planted together at the back of the perennial border. Iris are most effective when planted in masses of three to five plants of the same variety. One of the most exciting developments in Iris is the hybrid 'Juneau.' It is exceptional because of its extremely large size and the width and ruffling of the snow-white petals. The flower possesses a thickness and plasticity that makes it strongly resistant to weather and rain. This is an important consideration as 'Juneau' may grow as tall as 32 inches! The color range in bearded iris runs from deep violet-blue to soft pink and apricot as well as yellows and browns.

AN IDEAL SITE for iris would be in full sun and in a loamy soil that is well-drained. Iris should be placed in a fairly large hole and the soil settled in around the roots such that the top of the rhizome is slightly exposed. When planting in clumps, individual rhizomes should be spaced 12 to 15 inches apart.

In the fall, all gardeners have the spring-flowering bulbs on their minds. Crocus, daffodils, hyacinths, tulips, alliums and a host of other spring delights are so diverse in color, form, shape and texture, that there is one for almost any gardening site.

As rock garden subjects, used in masses around evergreens, in flower beds among perennials or in the garden where they can be overplanted with annuals as soon as the bulb foliage turns brown, they are unsurpassable.

Spring bulbs are most effective when planted in masses rather than used indivudually or placed in straight rows like 'soldiers'. Use them in groups of 5 or 10, or more in large circular clumps. For those who really prefer informality, crocus and daffodils are excellent subjects for naturalizing. Naturalizing is the process of taking a number of bulbs and gently dropping them on the grass. Then they are planted under the grass where they fall! They can be left in place for years and years to create a "woodland" setting. Bear in mind that these areas should not be mowed in the spring until the foliage has turned yellow-brown. All spring bulbs must retain their foliage as long as they are green, as they are storing food to produce the following year's flowers.

SPRING FLOWERING bulbs should be in well-drained soil where they get at least five to 6 hours of sunlight every day. Bonemeal or a complete fertilizer that is high in phosphorous (such as 5-10-5) can be incorporated in the soil at the time of planting.

Planting depth varies. Tulips and daffodils should be six inches deep and six inches apart, hyacinths six inches deep and five inches apart, and crocus three inches deep and three inches apart. For oher spring flowering bulbs, a good rule of thumb is to plant four times as deep as the diameter of the bulb. Water thoroughly at the time of planting and periodically thereafter if rainfall is scarce. In heavy clay soils, it is advisable to set somewhat higher than recommended depths.

By planting an assortment of spring bulbs, this fall, you can have flowers in March (species Crocus) through June (Lllium Giganteum) and months of color in between with the time-honored favorites like daffodils, hyacinths and tulips. So buy your bulbs, get our your trowel and assure yourself of a brignt spring-

"PINK LEMONADE" and other "delicious" perennial peony roots can be planted now for spring viewing pleasure. Ease of care and years of splendid blooms make these a great planting investment.

Plant a tree for posterity

Those little seed helicopters from the maple tree have a purpose other than to delight children and cover your sidewalk. They can start a new tree. So can acorns and that stuff that looks like snow from the elm trees. In fact, planting a tree to add to the beauty and pleasure of your yard is not difficult at all.

To learn how to grow trees from seeds, seedlings, saplings, or from your table scraps, get a copy of "Let's Plant a Tree," the new Johnny Horizon booklet from the U.S. Department of the Interior. Single copies are free from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 15, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Next spring's beauty begins now

Color that greets the spring and lasts through the summer depends on a little bit of enjoyable exercise you should be investing now. This is about the time to be putting in your flowering bulbs.

There is a wide variety available at the garden centers — crocus, daffodils, Dutch iris, hyacinths, lilies, tulips and many more — for your use in rock gardens, as groupings around trees, along slopes, fences, borders or as part of your formal garden planted with perennials, biennials or annuals when the blooming periods differ.

Whatever you choose, the American Association of Nurserymen has some suggestions that will help make the planting more successful. The first point the nursery spokesmen make is that the varieties you choose will depend on such things as soil drainage, sunlight, the amount of space available for planting, the heights of plants desired, colors, textures and blooming times. Information on all of these factors is readily available from the garden center, mailorder catalog or other source where you obtain the bulbs.

Some instructions are general, and apply to all flowering bulbs. For example, the space between the plantings will be about three to six inches, depending on the size of the bulb and the ultimate size of the flowering plant. Give larger bulbs like daffodils and lilies more space.

Prepare the soil by digging out eight to 10 inches, breaking it up and mixing it thoroughly with peat moss or other organic matter. Most soils are either acid or alkaline, so appropriate treatment can be added according to recommendations from your garden center. Appropriate fertilizer can also be mixed in the soil in the amounts recommended by the supplier. If the soil is very heavy the addition of sand will avoid the danger of standing water which could cause bulb rot.

With that preparation accomplished, the next step is to replace a few inches of that soil in the holes — just enough so the bulbs will rest at the correct depth. (That depth varies with different bulbs, so follow directions given when you make your purchase.)

Next, place the bulb in the hole, base down (the root disc is on the bottom), then backfill the hole with the rest of the prepared soil, firmly packing as you go. Leave a slight mound on the top to compensate for later settling.

Finish the planting procedure with a thorough watering. After that it is wise to give the bulbs a good watering any time there is no rain for a week or so. This will be particularly important later on during the flowering periods. Early next spring you will want to feed the plants with an organic or commercial fertilizer.

In areas where winters are cold, a mulch of straw, hay, evergreen boughs or other loose organic material applied about four inches deep will provide important protection. Then, as the ground begins to thaw, remove most of the mulch, leaving about an inch of cover. And that is about the amount of mulch cover recommended regardless of where you live.

Small cost, little effort, and great rewards: that's the story of flowering bulbs, one of nature's most colorful gifts.

Flowering shrubs have many uses

Consider the benefits to your yard of a flowering shrub. These multi-purpose plants can be used singly or in rows; can be decorative borders or background; can cover a fence or be a fence; can create privacy, prevent soil erosion and obstruct drifting snow. Then, along with all these features, include the added virtue of a resplendent display of flowers annually. Such a gift, in exchange for a small investment of cash and labor, must be one of nature's better deals!

The variety of sizes and shapes and colors of flowering shrubs is almost unlimited, so that your job is to decide where you want to plant, what function the shrubs are to perform and what qualities you want them to have.

After picking a site, decide how the shrubs are to be used: as windbreak, screen, hedge, border, near the house, on a slope, etc. Next you will need to know the height, width, color and texture you desire.

The conditions of the planting site are also important: sunny or shady exposure; moist or dry soil; climatic conditions, especially temperature extremes; and whether the soil is sandy, loamy or clay.

Once you have determined conditions and uses, your local nursery garden center can advise you on the best shrubs available to suit your purposes and the growing conditions of your site. Spring is an ideal time for planting, instructions for which can also be obtained from the garden center.

The American Association of Nurserymen, in its Green Survival program, stresses the significant role the individual can play in improving the quality of life through the nurture of plant life. This Bicentennial year, suggests the AAN, is a particularly appropriate occasion for Americans to dress up their lawns with nature's green, growing gifts — a way to help decorate America for the 200th birthday year.

So after you've carefully planted those flowering shrubs in the yard, remembering to give them food and water as they need them, you can look forward to the steady growth and yearly blossoming of these plants, taking pride in the beauty they bring and being grateful for their contribution to a more liveable environment.

SOMEWHERE in your home or garden is just the right spot for these handsome, practical planter boxes. Building them doesn't take a lot of time or money, thanks to new easy-to-follow plans. With the look of brick and stone, the planter boxes may seem difficult but you can actually build them yourself in a few hours. The quick assembly time and low cost is due to a unique construction method employing decorative brick and common lumber. Plans for the planter boxes, as well as for eleven other easy-to-build outdoor projects are available for 50 cents from Z-Brick Company Dept. P-1, Woodinville, Wa. 98072.

Roots are lifeblood of plants

by JANET TARA

Roots are the lifeblood of any plant. Many leaf-damaged plants can make a comeback even after a severe pruning of dead leaves, leaving naught but a bare stem. But once the roots die, there is no hope.

Once you determine the best routine for watering a plant according to the combination of plant variety, size and type of pot, you must stick to it.

Long dry spells followed by heavy watering can cause trouble. Each time a plant is allowed to severely dry out some of the roots die. If you follow this dry spell with a large amount of water to make up for the neglect, the surviving dried out roots are flooded and can't cope with the sudden change. This is how root rot starts.

The best solution for dried out soil is to bring the plant gradually back to its regular watering routine. But if you have damaged the plant, the lower leaves turn yellow and fall off. Here's what to do to correct the damage:

Gently remove the plant from the pot and soil Examine the roots and smell for decay. Remove all dead and hollow roots. If the soil is still wet, repot in dry sterilized soil. Add a small amount of water Gradually increase the amount. Keep the plant on the dry side until there are signs of improvement, i.e., the leaves stop yellowing.

This will only work if the roots haven't been very badly damaged. Once severe root damage has taken place, there is very little chance for survival.

Decks adapt to home uses

Wood decks can be built in many different ways, to solve landscaping or outdoor living problems, or add to the aesthetics of the house and yard.

Likewise, decks can be built of several species of lumber, including western cedar, western pine, Douglas fir and hemlock (the last two often graded together and sold as hem-fir).

A booklet containing construction details for raised, parquet and hexagonal decks is available for 25 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 513-P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

Flowers in winter

Flowers in winter bring added spirit during the dreary days, so the addition of an enclosed planting area alongside the house is a great boon to amateur horticulturists.

The heat can be brought from the house heating system, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, by connecting to it with ¾ inch tubing and running finned hot water baseboard elements around the perimeter. Temperature inside the hothouse can be controlled separately with a wall thermostat operating an automatic zone valve, maintaining the desired temperature without blowing dry air over the plants.

Fencing tips

A new fence built of western wood can be a handsome backdrop to plantings, as well as a means of limiting traffic in or out of the yard.

But there are several important steps to take before digging the post holes. First, check local building codes for height and location regulations.

Discuss property lines with neighbors or have them determined by survey. Study prevailing wind patterns so you can take advantage of breezes or deflect bothersome winds.

Such a gift, in exchange for a small investment of cash and labor, must be one of nature's better deals!

The variety of sizes and shapes and colors of flowering shrubs is almost unlimited, so that your job is to decide where you want to plant, what function the shrubs are to perform and what qualities you want them to have.

After picking a site, decide how the shrubs are to be used: as windbreak, screen, hedge, border, near the house, on a slope, etc. Next you will need to know the height, width, color and texture you desire.

The conditions of the planting site are also important: sunny or shady exposure; moist or dry soil; climatic conditions, especially temperature extremes; and whether the soil is sandy, loamy or clay.

Once you have determined conditions and uses, your local nursery garden center can advise you on the best shrubs available to suit your purposes and the growing conditions of your site. Spring is an ideal time for planting, instructions for which can also be obtained from the garden center.

The American Association of Nurserymen, in its Green Survival program, stresses the significant role the individual can play in improving the quality of life through the nurture of plant life. This Bicentennial year, suggests the AAN, is a particularly appropriate occasion for Americans to dress up their lawns with nature's green, growing gifts — a way to help decorate America for the 200th birthday year.

So after you've carefully planted those flowering shrubs in the yard, remembering to give them food and water as they need them, you can look forward to the steady growth and yearly blossoming of these plants, taking pride in the beauty they bring and being grateful for their contribution to a more liveable environment.

SOMEWHERE in your home or garden is just the right spot for these handsome, practical planter boxes. Building them doesn't take a lot of time or money, thanks to new easy-to-follow plans. With the look of brick and stone, the planter boxes may seem difficult but you can actually build them yourself in a few hours. The quick assembly time and low cost is due to a unique construction method employing decorative brick and common lumber. Plans for the planter boxes, as well as for eleven other easy-to-build outdoor projects are available for 50 cents from Z-Brick Company Dept. P-1, Woodinville, Wa. 98072.

Roots are lifeblood of plants

by JANET TARA

Roots are the lifeblood of any plant. Many leaf-damaged plants can make a comeback even after a severe pruning of dead leaves, leaving naught but a bare stem. But once the roots die, there is no hope.

Once you determine the best routine for watering a plant according to the combination of plant variety, size and type of pot, you must stick to it.

Long dry spells followed by heavy watering can cause trouble. Each time a plant is allowed to severely dry out some of the roots die. If you follow this dry spell with a large amount of water to make up for the neglect, the surviving dried out roots are flooded and can't cope with the sudden change. This is how root rot starts.

The best solution for dried out soil is to bring the plant gradually back to its regular watering routine. But if you have damaged the plant, the lower leaves turn yellow and fall off. Here's what to do to correct the damage:

Gently remove the plant from the pot and soil Examine the roots and smell for decay. Remove all dead and hollow roots. If the soil is still wet, repot in dry sterilized soil. Add a small amount of water Gradually increase the amount. Keep the plant on the dry side until there are signs of improvement, i.e., the leaves stop yellowing.

This will only work if the roots haven't been very badly damaged. Once severe root damage has taken place, there is very little chance for survival.

Decks adapt to home uses

Wood decks can be built in many different ways, to solve landscaping or outdoor living problems, or add to the aesthetics of the house and yard.

Likewise, decks can be built of several species of lumber, including western cedar, western pine, Douglas fir and hemlock (the last two often graded together and sold as hem-fir).

A booklet containing construction details for raised, parquet and hexagonal decks is available for 25 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 513-P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

Flowers in winter

Flowers in winter bring added spirit during the dreary days, so the addition of an enclosed planting area alongside the house is a great boon to amateur horticulturists.

The heat can be brought from the house heating system, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, by connecting to it with ¾ inch tubing and running finned hot water baseboard elements around the perimeter. Temperature inside the hothouse can be controlled separately with a wall thermostat operating an automatic zone valve, maintaining the desired temperature without blowing dry air over the plants.

Fencing tips

A new fence built of western wood can be a handsome backdrop to plantings, as well as a means of limiting traffic in or out of the yard.

But there are several important steps to take before digging the post holes. First, check local building codes for height and location regulations.

Discuss property lines with neighbors or have them determined by survey. Study prevailing wind patterns so you can take advantage of breezes or deflect bothersome winds.

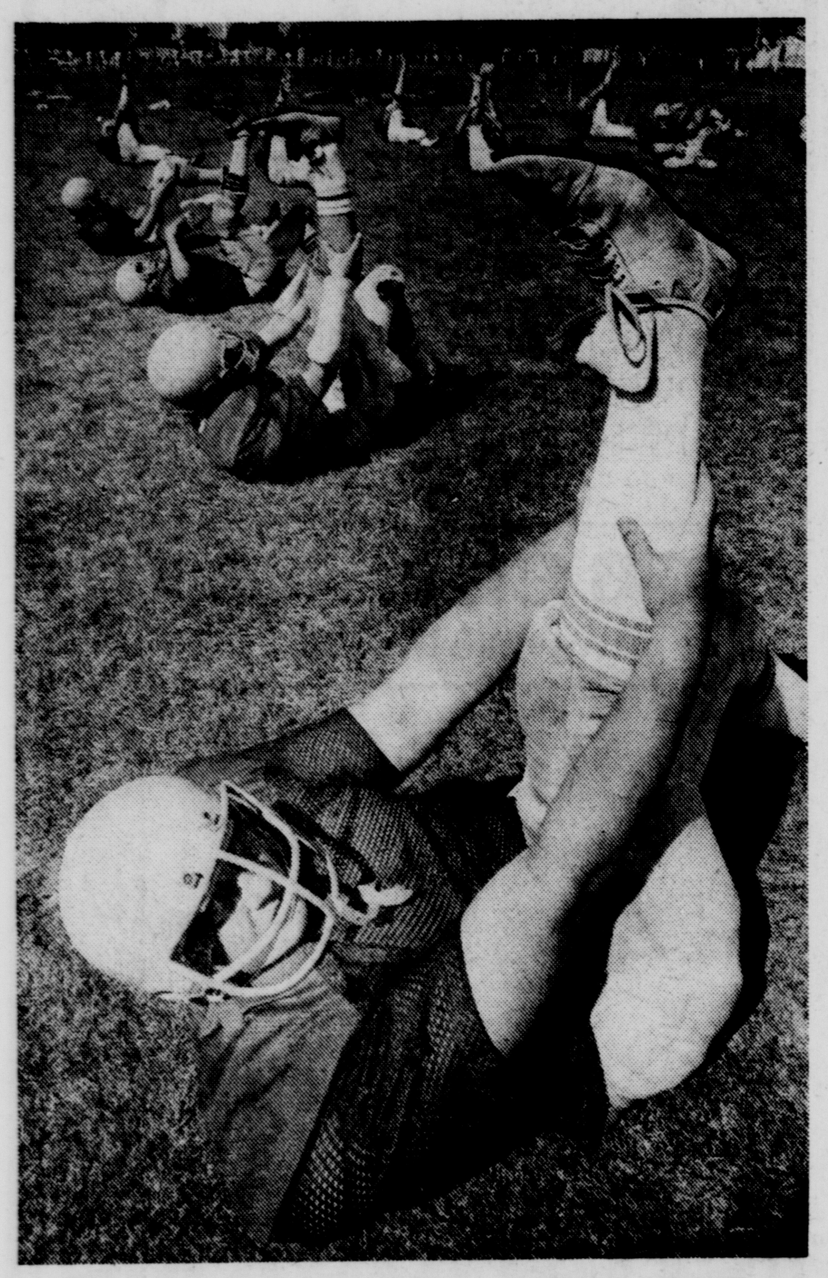
Area football play begins tonight

by BOB GALLAS

The trials and successes of last year have been forgotten. The pain and sweat of the two-a-day summer drills are gone. Everything's even — but not for long.

The 1976 high school football season gets underway tonight as all but four area entries launch their campaigns, while the others get rolling Saturday.

St. Viator travels to Forest View. Hoffman Estates is at Palatine while Prospect entertains Maine West. Wheeling hosts Rolling Meadows and Arlington will host Lake Forest. Elk Grove plays at Elgin Larkin and Hersey entertains Elgin.



GETTING SET. Football players all over the state have been busy getting their muscles ready for today's opening games of the 1976 high school schedule. The season comes as a welcome relief to those who have stuck out the two-a-day drills of late summer.

Conant will wait until Saturday for its visit to Buffalo Grove as will Fremd who will travel to Schaumburg.

Harper Junior College kicks off its season Sunday when they host the Northwestern University Jayvee squad.

Two new coaches make their area debut tonight, Gary Grouwinkel at Prospect and Art Klein at Rolling Meadows.

Here's a rundown on tonight's games.

MAINE WEST AT PROSPECT

Although Grouwinkel promises a new and exciting look for Prospect tonight, the Knights' new head coach also sees the visiting Maine West Warriors as the favorites.

"When I'm an underdog, I'll do anything," said Grouwinkel. "Because when I'm an underdog, I don't have anything to lose."

Andy Loos (5-10, 185), a junior, will be making his varsity debut at quarterback. He will be leading a fairly inexperienced offensive team that graduated its entire backfield last June.

Last year, the Knights ran up an impressive 28-13 win over the Warriors so coach Jim Morel and his band will be out for revenge.

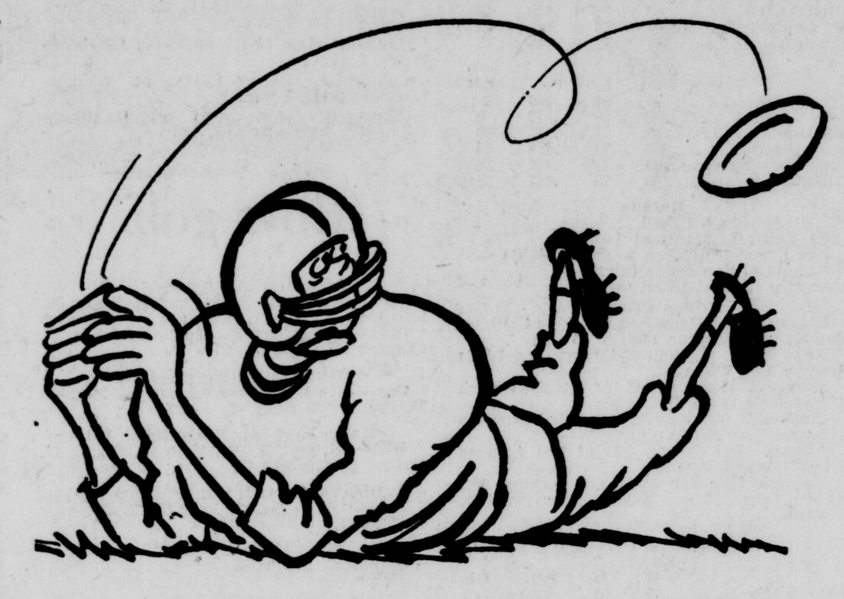
West boasts experience in key positions, especially at quarterback where crafty Bob Zuccarini is starting his third full season. But the Warriors are a bit thin when it comes to size and number.

ROLLING MEADOWS AT WHEELING

What you won't see may be the key to this contest, which will be the debut for Rolling Meadows' new coach, Art Klein.

Missing will be Meadows' quarterback Dennis Drolet, who played baseball with the American Legion team and wasn't able to get in enough practice time to be eligible for tonight's contest. Bill Collins, a 6-0, 170-pound junior, will start instead.

The rebuilding Wildcats from Wheeling won only one game in nine tries during coach Gerry Clinnin's first season last year, so a win would be a big boost to this season's goals at Wheeling. A blow to already small in number Wheeling was an injury this week to junior tailback Bob Steinberg, who may be out for the season.



ST. VIATOR AT FOREST VIEW

The traditionally powerful Lions from St. Viator will be starting a younger team than usual but coach Jim Lyne usually comes up with a potent squad.

Lyne is cautious of his team's chances and will be using this game to evaluate many of his untested players.

It should be an interesting battle as Viator's strong point this season should be its offense, which will be more experienced than the Lions' defensive crew. The Falcons, meanwhile, feel it will be their defense which will keep them in ballgames this season.

HOFFMAN AT PALATINE

Both of these squads are young and inexperienced and a key to the game could be which side makes the fewest mistakes.

Hoffman is also a small team, led by quarterback John Stabeck who can run and pass. "We're going to open up on offense . . . show them everything," said Hawks' coach Bill Gourley.

Gourley expects the Pirates to run the ball a great deal. And he hasn't forgotten last season's meeting with the Pirates, which dealt Hoffman its first loss in its first game of varsity competition, 21-14. Palatine came back from a 14-0 halftime deficit to win the game.

ELGIN AT HERSEY

Hersey Hlskies coach Joe Gilwa's formula for slowing down the quick Elgin attack is quite simple — stop Hersey.

That is, the Huskies must stop speedster Richard Hersey who was the only flaw in the Huskies' 29-6 win kickoff for a 91-yard touchdown and rushed for 29 yards for the Maroons, who as a team gained a total of 29 yards rushing and were limited to a total offense of 41 yards.

LAKE FOREST AT ARLINGTON

The Arlington Cardinals will have tradition on their side tonight when they host the powerful Scouts of Lake Forest. Over the past eight seasons, the Cards have a perfect 12-0 record outside the MSL.

Ironically, the last team to defeat Arlington was Barrington (20-13 in in 1967), also a member of the North Suburban Conference as is Lake Forest.

"It will be a tough game, especially on defense," said Haines. The Cards must stop a wishbone attack that's keyed by 6-3, 200-pound quarterback Tom Trkla.

One of only a few juniors to make all-conference last year, Trkla will be aided by fullback Wagner (6-2, 205) and quick halfbacks Bill Teskoski (6-1, 175) and Al Bussone (6-2, 195).

ELK GROVE AT ELGIN LARKIN

Elk Grove coach Don Schnake may have his best team in several years, but nevertheless wishes this game were a little farther on in the season when things would be more even.

The Larkin squad was able to start their practices four days earlier than the Grenadiers, and Schnake, who has to fill many positions with untried juniors, said he could use those four extra days.

The most potent part of the Grens' attack has to be their experienced backfield, especially Tim Roberts, who rushed for 922 yards in eight games last season.

"They (Larkin) handled us pretty well last year," said Schnake of Larkin's 28-6 win. "Larkin had an undefeated sophomore squad last year and they have a potential All-State candidate in their fullback!" Big Scott Connell scored two touchdowns in the game with Elk Grove last year. Larkin made their move on the ground, getting 291 of their 310 yards total on running plays.

Excitement, confusion surround stirring American Legion story

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

You had company if you were totally confused by the American Legion baseball story that unfolded in New Hampshire over the Labor Day weekend.

There was no confusion on the field as the team coached by Lloyd Meyer battled tremendous odds and courageously scrambled its way to the World Series title game.

The players did a fantastic job of shaking off a stunning defeat in that first game and climbing through the arduous loser's bracket to second place in the nation.

The confusion was off the field, a bit of red tape that had its origin four years ago after, believe it or not, a steak fry.

To be specific, you can't always tell a team by its name.

Next to someone asking, "How'd the Legion team do today?" the biggest question over the past few weeks, and particularly over the holiday weekend, was, "Why are they called Des Plaines?"

American Legion baseball teams must be sponsored by American Legion posts. They must have their papers signed by a Legion post to be eligible for the summer competition.

That sounds simple. Very official. The way it should be done.

It's not that simple.

If things were simple in American Legion baseball, Arlington Heights would be sponsored by Arlington Heights and Logan Square would be playing in Chicago, not at St. Viator High School.

The Arlington situation came to a head four years ago after a fund-raising steak fry.

It really doesn't matter now what happened to create those problems, but the discussion was heated, a vote was taken, and Merle Guild Post 208 elected to drop sponsorship of American Legion baseball.

"Too many people think they're going to have to spend money," said Meyer as he relaxed after the memorable holiday weekend in New England. "We raise the money. We always have. We're responsible for the bills.

"It just built up four years ago until some people felt it was too much of a hassle to continue. We explored several other possibilities, but finally Des Plaines signed the papers. It's been that way."

Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc. was formed to help keep the American Legion program going, working to collect the cash, and although it hasn't been easy, it's obvious the program is alive.

Second place in the nation. It's alive.

The entire situation would have attracted little attention without the national exposure. But there was national attention and, suddenly, Des Plaines Post 36 became famous as Arlington Heights marched to the finals.

"I know how confusing it was to many people," Meyer said. "It was even confusing in New Hampshire. But, heck, we like to be called Arlington Heights because that's where we get the money to keep going, that's where most of the kids come from. But, officially, it was Des Plaines."

Meyer took a day off Wednesday to talk about this amazing group of youngsters that climbed so far, finishing just inches — or a couple runs — from the top, the pinnacle of American Legion baseball.

"I'm just so proud of those kids," he beamed, flashing that big smile that has always been his trademark. Jimmy Carter has just copied his style.

"I never had to say anything twice. It was that type of group. They responded so well and were such a fine representative of our area. Gentlemen. I didn't have to worry about any one kid. Gentlemen all the way."

That loss to Rhode Island in the opening game shook Meyer and his entire team. They were down, flat, and it is remarkable how they bounced off that floor and battled back.

"It was an unbelievable situation," Meyer said. "One more loss and we go home. And we have to play Yakima, the defending champion.

"I felt sorry for the parents more than anything else. The kids had been there a few days, but many of the parents had just arrived and had just settled in their rooms. And now we were faced with going right back home.

"I wanted to say we belonged there," he continued. "I knew we did, but it looked so difficult to come back. Beating Yakima just had to give me one of the biggest thrills I've ever had in coaching because it just set everything up the rest of the way."

Meyer fully appreciates the hardships that faced many of the youngsters with football and school.

"It was tough on many of them," he said. "But it was such an unforgettable experience. They'll never forget this whole tournament exposure. And the nationals. They're something else. First-class all they way."

There has been talk of pushing the Legion World Series to an earlier date, but it's just not that easy.

"We think locally, about our own problems," Meyer said, "but there are national problems. It would be nice to have the nationals earlier, but the state high school baseball tournament in Indiana, for example, ended in very late June. And that's just one we know of. Everybody's getting squeezed. We're all running into each other's programs.

"Things can be worked out. Sure, we're all prejudiced toward our own programs, but we just have to cooperate and work together."

Cooperation. Simple, isn't it?

Who knows, next summer the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team may actually be the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team.

No money problems in Yakima

American Legion baseball is in the news now with the surge by Arlington Heights to national prominence.

Although there are problems locally with finances and sponsorship, the American Legion baseball program itself offers some model examples across the country.

The Logan Wheeler Post 36 of Yakima, Wash., 1975 national champion and a finalist again this year, boasts one of those successful programs.

Yakima played 88 games this summer, had all those games broadcast on radio and has "money coming out of our ears" according to one team official.

How does Yakima do it while others struggle just for the next dollar? Are there lessons to be learned?

Bob Frisk talked with Yakima officials and will present their amazing success story next week in his column.

Classic play opens with scoring changes

The Paddock Classic Traveling League will unveil a revolutionary concept of scoring Saturday night when the area's top bowlers make their 1976-77 debut at Sims Bowl in Des Plaines at 6:30 p.m.

A new 25-point system of competition will be implemented that will shift emphasis from strictly a team vantage point to an individual, head-to-head challenge as well.

Teams in competition for the men on the opening weekend include Beverly Lanes, Weber Bar-B-Que Kettles, Formco Metal Products, Des Plaines Ace Hardware, Dick McFeely Pontiac, Grand Spaulding Dodge of Buffalo Grove and Oost Produce Co., Inc.

The Paddock Classic Traveling League will bowl 32 nights during a split season with 16 nights constituting each half.

The scratch bowlers will be competing on a rotating basis at franchise houses at Des Plaines Lanes, Hoffman Lanes, Buffalo Grove Striker, Sims and Beverly Lanes.

The new scoring system is complicated, but intriguing. Operating under a normal schedule of competition, the team on the left lane will enter its lineup on the scoring sheet first.

The opposing team can then determine its lineup, perhaps matching the highest average bowlers, or mis-matching the highest with the lowest. Once both lineups have been written in, they may not be changed.

One point will be awarded to the bowler who outscores his opponent in each game. Thus the five men on each team bowling three games for the night would generate 15 points of competition.

In addition to those 15 "individual" points of scoring, each team will add three points for each game won plus one point for the team series, for a total of 25 points.

In the old system of scoring, a team was awarded two points for each game won plus another point for total series to create a seven-point sweep.

Formco Metal Products will be seeking its fourth straight Paddock Classic Traveling League title and they'll have to beat a new point spread to do it.

Rosters will be released as soon as the eight Paddock Classic teams are complete.

Area football play begins tonight

by BOB GALLAS

The trials and successes of last year have been forgotten. The pain and sweat of the two-a-day summer drills are gone. Everything's even — but not for long.

The 1976 high school football season gets underway tonight as all but four area entries launch their campaigns, while the others get rolling Saturday.

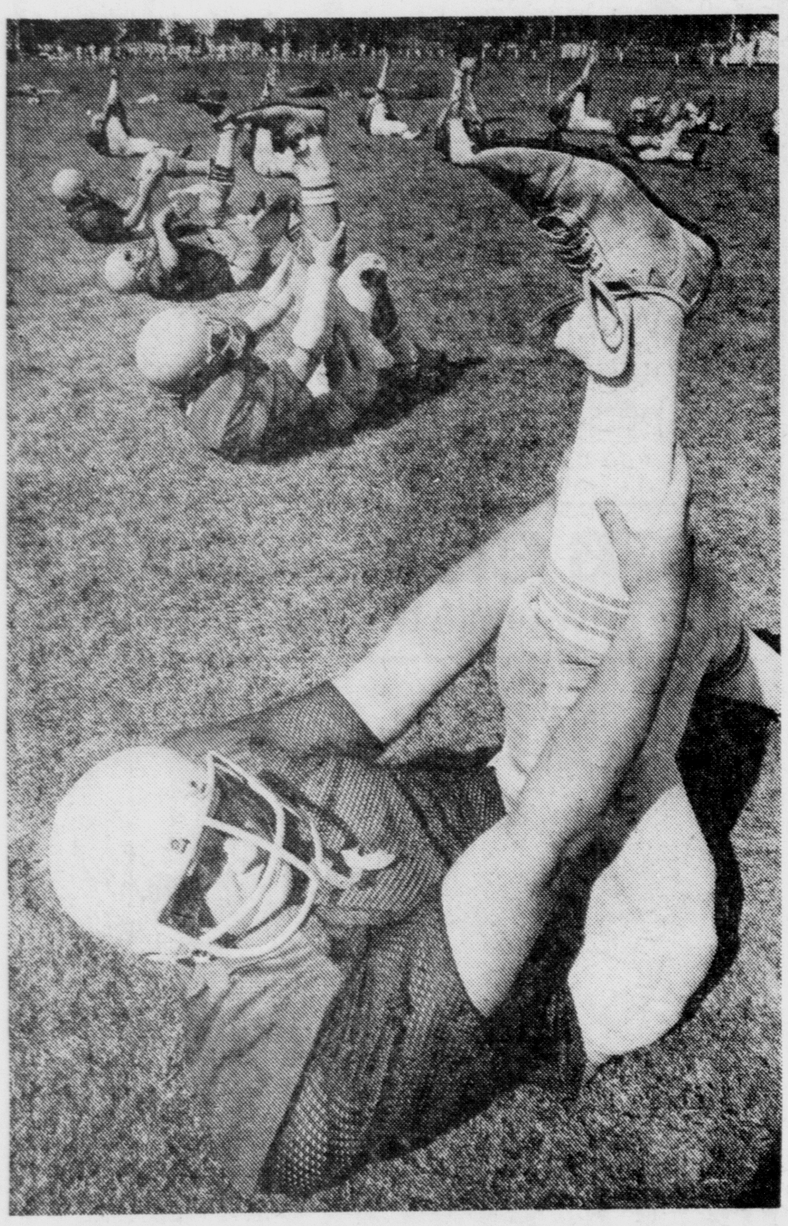
St. Viator travels to Forest View. Hoffman Estates is at Palatine while Prospect entertains Maine West. Wheeling hosts Rolling Meadows and Arlington will host Lake Forest. Elk Grove plays at Elgin Larkin and Hersey entertains Elgin.

Conant will wait until Saturday for its visit to Buffalo Grove as will Fremd who will travel to Schaumburg.

Harper Junior College kicks off its season Sunday when they host the Northwestern University Jayvee squad.

Two new coaches make their area debut tonight, Gary Grouwinkel at Prospect and Art Klein at Rolling Meadows.

Here's a rundown on tonight's games.



GETTING SET. Football players all over the state have been busy getting their muscles ready for today's opening games of the 1976 high school schedule. The season comes as a welcome relief to those who have stuck out the two-a-day drills of late summer.

MAINE WEST AT PROSPECT

Although Grouwinkel promises a new and exciting look for Prospect tonight, the Knights' new head coach also sees the visiting Maine West Warriors as the favorites.

"When I'm an underdog, I'll do anything," said Grouwinkel. "Because when I'm an underdog, I don't have anything to lose."

Andy Loos (5-10, 185), a junior, will be making his varsity debut at quarterback. He will be leading a fairly inexperienced offensive team that graduated its entire backfield last June.

Last year, the Knights ran up an impressive 28-13 win over the Warriors so coach Jim Morel and his band will be out for revenge.

West boasts experience in key positions, especially at quarterback where crafty Bob Zuccarini is starting his third full season. But the Warriors are a bit thin when it comes to size and number.

ROLLING MEADOWS AT WHEELING

What you won't see may be the key to this contest, which will be the debut for Rolling Meadows' new coach, Art Klein.

Missing will be Meadows' quarterback Dennis Drolet, who played baseball with the American Legion team and wasn't able to get in enough practice time to be eligible for tonight's contest. Bill Collins, a 6-0, 170-pound junior, will start instead.

The rebuilding Wildcats from Wheeling won only one game in nine tries during coach Gerry Clinnin's first season last year, so a win would be a big boost to this season's goals at Wheeling. A blow to already small in number Wheeling was an injury this week to junior tailback Bob Steinberg, who may be out for the season.

ST. VIATOR AT FOREST VIEW

The traditionally powerful Lions from St. Viator will be starting a younger team than usual but coach Jim Lyne usually comes up with a potent squad.

Lyne is cautious of his team's chances and will be using this game to evaluate many of his untested players.

It should be an interesting battle as Viator's strong point this season should be its offense, which will be more experienced than the Lions' defensive crew. The Falcons, meanwhile, feel it will be their defense which will keep them in ballgames this season.

HOFFMAN AT PALATINE

Both of these squads are young and inexperienced and a key to the game could be which side makes the fewest mistakes.

Hoffman is also a small team, led by quarterback John Stabeck who can run and pass. "We're going to open up on offense . . . show them everything," said Hawks' coach Bill Gourley.

Gourley expects the Pirates to run the ball a great deal. And he hasn't forgotten last season's meeting with the Pirates, which dealt Hoffman its first loss in its first game of varsity competition, 21-14. Palatine came back from a 14-0 halftime deficit to win the game.

ELGIN AT HERSEY

Hersey Hlskies coach Joe Gilwa's formula for slowing down the quick Elgin attack is quite simple — stop Hersey.

That is, the Huskies must stop speedster Richard Hersey who was the only flaw in the Huskies' 29-6 win kickoff for a 91-yard touchdown and rushed for 29 yards for the Maroons, who as a team gained a total of 29 yards rushing and were limited to a total offense of 41 yards.

LAKE FOREST AT ARLINGTON

The Arlington Cardinals will have tradition on their side tonight when they host the powerful Scouts of Lake Forest. Over the past eight seasons, the Cards have a perfect 12-0 record outside the MSL.

Ironically, the last team to defeat Arlington was Barrington (20-13 in in 1967), also a member of the North Suburban Conference as is Lake Forest.

"It will be a tough game, especially on defense," said Haines. The Cards must stop a wishbone attack that's keyed by 6-3, 200-pound quarterback Tom Trkla.

One of only a few juniors to make all-conference last year, Trkla will be aided by fullback Wagner (6-2, 205) and quick halfbacks Bill Teskoski (6-1, 175) and Al Bussone (6-2, 195).

ELK GROVE AT ELGIN LARKIN

Elk Grove coach Don Schnake may have his best team in several years, but nevertheless wishes this game were a little farther on in the season when things would be more even.

The Larkin squad was able to start their practices four days earlier than the Grenadiers, and Schnake, who has to fill many positions with untried juniors, said he could use those four extra days.

The most potent part of the Grens' attack has to be their experienced backfield, especially Tim Roberts, who rushed for 922 yards in eight games last season.

"They (Larkin) handled us pretty well last year," said Schnake of Larkin's 28-6 win. "Larkin had an undefeated sophomore squad last year and they have a potential All-State candidate in their fullback!" Big Scott Connell scored two touchdowns in the game with Elk Grove last year. Larkin made their move on the ground, getting 291 of their 310 yards total on running plays.

Excitement, confusion surround stirring American Legion story

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

You had company if you were totally confused by the American Legion baseball story that unfolded in New Hampshire over the Labor Day weekend.

There was no confusion on the field as the team coached by Lloyd Meyer battled tremendous odds and courageously scrambled its way to the World Series title game.

The players did a fantastic job of shaking off a stunning defeat in that first game and climbing through the arduous loser's bracket to second place in the nation.

The confusion was off the field, a bit of red tape that had its origin four years ago after, believe it or not, a steak fry.

To be specific, you can't always tell a team by its name.

Next to someone asking, "How'd the Legion team do today?" the biggest question over the past few weeks, and particularly over the holiday weekend, was, "Why are they called Des Plaines?"

American Legion baseball teams must be sponsored by American Legion posts. They must have their papers signed by a Legion post to be eligible for the summer competition.

That sounds simple. Very official. The way it should be done.

It's not that simple.

If things were simple in American Legion baseball, Arlington Heights would be sponsored by Arlington Heights and Logan Square would be playing in Chicago, not at St. Viator High School.

The Arlington situation came to a head four years ago after a fund-raising steak fry.

It really doesn't matter now what happened to create those problems, but the discussion was heated, a vote was taken, and Merle Guild Post 208 elected to drop sponsorship of American Legion baseball.

"Too many people think they're going to have to spend money," said Meyer as he relaxed after the memorable holiday weekend in New England. "We raise the money. We always have. We're responsible for the bills.

"It just built up four years ago until some people felt it was too much of a hassle to continue. We explored several other possibilities, but finally Des Plaines signed the papers. It's been that way."

Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc. was formed to help keep the American Legion program going, working to collect the cash, and although it hasn't been easy, it's obvious the program is alive.

Second place in the nation. It's alive.

The entire situation would have attracted little attention without the national exposure. But there was national attention and, suddenly, Des Plaines Post 36 became famous as Arlington Heights marched to the finals.

"I know how confusing it was to many people," Meyer said. "It was even confusing in New Hampshire. But, heck, we like to be called Arlington Heights because that's where we get the money to keep going, that's where most of the kids come from. But, officially, it was Des Plaines."

Meyer took a day off Wednesday to talk about this amazing group of youngsters that climbed so far, finishing just inches — or a couple runs — from the top, the pinnacle of American Legion baseball.

"I'm just so proud of those kids," he beamed, flashing that big smile that has always been his trademark. Jimmy Carter has just copied his style.

"I never had to say anything twice. It was that type of group. They responded so well and were such a fine representative of our area. Gentlemen. I didn't have to worry about any one kid. Gentlemen all the way."

That loss to Rhode Island in the opening game shook Meyer and his entire team. They were down, flat, and it is remarkable how they bounced off that floor and battled back.

"It was an unbelievable situation," Meyer said. "One more loss and we go home. And we have to play Yakima, the defending champion.

"I felt sorry for the parents more than anything else. The kids had been there a few days, but many of the parents had just arrived and had just settled in their rooms. And now we were faced with going right back home.

"I wanted to say we belonged there," he continued. "I knew we did, but it looked so difficult to come back. Beating Yakima just had to give me one of the biggest thrills I've ever had in coaching because it just set everything up the rest of the way."

Meyer fully appreciates the hardships that faced many of the youngsters with football and school.

"It was tough on many of them," he said. "But it was such an unforgettable experience. They'll never forget this whole tournament exposure. And the nationals. They're something else. First-class all they way."

There has been talk of pushing the Legion World Series to an earlier date, but it's just not that easy.

"We think locally, about our own problems," Meyer said, "but there are national problems. It would be nice to have the nationals earlier, but the state high school baseball tournament in Indiana, for example, ended in very late June. And that's just one we know of. Everybody's getting squeezed. We're all running into each other's programs.

"Things can be worked out. Sure, we're all prejudiced toward our own programs, but we just have to cooperate and work together."

Cooperation. Simple, isn't it?

Who knows, next summer the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team may actually be the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team.

No money problems in Yakima

American Legion baseball is in the news now with the surge by Arlington Heights to national prominence.

Although there are problems locally with finances and sponsorship, the American Legion baseball program itself offers some model examples across the country.

The Logan Wheeler Post 36 of Yakima, Wash., 1975 national champion and a finalist again this year, boasts one of those successful programs.

Yakima played 88 games this summer, had all those games broadcast on radio and has "money coming out of our ears" according to one team official.

How does Yakima do it while others struggle just for the next dollar? Are there lessons to be learned?

Bob Frisk talked with Yakima officials and will present their amazing success story next week in his column.

Old Orchard Smilers

The Old Orchard Smilers ladies' golf league rounded out the year with a two-day golf tournament.

On Aug. 12 low gross and low net honors went to Winnie Garten in Flight A 46-28; Lorraine Lamberty, low gross of 56 and Ellen Johnson, low net of 33 in Flight B; Alice Brown 62-34 in Flight C; Eva Lischko 72-36 in Flight D.

Pars were carded by Connie Malechi, Garten, Johnson, Marie Mayfield, Nancy Houseworth, Flo Marzullo, Arlene Runge and Mary Ann Schweigerdt.

Low gross and low net the following week went to Garten in Flight A 48-30; Joan Dumelle in Flight B 52-29; Alice Brown in Flight C 61-33 with Nancy Fendlius tying for low net; Barney Zacharias in Flight D 67-31.

Pars were recorded by Phyllis Johnston, Garten, Marzullo, Chris Arrigo, Dumelle, Runge, Malechi, Erd and Sorenson.

The awards given at the luncheon at Old Orchard Country Club were: Tournament Low Gross — Flight A, Garten 94; Flight B, Dumelle 112; Flight C, Alice Brown 123; Flight D, Zacharias 148. Low gross for the year was awarded to Malechi with a 48.

Year low net awards were won by: Dee Lemler and Schwiegerdt in Flight A with 28; Johnston in Flight B with 29; Rasmussen in Flight C with 25; Lischko in Flight D with 35.

Low ringer score was shared by Runge and Betty Godwin with 40. Most improved golfer awards were given to Mary Dahl and Fran Lucas, who both shaved seven strokes off their game.

Garten had the most pars for the year. Marzullo and Godwin had the most birdies while Malechi won low putts and shared perfect attendance with Bev Stamper.

The Mount Prospect Midget Football Assn. kicked off its 1976 season on Labor Day with only the Senior teams playing.

Giants 26, Packers 0

The Giants, in midseason form, leveled the Packers in the opening game. Fullback Gilbreth opened the scoring with a nifty run off tackle in the first quarter after a Pack fumble on their first play. Nielsen quarterbacked a good game and closed the first half scoring with a TD. The second half belonged to Toepper who ran for two TD's, including a 60 yarder. Outstanding blocking was provided by Gorgol, Paisley, Benjamin, Phillips, Arnold, Quich and Prendergast. Strong running was credited to Nicholich. Prendergast made some fine receptions, including one for the extra point. The Packers without the services of their quarterback relied on the fine play of Magee.

Cardinals 6, Lions 6

In the second half Card Gerber hit Jennings with a screen pass for the TD. Other excellent running was by Ayers. Moran blocked a punt and Francis intercepted a late Lion pass.

Lion quarterback Mooney tied the score on a sneak after Damiano blocked a punt. Leading the blocks on offense were Johnson, Esquivel and Bernard. Backs Koepke, Ochab, Wingate and Koepke ran well. Defensively Damiano had 16 solo tackles, while Mooney, Sheridan, Prawitt, Tchon and Hassan's fumble recovery led the Lion charge.

Nastase, Connors advance in Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Nobody but Ilie Nastase will ever know whether his complaining at a crucial point in his match with Dick Stockton was a premeditated "psyche," but it sent the enigmatic Romanian rolling toward a 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 victory Thursday and a semifinal showdown with Bjorn Borg at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The second-seeded Borg, who defeated Nastase for the Wimbledon title, held off a charging Manuel Orantes, the defending champion and sixth seed, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, in a match in which Borg's youth, speed and iron nerve helped him survive the affable Spaniard's comeback from 0-4 in the fourth set.

In the other semifinal, top-seeded Jimmy Connors, 1974 champion and the only American survivor in the last four, meets third-seeded Guillermo Vilas.

Friday's semifinals in the women's bracket have Chris Evert and Mima Jausovec in one match and Evonne Goolagong and Dianne Fromholtz in the other. Both men's semifinal matches will be held Saturday afternoon.

Bruins stun Arizona State, 28-10

The UCLA Bruins put a serious crimp in the national championship hopes of the Arizona State Sun Devils as they waltzed to a 28-10 victory in front of 50,876 stunned State faithful Thursday.

Frank Kush's ASU squad, unbeaten last season and contenders for their first national crown this year, had their doubts about defensive strength confirmed as UCLA quarterback Jeff Dankworth spun for 157 yards rushing in 19 carries.

Dankworth scored two touchdowns in the second quarter on runs of 32-yards and 1-yard to give the Bruins a 14-3 edge at halftime.

UCLA struck twice in the third quarter as running back Theotis Brown scored two touchdowns to seal the win.

Bears' opener blacked out Sunday

NEW YORK — The National Football League announced Thursday that all but three games on Sunday's opening day of the 1976 season would be blacked out in home areas.

The league said that only the three games—New York at Washington, Pittsburgh at Oakland and San Francisco at Green Bay — had sold out 48 hours before game time and would be televised locally.

The blackout legislation has expired but the NFL is continuing to abide by it. The three sellouts are the fewest since blackout legislation began in 1973.

The Bears' opener with the Detroit Lions Sunday will be blacked out in the Chicago area.

Knicks buy Braves' McMillian

NEW YORK — The New York Knicks Thursday purchased forward Jim McMillian from the Buffalo Braves. The transaction was to be announced at a Friday press conference at Madison Square Garden.

McMillian, a 28-year-old former All-America at Columbia University, became expendable when the Braves selected Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley in this year's college draft.

Three tied for World Open lead

PINEHURST, N. C. — Tom Watson, George Burns, and Bob Smith, all looking for their first tournament victories this year, fired six-under-par 65s Thursday to share the first round lead in the $200,000 World Open golf tournament.

Burns and Smith, neither of whom have ever won a tournament, said their rounds included some of the best golf they have ever played.

Watson, winless since taking the Byron Nelson Golf Classic and the British Open last year, said, "It really wasn't my greatest round of golf, but I got the most out of it."

NFL wide open to suits: attorney

WASHINGTON — The attorney for James "Yazoo" Smith said Thursday that a federal judge's ruling striking down the National Football League's college player draft could lead to successful lawsuits by every player drafted in the past four years.

U.S. District Court Judge William B. Bryant ruled Wednesday that Smith, the Washington Redskins No. 1 draft pick in 1967, was entitled to treble damages totaling $276,600 from the league and the Redskins, plus court costs and legal fees.

Bryant called the NFL draft system an outright refusal to deal with college stars chosen by the 28 pro teams, and therefore a "most pernicious" antitrust violation.

"Any player drafted in the last four years has a potential lawsuit if he has a grievance," said Smith's attorney, Stewart H. Johnson of Washington.

Old Orchard Smilers

The Old Orchard Smilers ladies' golf league rounded out the year with a two-day golf tournament.

On Aug. 12 low gross and low net honors went to Winnie Garten in Flight A 46-28; Lorraine Lamberty, low gross of 56 and Ellen Johnson, low net of 33 in Flight B; Alice Brown 62-34 in Flight C; Eva Lischko 72-36 in Flight D.

Pars were carded by Connie Malechi, Garten, Johnson, Marie Mayfield, Nancy Houseworth, Flo Marzullo, Arlene Runge and Mary Ann Schweigerdt.

Low gross and low net the following week went to Garten in Flight A 48-30; Joan Dumelle in Flight B 52-29; Alice Brown in Flight C 61-33 with Nancy Fendius tying for low net; Barney Zacharias in Flight D 67-31.

Pars were recorded by Phyllis Johnston, Garten, Marzullo, Chris Arrigo, Dumelle, Runge, Malechi, Erd and Sorenson.

The awards given at the luncheon at Old Orchard Country Club were: Tournament Low Gross — Flight A, Garten 94; Flight B, Dumelle 112; Flight C, Alice Brown 123; Flight D, Zacharias 148. Low gross for the year was awarded to Malechi with a 48.

Year low net awards were won by: Dee Lemler and Schwiegerdt in Flight A with 28; Johnston in Flight B with 29; Rasmussen in Flight C with 25; Lischko in Flight D with 35.

Low ringer score was shared by Runge and Betty Godwin with 40. Most improved golfer awards were given to Mary Dahl and Fran Lucas, who both shaved seven strokes off their game.

Garten had the most pars for the year. Marzullo and Godwin had the most birdies while Malechi won low putts and shared perfect attendance with Bev Stamper.

Phils rebound past Cubs

PHILADELPHIA — Jim Lonborg put down a perfect sacrifice bunt to ignite a four-run second inning Thursday night and went on to pick up his 15th victory as the Philadelphia Phillits defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2.

The victory was only the second in the last 13 games for the Phillies, who increased their National League East lead to five games over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Gary Maddox singled with one out to ignite the Phils' biggest inning since Aug. 24. Maddox stole second and Bob Boone walked to set the stage for Lonborg ,who advanced both runners with his bunt. Dave Cash beat out an infield single to score Maddox and Larry Bowa singled to send home Boone. Cash also scored on the play when centerfielder Joe Wallis threw wild past third. Bowa scored the fourth run on a passed ball to tag Bill Bonham with the loss.

Oakland nips Sox, 2-1

OAKLAND — Relief pitcher Rollie Fingers ended an eight-inning Chicago rally Thursday to preserve the Oakland A's 2-1 victory over the White Sox and pick up his 20th save of the season.

Fingers, Oakland's fourth pitcher, came into the game after Paul Lindblad had given up leadoff singles in the eighth to Jorge Orta and Lamar Johnson. Chet Lemon sacrificed the runners to second and third and Fingers then intentionally walked Jack Brohamer to load the bases. The A's reliever then retired Bucky Dent on a pop up and struck out Brian Downing.

Oakland scored single runs off loser Ken Brett in the second and third innings. The first run scored on a Joe Rudi's double and Gene Tenace's single. Bill North walked, went to second on a balk and scored on Don Baylor's single for the second run.

Orta homered off winner Jim Todd, 7-8, in the sixth for the only Chicago run.

Prospect harriers show strength; Cougars, Mustangs open with wins

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

Prospect put three sophomores in the top 10 finishers to beat Schaumburg, 19-40 Thursday and give notice that the Knights will be a force to contend with in Mid-Suburban South cross country.

The Prospect-Schaumburg battle was one of three MSL meets that kicked off the league dual season, and it was considered a key, early-season indicator of team strength in the South. Both the Knights and the Schaumburg Saxons were being touted as preseason favorites, and Schaumburg had finished ahead of Prospect in the Hinsdale Invite last weekend.

But Prospect had the upper hand Thursday, thanks partly to the performance of junior Mark Smith, who took a victory in 14:10 on the 2.75-mile Prospect course. Well behind Smith, in third and fourth place, were teammates Dave Hayes (15:03) and Matt Lawson (15:08).

Sophomores Ken Wetendorf, in fifth, and Scott Satko, sixth, gave Prospect five runners in front of Schaumburg's second man. Another Knight soph, Jeff Leino, was ninth. Prospect's spread between first and fifth men was 68 seconds.

Schaumburg's first man was Paul Stout, another sophomore, who ran 14:52. Keith Mazikowski and Randy Lewis were seventh and eighth, respectively.

In the other league meets on Thursday's card, Rolling Meadows handed Elk Grove a 21-39 defeat, and Conant edged surprising Forest View 28-29. Hersey lost to Libertyville 22-35, but the Huskies beat Woodstock 24-31 and Stevenson 15-49. Buffalo Grove handled Warren 18-37 and Lake Zurich 15-46. Palatine (52) was second behind York (22) in the Pirates' quadrangular.

Wheeling joined Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows in an unofficial double-duel and Wildcat junior Ben Sanchez finished second (14:20) behind winner Tom Choice of Rolling Meadows, who ran 14:15 on Meadows' 2.75-mile course. Kevin Lucas of Wheeling was third (14:51), Joe Cullen of Elk Grove was fourth (14:52), and Fred Kocian of Meadows was fifth (15:03).

Conant's Dan Cummings, Bill Baird, Ben Applebeck and Brian Foss all beat Forest View's fourth man, but the Falcons gave it a battle. Darryl Robinson of Forest View ran a 14:40 on Conant's course to finish second in the meet behind Maine West's Brian Tolan (14:31).

The Warriors put six runners in the top 10 to sweep Conant and Forest View. Jeff Brydges was third, Don Murray fifth and Gary Paul seventh.

Buffalo Grove's Joe Schmidt, Joe Shields and Paul Gebo ran one-two-three and Steve March was fifth as the Bison opened their season successfully at Warren. Schmidt's winning three-mile time was 16:23.

Palatine, running without three of their top harriers, still managed to put Kevin Nikolai and Tony Vargas within seven seconds of York's winner, Todd Peterson, who ran a 14:56 at Palatine Hills.

Rich Rieger ran second in 15:40 on a tough 2.85-mile course as Hersey made a successful debut at Libertyville. Teammates Leroy Fishleigh (6th) and Dave Untiedt (8th) also cracked the top 10 in the four-team meet.

Knights, Hawks win in soccer

Prospect tacked a win on their Mid-Suburban League soccer record with a 3-1 win over Buffalo Grove and Hoffman Estates stepped out of the league to handle East Leyden 2-1 Thursday.

Prospect got goals fron Roger Constorf, Ed Lindeman and Santiago Bustamante as they evened their record at 1-1.

The Knights' goalie, Norb Raddatz, held Buffalo Grove to a single goal by Cordery in the second quarter.

Prospect's sophomores also triumphed 3-1.

Hoffman and East Leyden fought a scoreless duel until the fourth quarter when the Hawks' Mark Chalmers and Frank Mueller punched home goals.

Hoffman goalies John Gambora and Don Gay got outstanding defensive help from Bill Cook.

Eest Leyden did not score their goal until just 18 seconds remained.

Hoffman's sophomores posted a 1-0 victory.

Phils rebound past Cubs

PHILADELPHIA — Jim Lonborg put down a perfect sacrifice bunt to ignite a four-run second inning Thursday night and went on to pick up his 15th victory as the Philadelphia Phillits defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2.

The victory was only the second in the last 13 games for the Phillies, who increased their National League East lead to five games over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Gary Maddox singled with one out to ignite the Phils' biggest inning since Aug. 24. Maddox stole second and Bob Boone walked to set the stage for Lonborg ,who advanced both runners with his bunt. Dave Cash beat out an infield single to score Maddox and Larry Bowa singled to send home Boone. Cash also scored on the play when centerfielder Joe Wallis threw wild past third. Bowa scored the fourth run on a passed ball to tag Bill Bonham with the loss.

The Cubs scored twice in the sixth as Larry Biittner singled in both runners after a walk to Rick Monday, a single by Wallis and a walk to Bill Madlock to load the bases.

Oakland nips Sox, 2-1

OAKLAND — Relief pitcher Rollie Fingers ended an eight-inning Chicago rally Thursday to preserve the Oakland A's 2-1 victory over the White Sox and pick up his 20th save of the season.

Mustang archers end Cardinal win streak

by PAUL LOGAN
Archery Editor

"I was off the ground half the night," said Ken Bates Thursday.

He was still sky high the morning after his Rolling Meadows archery team had competed in their first Mid-Suburban League meet ever. The reason — his Mustang girls had pulled off quite a surprising victory over the perennial league champions, the Arlington Cardinals.

It was the season opener for both teams Wednesday night. New head coach Linda Angeloff and her Cardinal team carried a sparkling three-year winning streak into the meet of 31 straight victories. When the shooting ended, Meadows celebrated a hard-fought 9-2 win.

"I knew they were good but I didn't know they were that good," said Bates of Arlington's fine record over the years. "I was quite pleased."

Several archers wanted to have a team last year, but couldn't for several reasons. One of the principle ones was no coach.

Bates, who has a daughter on the team, offered his services. Presently a teacher at MacArthur Junior High, Bates has had several years of coaching and officiating experience, but not in archery. However, he has had personal experience in archery through the park district.

Ron Shalfant, an archery expert in the Rolling Meadows Park District, has taught many of the girls who are on this year's team. He has helped Bates get the program off the ground.

Bates said that Nancy Jacobs, a Meadows senior who won a national age group archery championship last summer, and Ron Ryba, also an avid archer at the school, have assisted him greatly. (Jacobs can't compete because her equipment is presently illegal according to Illinois High School Assn. rules.)

"I'm really pleased with the cooperation all the people at the high school have given me," said Bates. Mrs. (Joan) Jensen (Girls' sports coordinator), Tom (O'Driscoll) and everybody over there."

Because it was the first meet he had ever hosted, it took about twice the length of time to finish. O'Driscoll, Meadows' athletic director, turned on the football field lights so they could complete the meet.

Bates was pleased with all of his athletes, especially his No. 1 and 10 shooters. Maria Recker had a super opening night, scoring 650 points out of a possible 720 at the No. 1 spot. Helen Sadler wasn't expected to shoot, but filltd in very well to win at No. 10.

Angeloff said she would have liked to have met Meadows later in the season. She lost 10 of the 14 girls that competed for Arlington last season. Bates agreed that as the season goes along, the inexperienced Cardinals will become a lot tougher.

Registration Saturday for youth basketball

Registration for the Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Assn. program for the coming season has been scheduled for this Saturday from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. at Lattof Chevrolet, 800 E. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

Birth certificates are not required if the youth registering has previously played baseball or football in the association program. This new basketball program will provide the youth with an opportunity to compete in a well-organized league which is dedicated to developing character and talent through instructions outside the classrooms, while emphasizing the importance of individual sportsmanship through organized team play.

The association will operate as many leagues as necessary in the 4-8 grade levels to afford each registrant the opportunity to play.

CAR CORNER

Citizen's Band radio has a reputation for helping to save lives in an emergency, accidents, or disaster. CB can also take the credit for all sorts of other things, including keeping you in good company while on the road. Few laymen, however, know the difference between mobile or business radio and CB. Land mobile services were established well before citizens radio, and is carefully regulated by the FCC. CB citizens radio uses the same relatively expensive UHF equipment as land mobile business radio, but restrictions are more relaxed.

Mustang archers end Cardinal win streak

by PAUL LOGAN
Archery Editor

"I was off the ground half the night," said Ken Bates Thursday.

He was still sky high the morning after his Rolling Meadows archery team had competed in their first Mid-Suburban League meet ever. The reason — his Mustang girls had pulled off quite a surprising victory over the perennial league champions, the Arlington Cardinals.

It was the season opener for both teams Wednesday night. New head coach Linda Angeloff and her Cardinal team carried a sparkling three-year winning streak into the meet of 31 straight victories. When the shooting ended, Meadows celebrated a hard-fought 9-2 win.

"I knew they were good but I didn't know they were that good," said Bates of Arlington's fine record over the years. "I was quite pleased."

Several archers wanted to have a team last year, but couldn't for several reasons. One of the principle ones was no coach.

Bates, who has a daughter on the team, offered his services. Presently a teacher at MacArthur Junior High, Bates has had several years of coaching and officiating experience, but not in archery. However, he has had personal experience in archery through the park district.

Ron Shalfant, an archery expert in the Rolling Meadows Park District, has taught many of the girls who are on this year's team. He has helped Bates get the program off the ground.

Bates said that Nancy Jacobs, a Meadows senior who won a national age group archery championship last summer, and Ron Ryba, also an avid archer at the school, have assisted him greatly. (Jacobs can't compete because her equipment is presently illegal according to Illinois High School Assn. rules.)

"I'm really pleased with the cooperation all the people at the high school have given me," said Bates. Mrs. (Joan) Jensen (Girls' sports coordinator), Tom (O'Driscoll) and everybody over there."

Because it was the first meet he had ever hosted, it took about twice the length of time to finish. O'Driscoll, Meadows' athletic director, turned on the football field lights so they could complete the meet.

Bates was pleased with all of his athletes, especially his No. 1 and 10 shooters. Maria Recker had a super opening night, scoring 650 points out of a possible 720 at the No. 1 spot. Helen Sadler wasn't expected to shoot, but filltd in very well to win at No. 10.

Angeloff said she would have liked to have met Meadows later in the season. She lost 10 of the 14 girls that competed for Arlington last season. Bates agreed that as the season goes along, the inexperienced Cardinals will become a lot tougher.

Registration Saturday for youth basketball

Registration for the Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Assn. program for the coming season has been scheduled for this Saturday from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. at Lattof Chevrolet, 800 E. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

Birth certificates are not required if the youth registering has previously played baseball or football in the association program. This new basketball program will provide the youth with an opportunity to compete in a well-organized league which is dedicated to developing character and talent through instructions outside the classrooms, while emphasizing the importance of individual sportsmanship through organized team play.

The association will operate as many leagues as necessary in the 4-8 grade levels to afford each registrant the opportunity to play.

CAR CORNER

with George Orth & Roger Nick

Citizen's Band radio has a reputation for helping to save lives in an emergency, accidents, or disaster. CB can also take the credit for all sorts of other things, including keeping you in good company while on the road. Few laymen, however, know the difference between mobile or business radio and CB. Land mobile services were established well before citizens radio, and is carefully regulated by the FCC. CB citizens radio uses the same relatively expensive UHF equipment as land mobile business radio, but restrictions are more relaxed.

Make sure your GM car gets the best service possible by bringing it to RAY OLDSMOBILE, 501 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge! As the largest retail OLDS dealer in Illinois, we have the most complete service and parts departments in the area. Our goal is one of total commitment to our customers. To make sure you get prompt, reliable service, we have 20 factory trained technicians on hand full time. Stop in and see George Orth or Roger Nick, service managers, when your GM car needs help! We are open Mondays through Fridays from 7 A.M. until 6 P.M. Call us at 696-3200.

HELPFUL HINT

In some states an insurance punch card must be kept in the car at all times. Be sure to check your state regulations.

Bears fans—just be patient

Dear Sports,

I'm a Bear fan, but not the fanatic type (if you know what I mean). I can't afford season tickets, but I always follow them either on radio or television and try to read everything I can about them. I consider myself pretty knowledgeable, so I hope what I say is taken seriously:

The Bears are no better than a .500 ball club right now.

I know your readers who have high hopes will be turned off by that statement but the key words they should notice are "right now." There's no doubt in my mind that Coach Jack Pardee and General Manager Jim Finks have done the best job possible in drafting available talent and making trades. Now it will just take time.

I've read too much and heard too much about the "Bears being contenders" or about the "Bears being 10-4 this season" et cetera. I'm worried that the fanatics will start believing this propaganda and set themselves up for a big letdown in November and December.

Bear fans and fanatics — just be patient. We'll be seeing contenders in Chicago, but it won't be the Bears this year. I'm referring to the Oakland Raiders and the Minnesota Vikings. For once, the sports slogan of our city "wait until next year" truly has meaning. In 1977, the Bears should contend for the divisison title. And I'm willing to bet that they'll be contenders for the Super Bowl before 1980.

But can the fanatics wait that long?

HAWKS, BULLS BETTER

Dear Editor:

Here ar some thoughts I have had recently for your "Sound Off" section in The Herald.

It looks to me like Chicago is heading into a new era in their professional sports. Things are definitely looking up, beginning this winter. Maybe this sounds like the "eternal optimism" that permeates Chicago sports fans, but with recent developments there is every reason for it.

The Bears are giving every sign of becoming competitive, and if they can pull off a few upsets, I don't think it will take much in their weak division to edge out an aging Minnesota team. Detroit is tough but mediocre, and the Packers will find it hard to score. Rick Talley of the Tribune has already come out in favor of the Bears taking their division.

The Black Hawks will be very good now that they have Bobby Orr. He will inspire some of that talent if Wirtz does not decimate the team by giving away too many key players to Boston. Personally, I don't think that Boston should get anyone. Why should Wirtz play Santa Claus to the Jacobs brothers when they showed no intertst in Bobby Orr.

I still dream about Bobby Hull and Bobby Orr on the power play. That would be fantastic, and I would say it would be Stanley Cup time. As it is, the Hawks can be as good as the Flyers, but the Montreal Canadiens are the best team in hockey.

The Stadium will often be full to the max this season if the Bulls can get their act together. Ed Badger will do all right as head coach, although I would've liked to see K. C. Jones or Chet Walker as the top man. But Badger knows that the Bulls have a gold mine of talent to go with new additions Scott May and Artis Gilmore. I can see Norm Van Lier racking up the assists dealing off to Gilmore, May and Bob Love. Jerry Sloan can be brought along slow because of the availability of guys like John Lazkowski and that rookie sharpshooter from Missouri (Smith) who scored 41 points in the NCAA finals against Michigan. Cliff Pondexter and Mickey Johnson proved their potential last year, and this is not to mention Jack Marin and the best backup center in the NBA, Tom Boerwinkle.

The Bulls have more talent and potential than any other team in Chicago. They are a definite shot to go all the way.

As ever for us die-hards, there is hope, and it's happening this year.

Canary wins national gym title

The American Academy of Gymnastics, Inc. of Des Plaines has produced its first National all-around champion in the A.A.U. Junior Olympic National Championships.

Representing the Academy, Christa Canary captured first in the all-around competition (70.50), first place on vaulting (9.5) and second place on uneven bars (8.9).

The Academy's boys team found Joe Ray placing fifth in the all-around competition with 85.95 points.

The 1976 A.A.U. Junior Olympic National Championships were held at Memphis State University in Memphis, Tenn. August 21-22.

Two thousand five hundred athletes competed in eight sports for the National titles. The Junior Olympics was sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Division.

Christa and Joe were coached by the Academy's Director Leonard Isaacs and Bill Sands of Des Plaines.

Dilger fires ace

Mrs. Ginny Dilger of 511 Devonshire Lane in Hoffman Estates joined the elite group of golfers who won a hole-in-one when she aced the 180-yard, par 3 on Golden Acres' Red Course. Mrs. Dilger used a driver.

Lefty golf tourney set

The 29th annual Illinois State Left-Handed Golf Tournament will be held at the Elks Country Club in Kankakee, Ill. Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 25-26.

The entry fee of $33 includes two days of golf and a steak dinner with complimentary cocktail Saturday evening followed by dancing. Guest tickets are $9.50.

A popular event among "wrong handed" golfers, the tournament will tee off at 12:01 p.m. Saturday and 11:30 a.m. Sunday. Carts will be available for $9 a round.

United States Golf Association rules will apply.

Competition will be held in several flights, including a senior bracket for golfers over 60. Trophies and prizes will be awarded to the first four places in each flight.

Practice rounds will be permitted prior to the tournament. For detail/ contact club pro John Krutilla (815-937-1227).

Special room rates and a hospitality room will be available at the Howard Johnson.

For complete details and applications contact Dick Bernard (394-2316.

Title fight at five sites

The Muhammad Ali-Ken Norton heavyweight championship fight Tuesday Sept. 28 will be broadcast live on close circuit television from Yankee Stadium at five Chicagoland locations.

They are the Auditorium Theatre, the Aragon Ballroom, Alumni Hall at DePaul University, the Amphitheater and the Hammond Ind. Civic Center.

Tickets are on sale through Triangle Productions.

Only the Auditorium will broadcast the fight in color, the rest in black and white.

Hersey Band at Bear game

The Hersey High School Marching Band, the State of Illinois Bicentennial Band, has been invited to perform at the Chicago Bears' opening game Sunday, Sept. 12 in Soldier Field.

The Hersey band will play prior to the kickoff of the tussle between the Bears and Detroit Lions and at halftime under the leadership of Donald Caneva, Director of Bands.

The theme of the halftime show is "A Classical Gas."

From campuses nationwide

—Three area football products are plying their trade at Southern Illinois University this fall.

George Bastable, a 5-11, 178-pound freshman from Buffalo Grove High School, is on the squad as a wide receiver.

Sophomore Ron Geels, from Schaumburg High School, is a 5-11, 191-pound Monster Man.

Mark Michuda, a 6-3, 195-pound sophomore from St. Viator High School, is the second strong defensive end with the Salukis.

—Jim Popp, who shattered area rushing records last year with Palatine High School, is a freshman on the Northern Michigan University football team.

Paul Cuccinotto from Des Plaines is the starting defensive back for NMU.

—Scott Mielke of Schaumburg High School and Jim Burke of Forest View High School are both playing football for Western Illinois University this year.

Mielke is a 6-2, 180-pound freshman flanker while Burke, a 6-4, 225-pound junior, is a right tackle.

—St. Olaf College will open its football season this week against Wartburg College and Bob Strasser from Mount Prospect will play at wing back for the Oles.

—At Indiana State University, Associated Press honorable mention Little All-America tackle Bob Radzis of Elk Grove is a primary returnee for the Sycamores.

—Jeanine Fermo of Prospect Heights has been selected for the second time to the Northern Illinois University tennis team. Jeanine is a 1973 graduate of Hersey High School.

Dr. J and Artis debut

Basketball's most spectacular act — Julius Erving of the New York Nets — will make his Chicago debut tonight at 7:30 at DePaul University's Alumni Hall.

Joining new Chicago Bull Artis Gilmore, Dr. J will bring his array of dunks and moves to play for charity, Bob Love's Athletes For Better Education Foundation, in AFBE's Summer Pro Classic all-star game.

In addition to Erving, Gilmore and Love, other NBA stars will participate. Representing the Bulls will be Norm Van Lier and Mickey Johnson. Two longtime Chicago Favorites Nate Archibald of K.C., and ex-Bull Clifford Ray will also compete. Ex-DePaul All American Bill Robinzine of KC will return to Alumni Hall.

Other participants in the contest include several former ABA stars playing in Chicago for the first time: Maurice Lucas of Portland; Ron Boone of Kansas City; George Gervin of San Antonio; and John Williamson of the NY Nets.

Established NBA stars on tap include: Bob Dandridge, Junior Bridgeman and Clyde Mayes of Milwaukee; Kevin Porter and George Trapp of Detroit; Sam Lacey and Scott Wedman of Kansas City; Willie Norwood of Seattle; Otto Moore of New Orleans; and Jim Brewer of Cleveland.

Buffalo Grove honors Bruins

August was quite a month for the Buffalo Grove Bruins.

Early in August these youngsters, 16 to 18 years of age, won the state title against a strong field of junior boys in 12-inch slow pitch softball.

In the middle of the month, the Bruins captured the national championship in Florida.

Also, Edward A. Fabish, village president of Buffalo Grove, lavished praise upon these young men and proclaimed the week of Aug. 30 "National Championship Bruins' Week" in Buffalo Grove.

The Village of Buffalo Grove will honor the Bruins again later this month at a victory banquet. It will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 22, at The Lancer Steak House in Schaumburg.

Ron Santo, former star of the Cubs and now a softball player himself, will be the guest speaker. Tickets are $7.50 per person. Cocktail hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. with dinner to follow.

For more ticket information, call Frank Marshall at 537-4428 or Bob Campbell at 537-5372.

Presidential praise for Bruin ballplayers

My warmest congratulations to the Buffalo Grove Bruins on winning the National Softball Tournament. I remember meeting many of you when I visited Buffalo Grove High School, and the happy memories of this occasion make it a special pleasure for me to recognize your most recent achievement. May tonight be enjoyable and memorable for each of you, and may it also be the beginning of many more successes in the years ahead.

Dogfight looms in Secretariat

A crack field of 11 handicap performers, including three entries coupled in the betting interests, passed the entry box Thursday afternoon for the 1-1/8 mile $100,000-added Secretariat Stakes to be run on the grass Saturday at Arlington Park.

Fifth Marine, hero of the $100,000 American Derby on July 4 and Effervescing, winner of the $75,000 Round Table Handicap Aug. 7, co-headline the event named for Meadow Stables' brilliant Triple Crown winner.

Although the expected dogfight between the two proven stars should be entertaining, most fans will be disappointed that nominees Majestic Light and Honest Pleasure elected to skip the race.

Other participants will include Bold Sunrise, Romeo, Klen Klitso, Bete's Zip, Silent Dictator, Duke Ricer, Joachim, L'Heureux and Scrutiny.

Should all 11 head postward, the race would be worth $128,400 with $88,400 going on the winner's bankroll.

One of the big surprises of the day could be Romeo. Owner Eugene Cashman (of Elocutionist glory) admitted, "The race is coming up a lot tougher than I thought. I certainly don't relish facing the likes of Effervescing, but I still think we have a good shot."

The three-year-olds T.V. Lark colt has tested his mettle in the first two Triple Crown gems (American Derby and Round Table) without success. He was sixth in the Derby and eighth in the Round Table.

But his last time out, Romeo unleashed a smashing effort in the 107th running of the Travers Stakes at Saratoga, finishing second to divisional leader Honest Pleasure in the main track event.

Even if the race is switched to the dirt track Saturday and comes up sloppy, Romeo won't be in bad shape.

Another highlight in his budding career came when he skipped to victory in an Arlington allowance test last June in track record time of 1:42-1/5 for 1-1/16 miles. The track was slop!

"All along he has been considered a grass horse," trainer Paul Adwell explained, "but his recent races indicate he is a better dirt horse."

The Travers was the colt's 18th start of the year and the $23,848 he earned for finishing second pushed his 1976 bankroll to $77,608 gleaned from three wins, three seconds and three thirds.

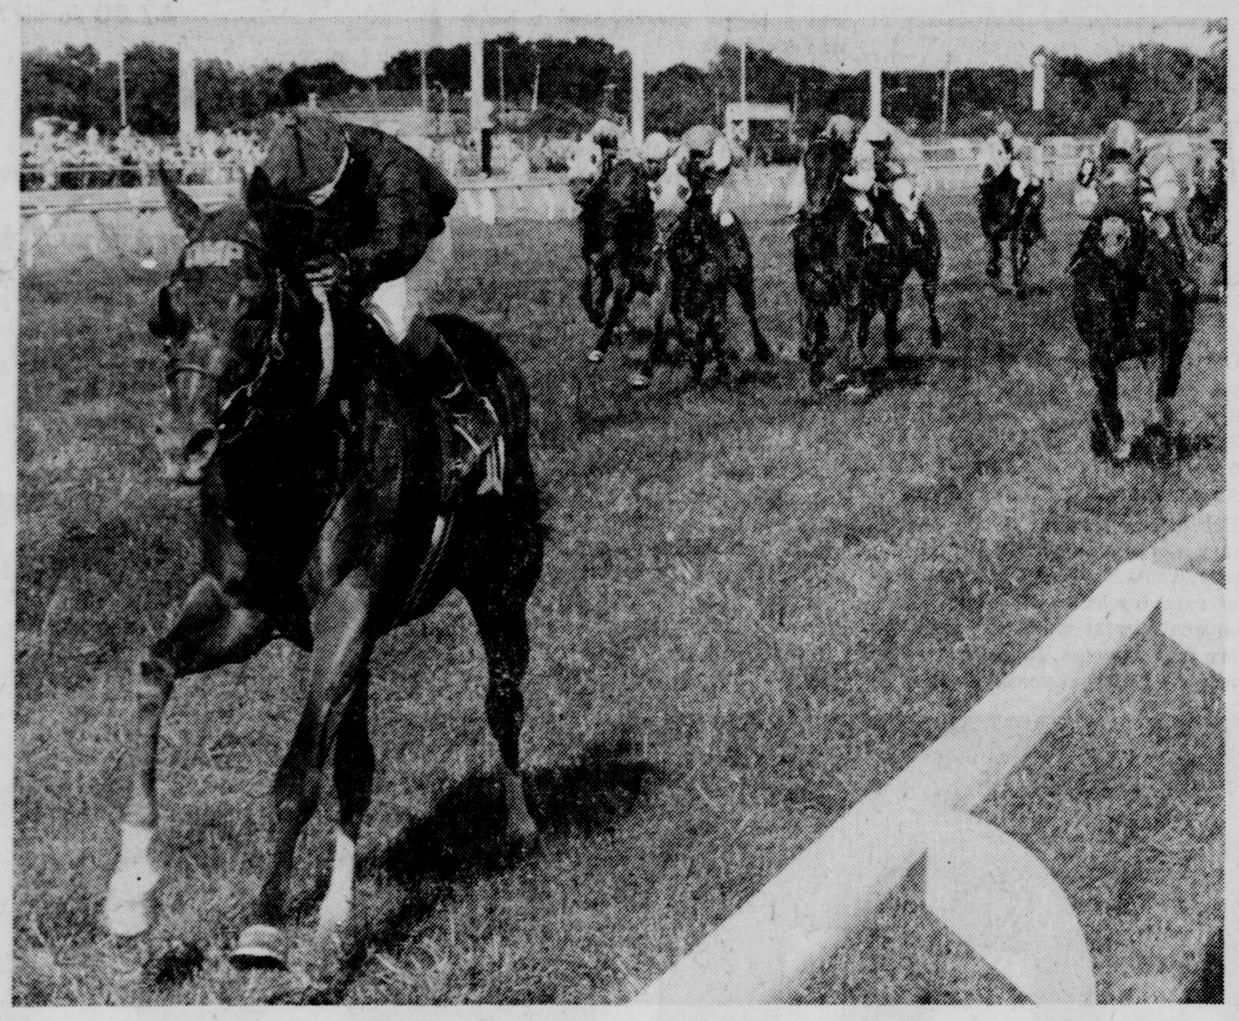
Jack Van Berg's double barrelled threat for honors — Scrutiny and Joachim, drilled six furlongs in tandem Wednesday on the turf.

The pair of highly-regarded three-year-olds came to the wire heads apart in the workout and stopped the clocker's watch in 1:13-3/5.

Joachim, who started 16 times and won only one race as a two-year-olds for earnings of just over $9,000 has really found himself this year. The Proud Clarion colt sports a bankroll of over $125,000 from five wins (two stakes) two seconds and three thirds.

Joachim enjoyed a highly successful and profitable summer season at Ak-Sar-Ben, winning three allowance events by wide margins and taking down honors in the $100,000 added Omaha Gold Cup Stakes and the President's Cup Handicap.

Stablemate Scrutiny, a lightly-raced son of Reviewer, has captured two of four starts this year. In his only stakes appearance, he flashed early speed in the Round Table before finishing seventh.



EFFORTLESS EFFERVESCING draws clear of field in the $75,000 Round Table Handicap last month. The talented three-year-old will face American Derby winner Fifth Marine Saturday in Arlington Park's Secretariat Stakes feature that has lured a field of 11 horses.

Arlington Minor Hockey signups

The Arlington Ranger Minor Hockey Assn., serving the communities of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling, will conduct two registrations on Saturdays Sept. 11 and 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Open to youths ages 3-16, the program catered to some 300 enthusiasts last year who participated on 26 teams.

Registration will take place at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena. In addition, persons interested in coaching or refereeing are asked to call Don Wold at 392-2234 or Mrs. Paul Grasemann at 392-8792.

A crack field of 11 handicap performers, including three entries coupled in the betting interests, passed the entry box Thursday afternoon for the 1-1/8 mile $100,000-added Secretariat Stakes to be run on the grass Saturday at Arlington Park.

Fifth Marine, hero of the $100,000 American Derby on July 4 and Effervescing, winner of the $75,000 Round Table Handicap Aug. 7, co-headline the event named for Meadow Stables' brilliant Triple Crown winner.

Although the expected dogfight between the two proven stars should be entertaining, most fans will be disappointed that nominees Majestic Light and Honest Pleasure elected to skip the race.

Other participants will include Bold Sunrise, Romeo, Klen Klitso, Bete's Zip, Silent Dictator, Duke Ricer, Joachim, L'Heureux and Scrutiny.

Should all 11 head postward, the race would be worth $128,400 with $88,400 going on the winner's bankroll.

One of the big surprises of the day could be Romeo. Owner Eugene Cashman (of Elocutionist glory) admitted, "The race is coming up a lot tougher than I thought. I certainly don't relish facing the likes of Effervescing, but I still think we have a good shot."

The three-year-olds T.V. Lark colt has tested his mettle in the first two Triple Crown gems (American Derby and Round Table) without success. He was sixth in the Derby and eighth in the Round Table.

But his last time out, Romeo unleashed a smashing effort in the 107th running of the Travers Stakes at Saratoga, finishing second to divisional leader Honest Pleasure in the main track event.

Even if the race is switched to the dirt track Saturday and comes up sloppy, Romeo won't be in bad shape.

Another highlight in his budding career came when he skipped to victory in an Arlington allowance test last June in track record time of 1:42-1/5 for 1-1/16 miles. The track was slop!

"All along he has been considered a grass horse," trainer Paul Adwell explained, "but his recent races indicate he is a better dirt horse."

The Travers was the colt's 18th start of the year and the $23,848 he earned for finishing second pushed his 1976 bankroll to $77,608 gleaned from three wins, three seconds and three thirds.

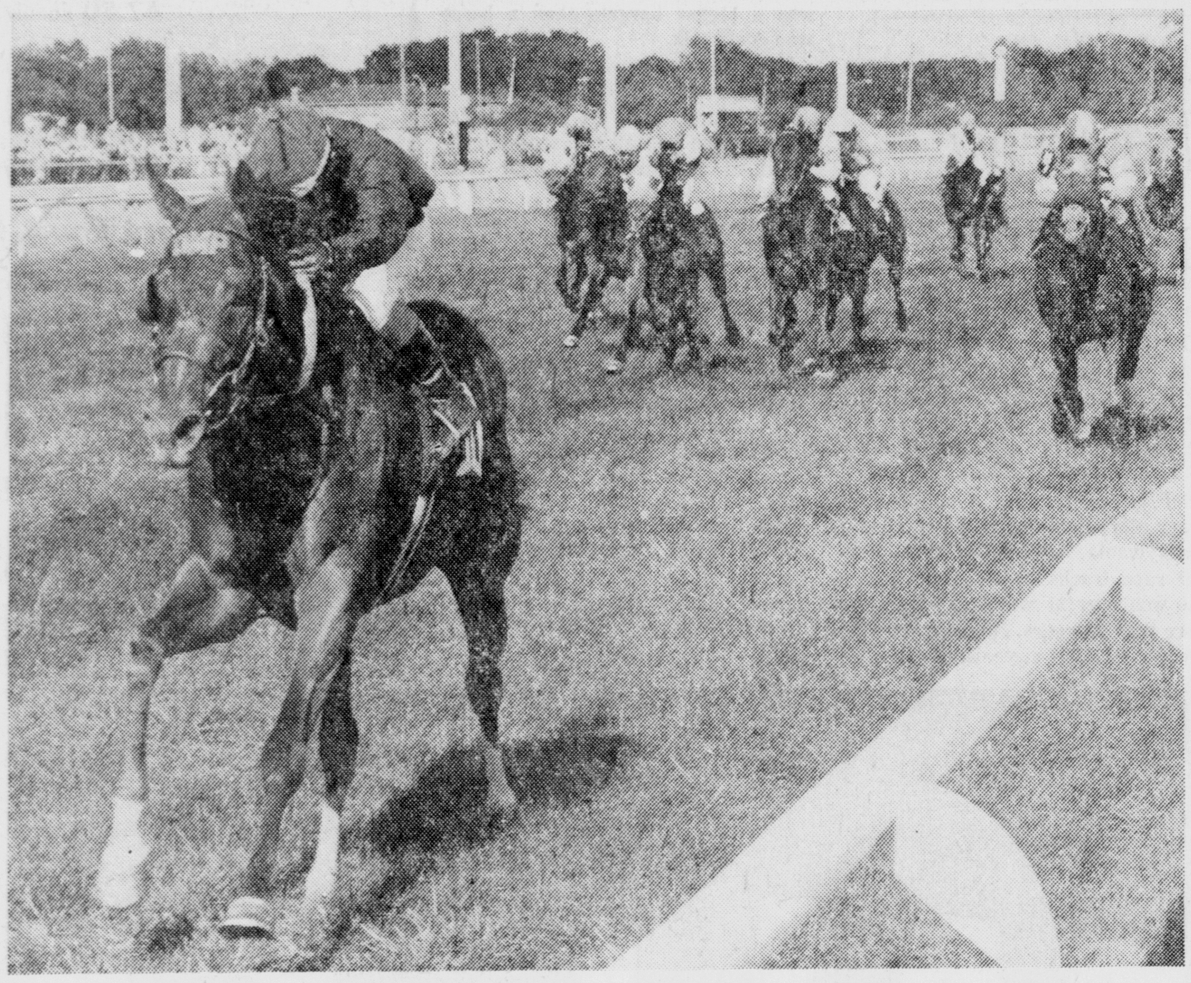
Jack Van Berg's double barrelled threat for honors — Scrutiny and Joachim, drilled six furlongs in tandem Wednesday on the turf.

The pair of highly-regarded three-year-olds came to the wire heads apart in the workout and stopped the clocker's watch in 1:13-3/5.

Joachim, who started 16 times and won only one race as a two-year-olds for earnings of just over $9,000 has really found himself this year. The Proud Clarion colt sports a bankroll of over $125,000 from five wins (two stakes) two seconds and three thirds.

Joachim enjoyed a highly successful and profitable summer season at Ak-Sar-Ben, winning three allowance events by wide margins and taking down honors in the $100,000 added Omaha Gold Cup Stakes and the President's Cup Handicap.

Stablemate Scrutiny, a lightly-raced son of Reviewer, has captured two of four starts this year. In his only stakes appearance, he flashed early speed in the Round Table before finishing seventh.



EFFORTLESS EFFERVESCING draws clear of field in the $75,000 Round Table Handicap last month. The talented three-year-old will face American Derby winner Fifth Marine Saturday in Arlington Park's Secretariat Stakes feature that has lured a field of 11 horses.

Arlington Minor Hockey signups

The Arlington Ranger Minor Hockey Assn., serving the communities of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling, will conduct two registrations on Saturdays Sept. 11 and 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Open to youths ages 3-16, the program catered to some 300 enthusiasts last year who participated on 26 teams.

Registration will take place at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena. In addition, persons interested in coaching or refereeing are asked to call Don Wold at 392-2234 or Mrs. Paul Grasemann at 392-8792.

Nobody smelled the smoke

Jim Murray

The "Steve Spriggs Story" would never make a musical. Disney wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole. It's clearly a disaster movie. Everybody dies in the end. There's not a part in it for Charles Coburn. It makes "Towering Inferno" look like a comedy. "Earthquake" had a happier ending.

Steve Spriggs is not your average household word in harness racing. Steve was brought up in the standard-bred country of Ohio where they think a horse ought to do an honest day's work and pull a wagon even on a race track and they wouldn't like to see some stuck-up jockey up on Dan Patch's neck.

But, earlier this year, Steve Spriggs thought he was going to be bigger than the Hanover shoe people when it came to breeding and racing harness horses. He had acquired a stable of a dozen of them, including the mare, Sweet Sophie, who had won $50,000 already, and Elby Joy, who had won $32,000.

Everywhere he looked, he saw money. He bought a rig to haul his horses around the fair circuits of the Midwest. He claimed and trained horses with minor impairments until they were winning richer claiming races, and he was getting ready for his assault on the big-time when he got in his van to haul a string to the track in Maywood, Ill., one night last May. Nobody smelled the smoke at the little training track where he had left seven of his most promising pacers, including Sweet Sophie and Elby Joy, and a cluster of 2-year-olds he had high hopes for.

Racetracks fear fire more than big-city skyscrapers or forest rangers. The straw-filled tinder boxes go up on a hot night like a coke heap in hell. This fire lasted less than 45 minutes, but the nearest thing to a fire alarm they could get to was a pay phone, and 34 horses died, including all seven of Spriggs'. Five died outright, and the other two injured themselves in the panic fleeing the flames and had to be destroyed.

Shortly after this, two of Spriggs' horses suffered sesamoid fractures and had to be put out to pasture. Another one had a heart attack and had to be taken out of racing. Steve Spriggs went from a quarter of a million dollars worth of horses and equipment (most of which was destroyed in the fire, too) to one little old 8-year-old $10,000 claimer named Little X.

You can see, this is not the kind of story you'd cast Loretta Young in. It's a lousy ending for a Dan Patch, and rotten box office.

The romance of racing favors the story of a Delvin Miller who, like Steve Spriggs, was a young driver-trainer who was conditioning horses for the tobacco heir, W. N. Reynolds, when he noticed the record-breaking pacer, Adios, was being auctioned off by the movie king, Harry Warner, at a dispersal sale in Lexington, Ky.

Del Miller, hitching up his nerve, went to a palm-sweating $21,000 for the great stallion, who had won only $33,329 up to that year, 1948, because the harness horse explosion had not yet hit the sporting scene.

Del Miller became a millionaire, owner of a mighty breeding empire in Pennsylvania, with interests in several race tracks. Adios sired horses who won over $1 million a season for more than 11 years. His sons drew as much as $105,000 at yearling sales. He was a bigger bargain than a horse who could talk.

Paul Newman might want to play Del Miller, but you'd be lucky to get Jack Klugman to do the Steve Spriggs story, which has all the romantic interest of a Smokey the Bear commercial.

Spriggs is racing his one-horse string at Hollywood Park's Western Harness Racing meet these nights. He has a lot of memories — and a lot of bills The only thing he has insured, the truck, didn't burn.

But Steve is only 29, and you can find him poring over the claim boxes on the nightly cards at the track. He's sure there's a happy ending in there someplace. Someday, he's sure he will walk off in the sunset with a $20,000 claim that will win the Little Brown Jug or break Dan Patch's or Bret Hanover's records, and there'll be a happy ending yet that will make "Sound of Music" — or "Broadway Bill" — look sad.

Public Notice

Community Consolidated School District 59 today announced its policy for free milk and free meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the national School Lunch, and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size and income criteria for determining eligibility:

Family Size	Family Income Free Meals & Free Milk FY 77
1	$ 3,680
2	4,830
3	5,980
4	7,130
5	8,190
6	9,240
7	10,200
8	11,150
9	12,010
10	12,870
11	13,730
Each Additional Family Member	860

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free meals and free milk. In addition, families that do not meet these criteria but have expenses such as unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of thirty per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, or disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The

Public Notice

Community Consolidated School District 59 today announced its policy for free milk and free meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the national School Lunch, and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size and income criteria for determining eligibility:

Family Size	Family Income Free Meals & Free Milk FY 77
1	$ 3,680
2	4,830
3	5,980
4	7,130
5	8,190
6	9,240
7	10,200
8	11,150

10	12,870
11	13,730
Each Additional Family Member	860

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free meals and free milk. In addition, families that do not meet these criteria but have expenses such as unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of thirty per cent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, or disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during this year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for free milk and free lunch, the family should contact the school.

All children are treated the same regardless of ability to pay. In the operation of child nutrition programs, no child will be discriminated against because of his/her race, sex, color, or national origin.

Mao Tse-tung dead at 82; army on alert

sultant to the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, said Thursday little is known in the West about the inner operations of the Chinese political structure.

"A lot of the leaders are not young men," he said. "They are in their middle to late 60s. What U.S. relations will be probably will involve more of our politics than theirs," he said. "They are probably waiting to see what our elections will produce."

The China watchers agree that Sino-Soviet relations, now bitterly hostile, could improve with the death of Mao, the man who broke from the Soviet Communist philosophy to lead the 1949 revolution which united mainland China under a single government.

"I think it would have been difficult if not impossible for any patching up of relations with Mao around," Allred said. "He symbolized the break. The Soviets were regarded as more of an enemy than the U.S.

"A NEW LEADER without the background that Mao had might do something different," he said.

"Certainly he (Mao) did symbolize the resistance to Soviet power," Kuhn said. "There will be presumably some kind of contest for power in Peking. We know there has been a wing of the party that is pro-Soviet."

The observers agree that Mao's influence was singularly responsible for turning China int a world power. "Apparently he continued to have the last word in most subjects if he chose to give that word," Allred said.

"He was enormously influential," Sheridan said. "I think Mao was one of the great men in history. He was the key individual and it was his individualism and personality that shaped the country. He has been a kind of guiding spirit. It could be that his most significant influence has been as a symbol."

Allred said Mao "was the revolution" in the minds of the Chinese.

"EVERYONE ELSE was in his shadow," he said. "He was the driving force of the Community revolution in China. Mao did succeed in unifying the country under a single governturning China into a world power. ment, except for Taiwan. He did succeed in driving out all foreign influence in China.

"We're looking at a country that really was dominated for years by the outside," he added. "No one questions China's independence today."

Natinally, other China watchers predicted change for the Far East nation but could not say if the change would be gradual, wrenching or violent.

Few were willing to venture a guess as to who would succeed Mao as No. 1 — if, indeed, there is to be a No. 1 in the sense that Mao made it.

Prof. Ezra Vogel, director of Harvard's East Asian Research Center, put the problem succinctly: "When it comes down to knowledge about top leadership in Peking, we are all very ignorant."

CHINA WATCHERS Thursday cited the many factors in the equation — the behind-the-scenes maneuvering so much a part of China politics, the role of Mao's widow and the radical forces she heads, the fact Mao himself never designated a clearcut successor.

Former U.S. diplomat John S. Service, who spent four months with Mao in the period before the Communists took over China, foresaw a fairly smooth transition, possibly toward "some kind of collective leadership.

"I don't expect China to fall apart," Service, now living in Berkeley, Calif., said. "This (Mao's death) has been expected. There has been government functioning there without his active leadership. There is no reason for any great crisis or turmoil."

Dean Rusk, secretary of state under presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson and now a University of Georgia law professor, said "I don't think we have any way of knowing" what is ahead. "The end of the Mao era is a very important change in China and the history of the world."

RUSK DECLINED to speculate on the matter of Mao's successor. "Now that I'm a private citizen, I don't have to be a prophet," he said.

Professor Merle Goldman, a research associate at the East Asian Center at Harvard, said he expected "disarray in the upper levels of the leadership."

"There are two groups in China — the moderates and the radicals," Goldman said, "and because of that there has been no legitimate successor appointed to succeed Mao.

"Both groups have different interests and leaders they would like to see take charge," he said. "There is bound to be conflict between these two groups."

by CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung died Thursday in Peking, ending a tumultuous 82 years of life that saw him rise from simple peasant to leader of the world's largest mass revolution and ruler of one-fourth of mankind.

His death sent the nation of 800 million Chinese into mourning. It raised the prospect of a long period of political turmoil that marked his own career from the time he assumed leadership of the Chinese Communists in the 1930s.

The armed forces went on alert, according to intelligence sources in Hong Kong. The sources said, however, this appeared to be a routine precautionary move.

A TITANIC STRUGGLE for power seemed certain with Premier Hua Kuo-feng seeking to hold his role of leadership against the Politburo's determined conservatives who argue that Mao's doctrinaire policies adopted by Hua undermined the country's economic development.

Authorities set a week-long period of official mourning and announced that an unprecedented mass memorial service would be held on Sept. 18 in the capital's huge Tien An Men (Gate of Heavenly Peace) Square where Mao celebrated his greatest triumphs.

World leaders hailed Mao as "the last giant of the century" and one of the "world's immortals." But in Taiwan, radio stations interrupted regular broadcasts to announce: "We have very good news to report to you, Mao Tse-tung the bandit leader is dead."

President Ford hailed Mao's "vision and imagination" which led to improved Sino-U.S. relations and said his death was "tragic." Sec. of State Henry Kissinger expressed hope the two nations would continue a parallel course of cautious friendship "but the methods and the details are bound to be mysterious at this time."

THE SOVIET UNION, which has villified Mao through the long years of their bitter ideological quarrel, announced the death but made no comment.

Mao died of a lingering, undisclosed illness at 10 minutes past midnight Peking time (10:10 a.m. CST Wednesday) — the 15th day of the 8th moon, one of China's oldest and most traditional holidays.

The cause of death was not announced but it came as no surprise. Mao has suffered a series of strokes and was reported suffering from Parkinson's disease.

The Chinese announced that Mao's body would lie in state in the Great Hall of the People for a week beginning Saturday.

MAO TSE-TUNG

CROWDS IN PEKING poured into Tien An Men Square, scene of serious rioting just five months ago, and began paying tribute to the man who was the only leader they had known since the Peoples Republic of China came into being on Oct. 1, 1949, after Mao's forces drove Chiang Kai-shek from the mainland...

Peking reports said great throngs of young people, many of them in tears, entered the square and stood in front of a huge portrait of the chairman where they raised their clenched fists and took oaths:

"Beloved Chairman Mao, we commit ourselves to continue the struggle, always according to your teachings."

A single green, flowered wreath was placed on the Martyrs Monument in the center of the square, which bears an inscription in Mao's calligraphy reading, "the People's Heroes are Immortal."

A SINGLE SOLDIER kept the crowd moving and was joined later by other soldiers with fixed bayontts. People gathered around the monument, writing tributes to Mao on paper posters.

The Italian news agency ANSA said stores in Wan Fuchin, Peking's main shopping street, stayed open and people lined up to buy large portraits of Mao and white paper flowers of mourning. They also bought wooden boards, steel wire and silk to make wreaths.

The agency said the Chinese first annulled the schedule of James Schlesinger, the former U.S. defense secretary who is now visiting Peking, but later reversed themselves and said they acted at a time of "great emotion." They said Schlesinger could visit the Great Wall of China Friday as scheduled.

Thev informed the Schlesinger party that they were not inviting foreign delegations to the Mao rites but that "foreigners already here will of course be free to take part to offer their condolences."

Mao was the last of the Big Three leaders of the Communist revolution to die this year. Premier Chou En-lai died on Jan. 8 at age 78 and Marshal Chu Teh, longtime commander-in-chief of the Chinese army, died on July 6 at 90. Tung Pi-wu, another founding member of the party and former acting president of the republic, died last year as did King Sheng, another of the party's old guard.

Hua Kuo-feng now top leader

by United Press International

Premier Hua Kuo-feng became China's highest-ranking government and party leader upon the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Hua, who serves both as premier and chief deputy chairman of the party central committee, rose to national prominence during the Cultural Revolution as Mao's handpicked protege.

That backing apparently was the chief reason Hua moved up to the post left vacant by Chou En-Lai's death Jan. 8.

He was first named acting premier, then elevated to the permanent positions April 7.

Although he was one of 12 vice premiers elected by the 4th National People's Congress last year, Hua was not considered a likely candidate for the premiership when Chou died.

ALMOST EVERY China analyst in Peking and Hong Kong considered it a foregone conclusion that Teng Hsiao-ping, the man who took over most of Chou's duties after the premier was hospitalized in the spring of 1974, would be named Chou's successor.

Hua first achieved national prominence during the chaotic Cultural Revolution of the late 1960s.

Mao Tse-tung dead at 82; army on alert

Little change predicted in China, U.S. relations

sultant to the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, said Thursday little is known in the West about the inner operations of the Chinese political structure.

"A lot of the leaders are not young men," he said. "They are in their middle to late 60s. What U.S. relations will be probably will involve more of our politics than theirs," he said. "They are probably waiting to see what our elections will produce."

The China watchers agree that Sino-Soviet relations, now bitterly hostile, could improve with the death of Mao, the man who broke from the Soviet Communist philosophy to lead the 1949 revolution which united mainland China under a single government.

"I think it would have been difficult if not impossible for any patching up of relations with Mao around," Allred said. "He symbolized the break. The Soviets were regarded as more of an enemy than the U.S.

"A NEW LEADER without the background that Mao had might do something different," he said.

"Certainly he (Mao) did symbolize the resistance to Soviet power," Kuhn said. "There will be presumably some kind of contest for power in Peking. We know there has been a wing of the party that is pro-Soviet."

The observers agree that Mao's influence was singularly responsible for turning China int a world power. "Apparently he continued to have the last word in most subjects if he chose to give that word," Allred said.

"He was enormously influential," Sheridan said. "I think Mao was one of the great men in history. He was the key individual and it was his individualism and personality that shaped the country. He has been a kind of guiding spirit. It could be that his most significant influence has been as a symbol."

Allred said Mao "was the revolution" in the minds of the Chinese.

"EVERYONE ELSE was in his shadow," he said. "He was the driving force of the Community revolution in China. Mao did succeed in unifying the country under a single governturning China into a world power. ment, except for Taiwan. He did succeed in driving out all foreign influence in China.

"We're looking at a country that really was dominated for years by the outside," he added. "No one questions China's independence today."

Natinally, other China watchers predicted change for the Far East nation but could not say if the change would be gradual, wrenching or violent.

Few were willing to venture a guess as to who would succeed Mao as No. 1 — if, indeed, there is to be a No. 1 in the sense that Mao made it.

Prof. Ezra Vogel, director of Harvard's East Asian Research Center, put the problem succinctly: "When it comes down to knowledge about top leadership in Peking, we are all very ignorant."

CHINA WATCHERS Thursday cited the many factors in the equation — the behind-the-scenes maneuvering so much a part of China politics, the role of Mao's widow and the radical forces she heads, the fact Mao himself never designated a clearcut successor.

Former U.S. diplomat John S. Service, who spent four months with Mao in the period before the Communists took over China, foresaw a fairly smooth transition, possibly toward "some kind of collective leadership.

"I don't expect China to fall apart," Service, now living in Berkeley, Calif., said. "This (Mao's death) has been expected. There has been government functioning there without his active leadership. There is no reason for any great crisis or turmoil."

Dean Rusk, secretary of state under presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson and now a University of Georgia law professor, said "I don't think we have any way of knowing" what is ahead. "The end of the Mao era is a very important change in China and the history of the world."

RUSK DECLINED to speculate on the matter of Mao's successor. "Now that I'm a private citizen, I don't have to be a prophet," he said.

Professor Merle Goldman, a research associate at the East Asian Center at Harvard, said he expected "disarray in the upper levels of the leadership."

"There are two groups in China — the moderates and the radicals," Goldman said, "and because of that there has been no legitimate successor appointed to succeed Mao.

"Both groups have different interests and leaders they would like to see take charge," he said. "There is bound to be conflict between these two groups."

by CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung died Thursday in Peking, ending a tumultuous 82 years of life that saw him rise from simple peasant to leader of the world's largest mass revolution and ruler of one-fourth of mankind.

His death sent the nation of 800 million Chinese into mourning. It raised the prospect of a long period of political turmoil that marked his own career from the time he assumed leadership of the Chinese Communists in the 1930s.

The armed forces went on alert, according to intelligence sources in Hong Kong. The sources said, however, this appeared to be a routine precautionary move.

A TITANIC STRUGGLE for power seemed certain with Premier Hua Kuo-feng seeking to hold his role of leadership against the Politburo's determined conservatives who argue that Mao's doctrinaire policies adopted by Hua undermined the country's economic development.

Authorities set a week-long period of official mourning and announced that an unprecedented mass memorial service would be held on Sept. 18 in the capital's huge Tien An Men (Gate of Heavenly Peace) Square where Mao celebrated his greatest triumphs.

World leaders hailed Mao as "the last giant of the century" and one of the "world's immortals." But in Taiwan, radio stations interrupted regular broadcasts to announce: "We have very good news to report to you, Mao Tse-tung the bandit leader is dead."

President Ford hailed Mao's "vision and imagination" which led to improved Sino-U.S. relations and said his death was "tragic." Sec. of State Henry Kissinger expressed hope the two nations would continue a parallel course of cautious friendship "but the methods and the details are bound to be mysterious at this time."

THE SOVIET UNION, which has villified Mao through the long years of their bitter ideological quarrel, announced the death but made no comment.

Mao died of a lingering, undisclosed illness at 10 minutes past midnight Peking time (10:10 a.m. CST Wednesday) — the 15th day of the 8th moon, one of China's oldest and most traditional holidays.

The cause of death was not announced but it came as no surprise. Mao has suffered a series of strokes and was reported suffering from Parkinson's disease.

The Chinese announced that Mao's body would lie in state in the Great Hall of the People for a week beginning Saturday.

MAO TSE-TUNG

CROWDS IN PEKING poured into Tien An Men Square, scene of serious rioting just five months ago, and began paying tribute to the man who was the only leader they had known since the Peoples Republic of China came into being on Oct. 1, 1949, after Mao's forces drove Chiang Kai-shek from the mainland...

Peking reports said great throngs of young people, many of them in tears, entered the square and stood in front of a huge portrait of the chairman where they raised their clenched fists and took oaths:

"Beloved Chairman Mao, we commit ourselves to continue the struggle, always according to your teachings."

A single green, flowered wreath was placed on the Martyrs Monument in the center of the square, which bears an inscription in Mao's calligraphy reading, "the People's Heroes are Immortal."

A SINGLE SOLDIER kept the crowd moving and was joined later by other soldiers with fixed bayontts. People gathered around the monument, writing tributes to Mao on paper posters.

The Italian news agency ANSA said stores in Wan Fuchin, Peking's main shopping street, stayed open and people lined up to buy large portraits of Mao and white paper flowers of mourning. They also bought wooden boards, steel wire and silk to make wreaths.

The agency said the Chinese first annulled the schedule of James Schlesinger, the former U.S. defense secretary who is now visiting Peking, but later reversed themselves and said they acted at a time of "great emotion." They said Schlesinger could visit the Great Wall of China Friday as scheduled.

Thev informed the Schlesinger party that they were not inviting foreign delegations to the Mao rites but that "foreigners already here will of course be free to take part to offer their condolences."

Mao was the last of the Big Three leaders of the Communist revolution to die this year. Premier Chou En-lai died on Jan. 8 at age 78 and Marshal Chu Teh, longtime commander-in-chief of the Chinese army, died on July 6 at 90. Tung Pi-wu, another founding member of the party and former acting president of the republic, died last year as did King Sheng, another of the party's old guard.

Hua Kuo-feng now top leader

by United Press International

Premier Hua Kuo-feng became China's highest-ranking government and party leader upon the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Hua, who serves both as premier and chief deputy chairman of the party central committee, rose to national prominence during the Cultural Revolution as Mao's handpicked protege.

That backing apparently was the chief reason Hua moved up to the post left vacant by Chou En-Lai's death Jan. 8.

He was first named acting premier, then elevated to the permanent positions April 7.

Although he was one of 12 vice premiers elected by the 4th National People's Congress last year, Hua was not considered a likely candidate for the premiership when Chou died.

ALMOST EVERY China analyst in Peking and Hong Kong considered it a foregone conclusion that Teng Hsiao-ping, the man who took over most of Chou's duties after the premier was hospitalized in the spring of 1974, would be named Chou's successor.

Hua first achieved national prominence during the chaotic Cultural Revolution of the late 1960s.

Hua's rapid rise was attributed to Mao's patronage and his opposition to the late Defense Minister Lin Piao long before Lin tried unsuccessfully to oust Mao in September 1971.
